Georgia's Resources and Advantages

PART I.

GEORGIA AS A WHOLE

Georgia, the last settled of the original thirteen States, which united under the Federal Constitution to form the American Union, is the greatest in area of all the States east of the Mississippi river.

At the time of the first English settlement at Savannah in 1733, it embraced the territory between the Savannah and Altamaha rivers, but at the close of the French and Indian war its boundaries were extended to the Mississippi on the west and to latitude 31 degrees and the St. Mary's river on the south and still later to 30 degrees 21 minutes and 30 seconds on the south. Out of her western lands ceded to the United States in 1802 were formed the larger parts of the States of Alabama and Mississippi.

During the war for Independence, Georgia, the youngest and feeblest of the colonies, bore her full proportion of hardship and danger and was nobly illustrated in the field by such gallant soldiers as Elijah Clarke, James Jackson, John Dooly, Samuel Elbert, John Twiggs, Wm. Few, Lachlan McIntosh and others, and in the forum by Lyman Hall, Button Gwinnett, George Walton, Archibald Bulloch, Abraham Baldwin and many more.

In the war of 1812 her sons, under General John Floyd, won distinction in the campaigns under Andrew Jackson against the Indian allies of the British. In the Mexican war she was nobly illustrated by Col. Wm. H. T. Walker, sorely wounded at Chapultepec and Colonel James McIntosh, killed at Molino del Rey.

In the war between the States, Georgia furnished to the Confederate cause ninety-four regiments and thirty-six battalions, embracing every arm of the service. Many of the most brilliant officers of the Southern army were from Georgia, among them being John B. Gordon, Joseph Wheeler and James Longstreet. On her soil were fought the battles of Chickamauga, Ringgold, Resaca, New Hope Church, Kennesaw Mountain, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Allatoona and numerous smaller engagements and skirmishes.

During the Spanish-American war Georgia furnished more volunteers in proportion to population than any other State.

Thus at every period of American history Georgia has taken a conspicuous stand. Her Crawfords, Berrien, Stephens, Toombs, Cobbs, Benjamin H. Hill and Henry Grady were among the greatest orators of America and no grander pulpit orator than George F. Pierce can be named in the roll of America's great preachers. Sidney Lanier also ranks high among American poets.

Great on these lines, Georgia is also one of the most progressive among our States. In the later thirties on account of her rapid growth in manufactures and her wisdom and zeal in railroad construction, Georgia received the proud title "Empire State of the South."

It has been said that the South was retarded to such an extent by slavery and so much damaged by the war that she is far behind the rest of the Union in the race of progress. This statement has been repeated again and again until the whole world including our own people accept it as the truth.

Growth in population is one of the evidences of progress, and in this Georgia compares favorably with any of the "Old Thirteen." The United States census of 1900 is authority for the following statements:

The population of Massachusetts is very nearly seven and a half times as large as it was at its first census in 1790;

That of Pennsylvania more than fourteen times as large;

That of New York more than twenty-one times as large;

That of Georgia nearly twenty-seven times as large (the exact figures being 26.8 times as large).

We think that will do pretty well.

From the above named eastern and middle States there has been a large emigration to the West and from Georgia there has also been a very large emigration to all the States of the Southwest. Here the record is about evenly balanced.

In 1860 the per capita wealth of these same States was as follows: Massachusetts, $662; Pennsylvania, $487; New York, $475; Georgia, $611.

As a result of the civil war the per capita wealth of these States was far ahead of that of Georgia. In 1870 the comparative per capita wealth was as follows: Massachusetts, $1,463; Pennsylvania, $1,981; New York, $1,483; Georgia, $226.

In 1890 the record stood thus: Massachusetts, $1,252, a loss of seven and a half per cent. in per capita wealth from 1870 to 1890; Pennsylvania, $1,177, a gain of eight and four-fifths per cent.; New York, $1,430, a loss of three per cent.; Georgia, $464, a gain of 105 per cent.

We think this record speaks well for the enterprise and progressive spirit of Georgia.

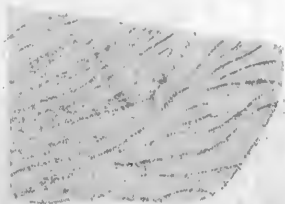

A State that had suffered such shrinkage in values by the disastrous results of war and was able so soon to get upon her feet and vie with her more fortunate sisters in the race of progress, must be inhabited by an enterprising, dauntless and intelligent people, whom no disasters can appall and no adversities subdue.

But say some: "The South is far behind the North in the matter of conveniences." This, too, is a mistake. Name the convenience known to the North that we do not have in our cities, and large towns: steam-heated houses, lit by gas, or electricity or both, and supplied with water. Wherever one may travel, in cities or mid rural scenes, he will find comfortable homes and frequently elegant dwellings, supplied with all modern conveniences. And we are abundantly supplied with telegraph and telephone lines, both short and long distance.

The growth of the cities and towns of Georgia in every section of the State is evidence of prosperous farmers; for a strong agricultural community is back of every thriving, growing town. Electric railways give rapid transit to all parts of our cities and afford speedy and comfortable communication with near-by towns and villages or pleasure resorts.

Magnificent lines of railway traverse every section of the State, giving to its farmers easy access to markets; to the enterprising merchants of her cities and towns ready communication with the magnificent farms, market gardens and immense orchards that abound in north, middle and south Georgia; bringing to her manufacturers the fleecy cotton of her fields, the coal and iron of her mines and the timbers from her forests.

In addition to railroad advantages many Georgia towns enjoy fine water transportation and thus obtain cheaper freight rates. The Savannah river is navigable for steamboats to Augusta, 230 miles from its mouth. Steamboats ply the Chattahoochee from Columbus to the Apalachicola and thence to the Gulf of Mexico; to which also steamboats descend from Albany by the Flint and Apalachicola rivers. From the Atlantic steamboats also ascend the Altamaha and its branch, the Ocmulgee, to Hawkinsville, or its other branch the Oconee almost to the city of Milledgeville. The St. Mary's river is navigable for the largest vessels from its mouth up to and beyond the town of that name. The Satilla and Ogeechee are each navigable for some distance from their mouths. The inlets and sounds flowing between the mainland and the lovely islands that skirt the Georgia coast from the Savannah to the Saint Mary's rivers are navigable for large steamboats.

Through St. Simon's sound the largest ocean vessels pass up the Turtle river, a short but deep stream, to the city of Brunswick, the second in importance of the seaports of Georgia, as Savannah is the first, to whose wharves great ocean vessels ascend by the river of that name.

In Northwest Georgia the city of Rome enjoys a fine river trade through the Oostanula and the Coosa. Into its lap steamboats pour the productions of the Coosa valley, such as lumber, iron, grain and cotton, and the staple products of the Oostanula valley.

Every section of Georgia is drained by rivers of considerable size with their tributary creeks and branches and is consequently a splendid agricultural country.

The Drainage System of Georgia comprises nine basins: the Tennessee basin, drained by tributaries of the Tennessee river; the Mobile basin, drained by the Tallapoosa and Coosa rivers and their tributaries into the Gulf of Mexico; the Apalachicola basin, drained by the Chattahoochee, Flint and Apalachicola rivers into the Gulf of Mexico; the Altamaha basin, drained by the Oconee, Ocmulgee and Altamaha rivers into the Atlantic ocean; the Ogeechee basin, drained by the river of that name through Ossabaw sound into the Atlantic ocean; the Savannah basin, drained by the Savannah river and its tributaries into the Atlantic ocean; the Ochlockonee basin, drained by the river of that name through Ochlockonee bay into the Gulf of Mexico; the Savannah basin, drained by the Alapaha and Withlacoochee rivers and their tributaries into the Suwannee river and Gulf of Mexico; the Satilla and St. Mary's basin, drained by the Satilla river through St. Andrew's sound and by the St. Mary's through Cumberland sound into the Atlantic ocean. Between these two rivers lies the noted Okefinokee swamp.

Extent and Topography of Georgia.—Georgia, embracing 59,475 square miles, lies between the parallels of 30° 21' and 39° and 35' North latitude, embracing 4° 38' 21". This fact would itself insure variety of climate and productions. This variety is increased by the topography of the country; the northern section containing mountains of from 3000 to 5000 feet above sea level and having an average elevation of more than 1000 feet, while Middle Georgia ranges from 180 to 500 and in a few instances to 1000 feet above sea-level, and Southern Georgia has an average elevation from 100 to 500 feet.

Some of the peaks of the Blue Ridge chain of mountains rise to an elevation of 5000 feet. Some of the most noted peaks are: Sitting Bull (middle summit of Nantahela), in Towns county, 5,046 feet above sea level; Mona (east summit of Nantahela), 5,039 feet; Enota, also in Towns county, 4,797 feet; Rabun Bald in Rabun county, 4,718 feet; Blood, in Union county, 4,468 feet; Tray, in Habersham county, 4,403 feet; Cohutta, in Fannin county, 4,155 feet; Dome, in Towns county, 4,042 feet; Grassy, in Pickens county, 3,290 feet; Tallulah, in Habersham county, 3,172 feet; Yona, in White county, 3,167 feet.

Twenty miles to the west of the Blue Ridge lies the Cohutta range with an average altitude of 3,000 feet above sea level. To the northwest of this range are Lookout and Sand Mountain ranges, spurs of the Alleghanies which, like the Blue Ridge, belong to the great Appalachian mountain system. The highest spur of Lookout Mountain range, High Point, has an elevation of 2,408 feet, while Pigeon Mountain, the northeastern spur of the same range, has at its loftiest point an altitude of 2,331 feet and still another spur, known as Round Mountain, rises to 2,200 feet above the level of the sea. Taylor's Ridge with its prolongation, called the White Oak Mountains, varies in elevation from 1,300 to 1,500 feet, while a little farther south Rocky Face Ridge, rising to a height of from 1,500 to 1,700 feet above sea level, forms the eastern watershed of Chickamauga river, which flows through the valley at an elevation of 900 feet above the sea. Going southward one comes to Pine, Lost and Kennesaw mountains, the last of which with its double peak is 1,809 feet above sea level. In a rolling country of hills and level stretches about 14 miles east of the city of Atlanta, a vast pile of granite, called Stone Mountain, has an elevation of 1,686 feet above the sea and about 700 or 800 feet above the surrounding country. There are a few other elevations in Middle Georgia, which, rising to a considerable height above the level country, are called mountains, as Pine and Oak mountains, on the eastern boundary of Harris county, and Graves mountain in Lincoln county. Sections of Southwest Georgia have hills which rise to an altitude of 500 feet above the level of the sea. About 3,000 square miles of the region along the Atlantic coast have an elevation of 100 feet.

Of nine climate belts found in the United States eight are represented in Georgia, the lowest having a mean annual temperature of less than 40 degrees, the highest, of between 70 and 80 degrees. Of course the lowest in mean annual temperature is found on the highest of the mountain peaks. Below the summit of these loftiest mountains along their sides the mean annual temperature is between 40 and 45 degrees and corresponds with upper New England and New York and the mountain region of the two Virginias. A still larger climate zone of between 45 and 50 degrees of mean annual temperature corresponds with portions of New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio. A narrow strip having between 50 and 55 degrees of mean annual temperature runs northward through North Carolina and Virginia up to New Jersey, while another zone of between 55 and 60 degrees and about three times as large as all the preceding together, passing through both Carolinas ends in Virginia.

Nearly all Middle Georgia is in a climate zone of between 60 and 65 degrees, which corresponds with that of upper Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, West Tennessee and Arkansas and part of Virginia.

Southern Georgia has a climate ranging between 65 and 70 degrees and corresponding with that of Southern Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and upper Florida.

The mean annual temperatures at some of the important stations in North and Middle Georgia are as follows: At Rome, 61.9 degrees; Gainesville, 61.3; Atlanta, 61.4; Carrollton, 62; Athens, 63; Augusta, 64; LaGrange, 64.1; Thomson, 64.7.

For lower Middle and Southern Georgia, these temperatures are at Macon, 66.1 degrees; at Cuthbert, 68.1; at Americus, 68.2; at Brunswick, 68.1.

The only station touching the zone between 70 and 75 degrees of mean annual temperature is Blackshear with 70.2 degrees.

The isothermal line of 80 degrees July temperature runs above Augusta and Macon to West Point. In the greater portion of Middle Georgia above this line and in North Georgia the July temperature is between 75 and 80 degrees.

Below this same isothermal line throughout the greater part of East, Southeast and Southwest Georgia the July temperature is between 80 and 85 degrees.

For the whole State the mean July temperature is 81.8 degrees.

Snow seldom falls in Southern Georgia, and there rarely to a depth of more than two inches. The fall and depth of snow increase slightly in Middle Georgia. In the mountain region the frequency and depth of snow storms show considerable increase.

Atlanta, the capital and largest city, near the border of Middle and Northwest Georgia, situated on a ridge with an average elevation of 1,050 feet above sea level has a mean annual temperature corresponding to that of Washington, St. Louis and Louisville, the winters being warmer and the summers cooler.

The annual average rainfall of Georgia is 49.3 inches. The highest is at Rabun Gap, 71.7 inches and the lowest at Swainsboro, 39.4 inches. At Atlanta it is 52.12 inches. For Middle Georgia the average annual rainfall is 49.7 inches; for East Georgia, 41.4 inches, and for Northwest Georgia 60.3 inches.

The average of the summer rainfall is: for North Georgia, 13.6 inches; for Southwest Georgia, 14.5 inches and for the entire State, 13.4 inches. At different localities representing every section of the State, the summer rainfall averages: in Rome, 10.2 inches; Atlanta, 10.8 inches; Rabun Gap, 15.4 inches; Americus, 16 inches; Brunswick, 16.6 inches.

Agriculture.—With its great variety of climate, owing to its nearly four and a half degrees of latitude and the varying altitudes of its different sections, Georgia can raise the greatest variety of products of any State in the Union. The crops and fruits of every section of our country are found within its borders.

On the extreme southern section of its mainland and on its sea-islands are grown also many of the fruits of the tropics, such as oranges, lemons, bananas, etc. In every section of Georgia are found pomegranates and figs.

In Northwest Georgia there is great variety of surface and soil. There is abundance of land, either rolling or entirely level, well adapted to the growing of corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, buckwheat, cow-peas, vegetables, clover, timothy, orchard grass, Bermuda, Johnson, red-top and many other grasses useful for hay and pasture. Fine cotton is produced also as far north as Floyd county, above which very little of this crop is raised. There is also in this section a great variety of the finest fruits, such as peaches, apples, pears, cherries, and all kinds of berries and grapes. Some of the most noted valleys are Cedar, Texas, Broomtown and Vann's.

In Northeast Georgia, the most mountainous and most thinly inhabited section, but little over 12 per cent. of the land is under cultivation. Much of the tillable land, however, has a very rich, dark red soil. Little Tennessee valley in Rabun county and Nacoochee valley in White county are noted for fertility and bear all kinds of crops, grasses and fruits.

Of the area known as Middle Georgia 75 per cent. is under cultivation. The central cotton region of the State includes the southern part of Middle and large areas of Southern Georgia. The region embraces the sand and pine hills belt, covering about 3000 square miles, and the red hills belt and yellow loam region, these two including together about 6,650 square miles. Throughout this area, except in the sand hills belt are raised large crops of corn and cotton.

Along the coast lands embracing an area of about 2,045 square miles rice is extensively cultivated and the Georgia sea-islands produce most of the finest cotton known to commerce.

All over Middle and Southern Georgia grows the sugar-cane, which is richer in saccharine matter than any other known plant from which sugar is extracted.

The average yield of sugar cane to the acre, about 200 gallons of syrup, is far below that obtained by the best cultivation. Many farmers in Georgia have obtained by employing the best methods from 500 to 700 gallons to the acre.

The United States census of 1900 reports the crop of 1899, which was one of the poorest seasons that Georgia has known in a long time for all kinds of crops and horticultural products. By that census the total value of Georgia's agricultural products was $86,345,343. Of this amount, $42,534,235 represented the value of the cotton crop and $17,158,868 that of the corn crop. The sugar-cane brought $1,690,000; Irish potatoes, $326,856; sweet potatoes, $2,354,390 and miscellaneous vegetables $3,009,306. The peach crop for the census year (1899) was almost entirely wiped out by late frosts. The normal value of Georgia's corn has for several years been in the neighborhood of $19,000,000 and the United States Department of Agriculture in 1902 reported Georgia's cotton crop to be above $69,000,000 in value, the sum of these two crops alone showing a greater value than all the agricultural products of the State combined in the census year.

Georgia has in her commercial orchards more than 16,000,000 peachtrees, of which over half are now in bearing. In an ordinarily good fruit year the peach crop of Georgia is worth at least $4,000,000 and in some years will go far ahead of those figures. The agricultural and horticultural products of Georgia combined will in a good season considerably exceed in value $100,000,000. Georgia outranks all the States in the quality and value of her watermelons. So large is their shipment and sale that they rank as one of the great money crops of the State. As many as 316,000 watermelons have been sold in Augusta or shipped from that city in a single season. In Georgia more than 100,000 acres are devoted to their culture and the number of cars needed in their transportation is in excess of 10,000 a year.

One of the finest and richest of nuts, the common black walnut grows abundantly in Georgia. English walnuts and pecans also do well in every section of Georgia. There is a large pecan grove near West Point, one in Jasper county, near Monticello, several groves in Mitchell county, one of which covers 100 acres; a grove of 1,000 trees in Dougherty county, several groves in Berrien county, near Tifton; also groves in Hancock and Spalding counties, a large grove near Rome, trees which bear abundantly in Richmond county and in the city of Augusta.

Peanuts or ground-peas (also called goobers) are raised in abundance all over Georgia. The spreading branches of the white peanut lie flat upon the ground, while those of the red peanut and Spanish peanut have an upright growth. The Spanish peanuts mature earlier than the others and are the surest crop of the three. The peanuts growing in Georgia's most southern section are valuable for making peanut oil. The harvesting must take place before frost. The yield of nuts is from 30 to 50 bushels and some times 100 bushels to the acre. Well cured peanut hay makes fine stock feed, especially for ewes in lambing season.

The chufa, a species of ground or grass nut, has a pleasant taste and is highly esteemed by some farmers as a fattening food for hogs.

Cassava (the variety known as sweet cassava) though a new crop to Georgia, has done splendidly, wherever it has had a fair trial, through the whole Southern section of the State. From its roots are made the best of starch and from them also can be prepared tapioca and other excellent dishes for the table. As stock feed they are first class. The most important value of cassava is its ability to produce the best starch known to commerce. On one acre of South Georgia land with proper cultivation it will yield 4000 pounds of starch, while the best corn or potato lands of Illinois or Michigan can produce only 1,200 pounds of starch from these vegetables.

Stock Raising is very profitable to those engaged in it. In North Georgia the slopes of the mountains and hills are well suited to the grazing of stock and the long level stretches of the wiregrass or South Georgia section are especially suited to this purpose. In Southern Georgia cattle and sheep need very little shelter and for only a few weeks of the winter. There are in every section of Georgia model dairy herds of high grade cattle and many farmers are paying attention to the raising of the best types of beef-cattle. Horses, mules, swine and poultry are plentiful for all purposes. In 1900 the total value of all live stock on farms, including poultry, was $35,200,507 and the total value of all domestic animals not on farms was estimated at $2,281,059, making in all $37,481,566.

The number of specified domestic animals on farms in 1900 was: Dairy cows, 276,024; other neat cattle, 623,467; horses, 127,407; mules and asses, 267,840; sheep (lambs not included), 258,894; swine, 1,424,298. Of poultry there were 4,549,144 chickens, 103,416 turkeys, 208,997 geese and 64,895 ducks. The total value of all the poultry was $1,458,055. There were 187,919 swarms of bees valued at $243,769.

The Forest Timbers of Georgia are many and valuable. Those of Northwest Georgia embrace six varieties of oak (red, white mountain or chestnut, black, water and post oak), two varieties of pine (short-leaf and long-leaf, the latter differing from the long-leaf of Southern Georgia), poplar, ash, beech, elm, chestnut, hickory, maple, (including the sugar maple), walnut, iron-wood, sugar-berry, sycamore, sweet-gum, black-gum, dogwood, persimmon, sassafras, wild cherry, red-bud, warhoo and cedar. Many of these are found in large quantities and are useful for the manufacture of furniture and hardwood finish for dwellings. The oaks and pines are much used in the construction of buildings, the manufacture of furniture, farming utensils, wagons, etc. Large quantities of the oak and pine are annually shipped.

In the forests of Northeast and Middle Georgia are found in the red lands, Spanish, white and post oaks, hickory, chestnut, dogwood, persimmon, sassafras and in the lowlands of some of the counties short-leaf pine, poplar, ash, walnut, cherry and buck-eye. There is more hickory and less pine than on gray, sandy land. With these black-jack is freely interspersed.

Throughout the sand and pine-hills belt of Middle and South Georgia the prevailing timbers are pines, both long and short-leaf. There are also found some scrub black-jack, oak, sweet-gums and dogwood and along the streams are undergrowth of bay and gall-berry bushes.

Among the red hills throughout the section lying between the Savannah and Flint rivers, the timbers are oak, hickory, short leaf pine and dogwood, with beech, maple and poplar on the lowlands.

Throughout the Yellow-loam region are oak, hickory and long-leaf pines.

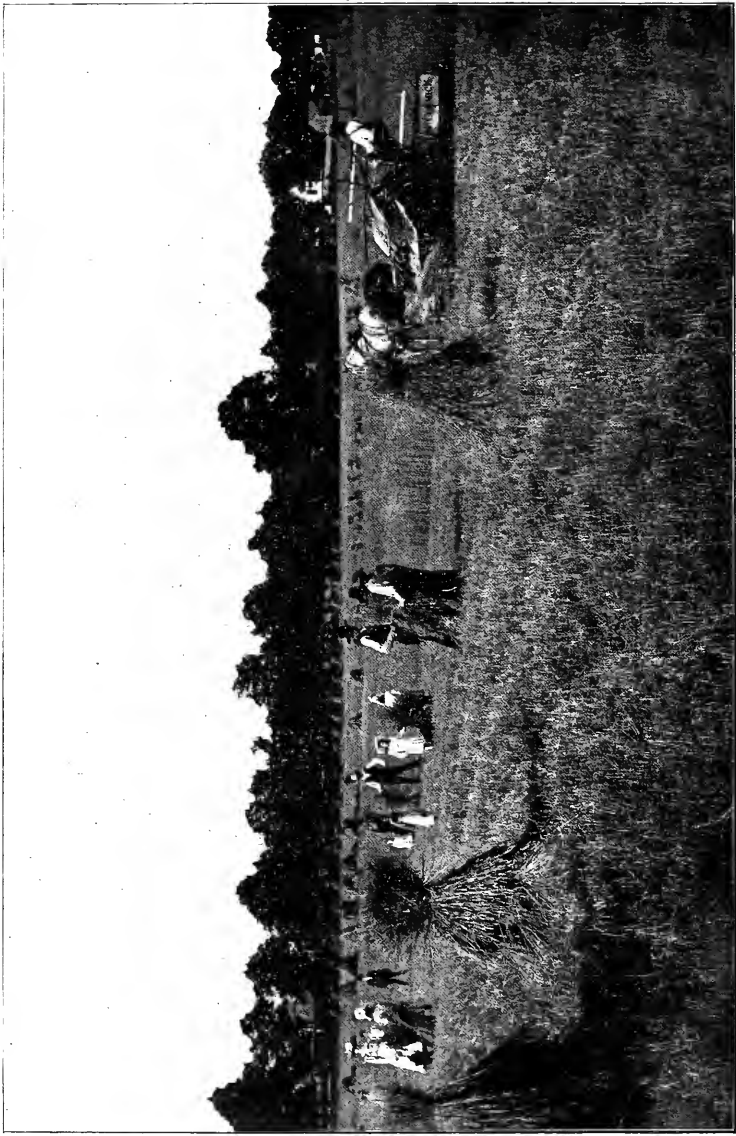

What is known as the long-leaf pine region embraces 17,000 square miles. The forests of this section are a great source of wealth to the State. The timber lands are being put under cultivation, as fast as they are cleared. The pine and palmetto flats around Okefinokee swamp furnish large quantities of long-leaf pine, cypress and saw palmetto, which are found also along the creek bottom and hummock lands, together with black-gum, tupelo gum, titi and maple.

Throughout the coast region are found also magnificent live-oaks, red and water oaks, red cedar, hickory, chincapin, sassafras, cabbage and blue palmetto.

Geology and Mining.—Georgia is divided into three main geological areas. The Palaeozoic division in which are represented Cambrian, Silurian, Devonian and Carboniferous formations is found in the Northwest section of Georgia and embraces the counties of Dade, Walker, Catoosa, Whitfield, Chattooga, Floyd and the larger portions of Murray, Gordon, Bartow and Polk. Shales, sandstones, limestone, quartzites and cherts are abundant. Valuable deposits of coal, iron, manganese, roofing slate and aluminum (or bauxite) are found in this region of parallel mountain ridges and valleys. The Crystalline area includes a much larger portion of the State, embracing all those parts not in the Palaeozoic area that run north of a line drawn from northeast to southwest, through Augusta, Milledgeville, Macon and Columbus. Here are found granites, gneisses and schists, while on the border of the Palaeozoic and Crystalline areas are found the marbles for which Georgia has become famous in every section of the Union. The marble belt traverses Fannin, Gilmer, Pickens, and Cherokee counties, and the most important quarries are found in Pickens county.

Many localities in the Crystalline are rich in granite and gneiss, and in several portions of this same area corundum is found in considerable quantities.

Before the discovery of gold in California the gold mines of Georgia were highly esteemed. For a time the excitement over the rich mines of California caused a great decrease in mining operations in Georgia. But in recent years there has been a great awakening in the gold region of the State. The gold deposits are found in four belts, of which, the first runs through Rabun, Habersham, White, Lumpkin, Dawson, Forsyth, Cherokee, Cobb, Bartow, Paulding and Haralson counties. The second belt traverses Rabun, Habersham, Hall, Gwinnett, Forsyth, Milton, DeKalb and Fulton counties. A third gold belt passes across Cobb, Paulding and Carroll counties. There is a fourth gold belt which passes through Lincoln, Columbia, McDuffie and Warren counties in the southeast part of the Crystalline area. In the counties of Towns, Union, Gilmer, Fannin and Meriwether are scattering deposits of gold.

The coal fields of Georgia are mostly in Dade and Walker counties.

The iron ores are in the Palaeozoic area, the brown ores being found in Bartow, Polk and Floyd counties, and the red ores being mined in Walker and Chattooga counties.

There are large deposits of bauxite (or aluminum) in Georgia. The most extensive are in Floyd and Bartow counties, but this mineral is also found in Polk, Walker and Chattooga counties.

Deposits of Corundum occur in Rabun, Towns, Union, Habersham, Carroll and Heard counties. Near the Carolina line in Rabun county on Laurel creek is the largest corundum mine in Georgia and one of the most noted in the United States.

Of other minerals pyrite is found in Lumpkin county, copper in Murray and Fannin counties; talc in Murray, Fannin and Cherokee; mica in Union and Fannin, and barite in Bartow.

Near the town of Emerson, in Bartow county, graphite abounds.

Several precious stones are found in Georgia: amethysts in Rabun county; a few diamonds in Hall; some good moonstones in Upson county, and in the northeast part of the Crystalline area have been found rubies and sapphires of small size.

Limestone for calcimining is found not only in the Palaeozoic and Crystalline areas in Northwest and Northeast Georgia, but also in localities in the coastal plain region which includes all the Southern part of Georgia. In this coastal plain region marls and phosphate abound.

Limestone for building purposes is found in beds throughout the counties embraced in the Palaeozoic area and in Hall and Habersham counties of the Crystalline area. Through all that part of Georgia north of what is called the fall line which runs from Augusta through Macon to Columbus are found clays suitable for the manufacture of common brick and the coarser grades of earthenware.

Immediately below this fall line there is a narrow belt running across the State in which are found clays suitable for the manufacture of porcelain, enameled brick, china ware, terra cotta, sewer pipes, etc.

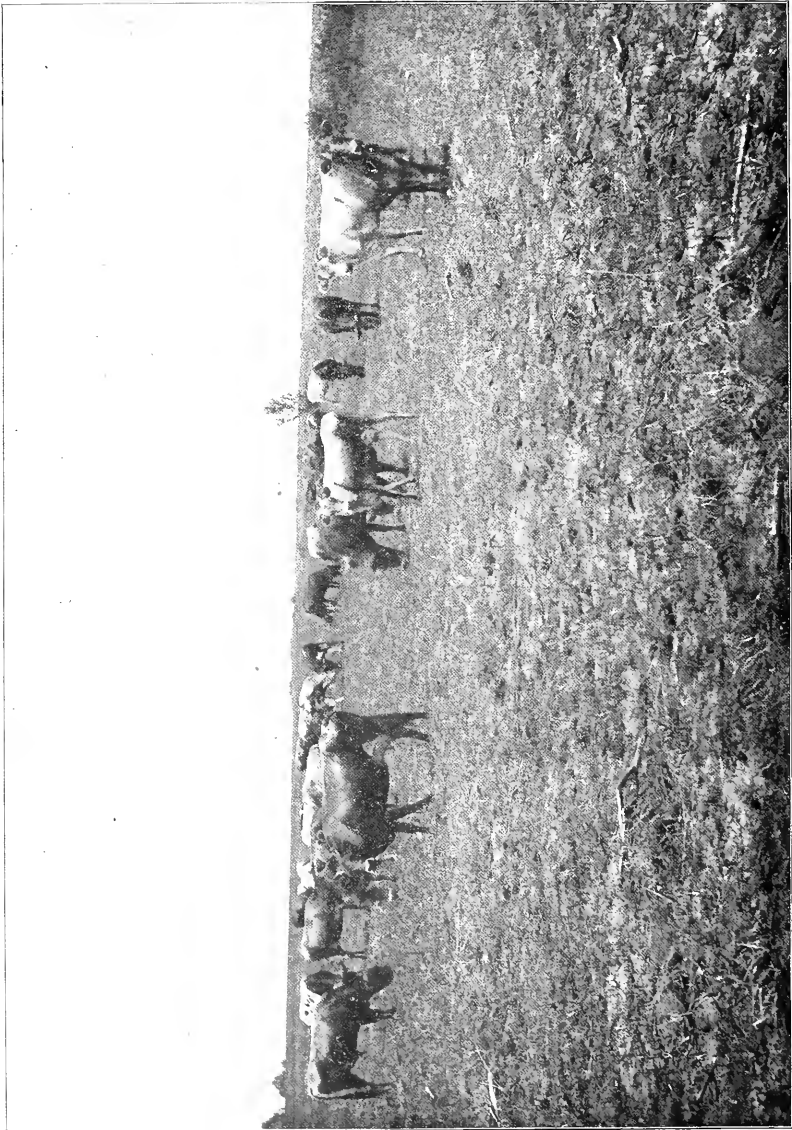

The annual output of all the minerals of Georgia is about $5,000,000.

Mineral Springs are found in Georgia in the Palaeozoic and Crystalline areas. Among those of medicinal value are chalybeate, sulphurous and lithia waters. According to the report of the United States Geological Survey, the output of the mineral waters of Georgia in 1898 was 197,100 gallons, valued at $39,230.

Artesian Wells are confined to the coastal plain region. Almost all this portion of the State is underlaid by pervious beds, which, when pierced by the drill, furnish large quantities of pure, wholesome water. Not all these water-bearing beds furnish flowing wells. But those non-flowing wells furnish large quantities of pure water, which can be brought to the surface by pumps.

The average depths of the wells already bored is about 450 feet. The various strata penetrated consist of soft limestones, clays and sands. Thus the wells can be had for very little outlay of money.

The sanitary advantages that have resulted to many towns and localities all over the South Georgia coastal plain through the pure wholesome drinking water of the artesian wells, are seen in the fact that sections once dreaded as malarial and sickly are now considered among the most salubrious in the State and are increasing more rapidly in population than even the hill country of North Georgia.

Water Powers.—The streams of Georgia furnish water powers in numerous localities in varying amounts from the little cascade that runs a small neighborhood mill, to the great shoals and falls that furnish from 20,000 to 30,000 horse powers, and run mighty flouring mills and cotton factories.

With the exception of a few notable cases, the largest water powers of Georgia occur at or just above what is known as the Southern Fall Line, running from Augusta on the northeast down through Macon in Central Georgia to Columbus on the southwest, where the streams pass from the hard rocks of the Crystalline area to the softer formations of the coastal plain; and on the western Fall Line, formed by the contact of the Palaeozoic and Crystalline areas in the northwest, passing through Polk, Bartow, Gordon and Murray counties.

Along these fall lines are located the larger water powers. But numerous other powers are to be found at various points on different streams throughout the State.

Manufactures.—As we have already said, it was on account of her manufacturing enterprises and the energy displayed by her in the construction of railroads that Georgia in the later thirties received the title still worthily worn, "Empire State of the South." Georgia still stands with the foremost of the Southern States in the variety and value of its manufactures and the number of its manufacturing establishments. According to the census of 1900 the total value of Georgia's manufactures was $89,789,656. There have been since that time great strides forward in every kind of manufacture. In 1901 the United States Department of Agriculture reported an increase from 68 cotton mills with 817,345 spindles and 19,398 looms in 1899 (the year for which the census of 1900 reported), to 86 mills with 969,364 spindles in operation in 1900 stated that 28 more mills were completed during 1900, with 13 more in process of construction.

This report agrees very closely with one prepared in the summer of 1901 by the Georgia Department of Agriculture, which contained the names of 111 mills in operation with 1,192,486 spindles and 26,645 looms. In bleached cotton goods Georgia stands fourth in the Union with 24,265,533 square yards. The cotton gins which in 1900 numbered 4,729, running for four months, have increased to more than 5,000. It was while Eli Whitney was living in Georgia that he invented the cotton gin.

The cotton oil mills in operation in 1901 numbered 58 and paid above $5,000,000 for cotton seed, whose finished products were valued at $14,000,000. At the present time there are 104 cotton oil mills and the increase of their business has been correspondingly great.

The fertilizer factories registered with the Commissioner of Agriculture for the season of 1903 and 1904 number 145. Many of these do a very heavy business all over the Southern States.

Georgia stands ahead of all the States in the manufacture of turpentine and resin and in 1900 exported 14,623,328 gallons of spirits of turpentine and 1,408,928 barrels of turpentine, rosin and pitch. There were reported in 1900, 1,254 establishments with a capital of $11,892,716 engaged in the lumber industry.

Other Manufactures are printing establishments, flour and grist mills, woolen mills, furniture factories, ornamental iron works, foundries, blast furnaces, carriage factories, car shops, black-smithing and wheelwrighting, manufactories of brick, tile and pottery, manufactories of paints, chemicals, ice, electric-light plants, carpenter work, canning factories, creameries and numerous others. Among the most important manufactories of the State are the marble and stone works, turning out the building and paving stones and splendid marbles for which Georgia is so famous throughout the Union.

When the colony of Georgia was founded by Oglethorpe, it was intended to be a silk producing country. Efforts are being made to revive this industry. In 1902 a silk-growers association was formed in Atlanta consisting of members from many districts in the State. A plan is now on foot to construct a silk mill with a very large capital at Tallulah Falls.

Railroads.—Georgia has a magnificent system of railroads whose total mileage in the State is 6,035.32, and is being increased each year. The great trunk lines are the Central of Georgia with 1,302.23 miles; Southern with 919.90 miles; Seaboard Air Line with 649.49 miles; Atlantic Coast Line with 667.70 miles, and the Georgia Railroad with 302.50 miles. The combined mileage of the other railroads of Georgia is 2,194.50. Electric lines traverse not only all the large cities, but many of the smaller cities and towns, connecting them with their suburbs and in many instances with neighboring towns. The grand trunk lines are very energetic in advertising the advantages of the sections through which they pass, the Southern and Central being especially noted for the good work which they are doing for Georgia.

Good Roads.—The number of good country roads is rapidly increasing all over the State. Among the best are the roads running out from Atlanta to College Park, Peachtree Creek, the water works and Decatur. Many miles of well-graded macadamized roads are found in the counties of Fulton, Floyd, Bartow, Bibb, Richmond, Jefferson, Emanuel, Spalding, Meriwether and Chatham. The shellroad from Savannah to Bonaventure and Thunderbolt, also the road from that city to Beaulieu and Isle of Hope were noted before the Civil War. Some of the macadamized roads leading out from Rome in Floyd county are built of hard limestone and marble. The country roads which radiate from Augusta and Macon, forming the favorite drives of the citizens, are among the best. The same may be said of the shellroads of Glynn county centering in the city of Brunswick, and of the well-graded drives through the fragrant pines that go out from Thomasville into the surrounding country.

Mail Facilities.—Not only do the cities and towns of Georgia have the best of mail facilities, but through the bounty of "Uncle Sam," the farmers in every section have the rural free delivery which furnishes them letters and daily papers on the date of publication.

Banks.—There are in Georgia 39 national banks with a capital stock of $5,046,000, deposits of $20,000,000 and reserve of about $9,000,000. There are 243 other banks with $10,100,000 capital and over $30,000,000 deposits.

Assessed Valuation.—In 1903 according to the report of the comptroller-general, the assessed valuation of property in Georgia was $467,310,646; in 1900 it was $489,000,000. The bonded debt was $7,531,500 net and the tax rate was $5.30 per $1,000.

Education.—Georgia is well provided with schools, both public and private. The public school system is an excellent one and is constantly being improved.

It embraces 7,700 schools, of which 4,919 are for white children and 2,781 for colored. Of a total of 9,180 teachers, 5,997 are white and 3,183 colored. Of teachers who have enjoyed a normal school training there are 1,791 white and 447 colored, 2,238 in all. The number of pupils enrolled in 1902 was 258,984 white and 216,359 colored, being a total of 439,645.

The average daily attendance was 159,562 white and 105,826 colored, a total of 265,388. One of the leading higher institutions of learning in the State is the University of Georgia, of which the principal buildings are at Athens. This has numerous branches as follows: North Georgia Agricultural College at Dahlonega; Georgia School of Technology, at Atlanta; Georgia Normal and Industrial College for Ladies, at Milledgeville; Georgia State Normal College for both sexes, at Athens; Georgia State Industrial College for Colored Youths, near Savannah.

Several other noted schools are affiliated with the University of Georgia, but do not receive State funds. These are: South Georgia Military and Agricultural College at Thomasville; Middle Georgia Military and Agricultural College, at Hamilton. The Augusta Medical College is one of the departments of the State University. In Atlanta are two medical colleges, and one dental college.

Two of the most noted colleges of the South are in Georgia: Emory College at Oxford, the property of the North and South Georgia and Florida Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church (South) and Mercer University, the property of the Baptists of Georgia.

The first college in the world chartered for the purpose of bestowing literary degrees upon ladies is Wesleyan Female College at Macon, the property of the Methodists of Georgia and Florida. Shorter College, a Baptist institution, at Rome, was built and endowed by Alfred Shorter, of Rome, and Agnes Scott Institute at Decatur was built by Colonel George W. Scott, liberally endowed and turned over to the Presbyterian Synod of Georgia. Lucy Cobb Institute at Athens was founded mostly through the efforts of General Thomas R. R. Cobb, one of Georgia's greatest orators and most gallant soldiers. Other excellent colleges are: Southern Female College, College Park, near Atlanta; Southern Female College at LaGrange; LaGrange Female College at LaGrange; Andrew Female at Cuthbert; Monroe Female College, at Forsyth; St. Stanislaus College for Roman Catholic priests, near Macon; Young L. Harris Institute at the town of Young Harris; Brenau Female College, at Gainesville; Piedmont Institute, Rockmart; South Georgia College at McRae. With the exception of the State Industrial College for Colored Youths at College near Savannah, all the above named institutions are for whites exclusively.

For the colored people there are the following institutions: Atlanta University, Clark University, Spellman Seminary, Morris Brown College and Gammon University, all at Atlanta; Payne Institute, at Augusta, under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In the private schools and colleges of Georgia, are 10,097 whites and 4,877 colored pupils, being a total of 14,974.

Religion.—The leading Christian denominations are well represented in Georgia, the Baptists and Methodists being the most powerful in numbers, wealth and influence. The Baptists have a total active membership of 368,000. The church buildings number 3,586. In their Sunday-schools are 76,052 pupils. The Methodists have 272,000 members, 3,205 churches, and 117,828 Sunday-school pupils. The Presbyterians have 18,000 church members, 237 church buildings and 12,600 Sunday-school pupils. The Congregationalists have 4,714 members, 65 church buildings and 4,284 Sunday-school pupils. There are 7,976 Episcopalians with 137 church buildings and 4,400 Sunday-school pupils. The Disciples of Christ have 9,805 members, 110 church buildings and 3,147 Sunday-school pupils. The Roman Catholics have 20,000 church members, 40 church buildings and 2,500 pupils. The Hebrews in Georgia number about 6,200.

Charitable Institutions.—Georgia has many benevolent institutions, some of the most prominent of which are: The Orphan House at Bethesda, near Savannah, founded in 1739 by Rev. George Whitefield in whose honor one of the counties of Georgia was named; the State Lunatic Asylum at Milledgeville; Georgia Institute for the Deaf and Dumb at Cave Spring; Academy for the Blind at Macon; Female Asylum at Savannah; Augusta Orphan Asylum at Augusta; Orphan Home of the North Georgia Conference of the M. E. Church, South, at Decatur, about eight miles from the city of Atlanta; Orphan Home of the South Georgia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Macon; Mumford Institute Home for Boys and Girls, near Macon; Appleton Orphan Home (Episcopal), at Macon; Baptist Orphans' Home, Hapeville, near Atlanta, and the Abram's Home for widows (a Hebrew institution), in Savannah.

State Government.—The present constitution of the State of Georgia, which was adopted in 1877, guards carefully the rights of the people and prevents extravagant appropriations by the Legislature. The governor is elected for two years and can be re-elected for a second term; after that he retires. His salary is $5000 per annum. The State House officers are as follows: Attorney-General, Comptroller-General, Adjutant-General, Treasurer, Secretary of State, State School Commissioner, Commissioner of Agriculture, State Geologist, State Librarian, Commissioner of Pensions, three Prison Commissioners and three Railroad Commissioners.

The Supreme Court consists of one Chief Justice and five Associate Justices. There are 24 Superior Court Circuits, each having a judge and solicitor. Georgia is represented in the National Congress by two Senators and eleven Representatives. Thus the State has 13 votes in the electoral college.

Political Divisions and Population.—Georgia has 137 counties enjoying such privileges of self-government, that one of the United States government publications speaks of them as 137 little commonwealths. As has been said already, the population of Georgia has shown a steady increase from the first census in 1790 to the last in 1900.

We give here the population of Georgia at each Federal census:

82,548 in 1790.	906,185 in 1850.
162,686 in 1800.	1,057,286 in 1860.
252,433 in 1810.	1,184,109 in 1870.
340,985 in 1820.	1,542,180 in 1880.
576,823 in 1830.	1,837,353 in 1890.
691,392 in 1840.	2,216,331 in 1900.

The total white population in 1900 was 1,181,109 and the total negro population was 1,034,998. There were besides 204 Chinese, 1 Jap and 19 Indians. The foreign born population numbered 7,603 males and 4,800 females, a total of 12,403.

There are 372 incorporated places in Georgia, of which 40 had a population in 1900 of more than 2,000. Of these 13 had a population in excess of 5,000. Atlanta, the capital, had 89,872 and with its usual ratio of growth, has now more than 100,000. Savannah, the chief seaport, had 54,244, but at this time has more than 60,000. Augusta, the greatest cotton manufacturing city of the South, had 39,441, but now has 45,000. Macon, which had 23,272, has now at least 30,000. Columbus, the second great cotton manufacturing city of the South, had 17,614 and is now estimated to contain 20,000 inhabitants. The other cities of Georgia, which in 1900 had a population in excess of 5,000, are: Athens, 10,245; Brunswick, 9,081; Americus, 7,674; Rome, 7,291; and including suburbs, 14,000; Griffin, 6,857; Waycross, 5,919; Valdosta, 5,613; Thomasville, 5,322.

Some other important and rapidly growing towns of Georgia are here given with their population in 1900: Cartersville, 3,135; Cedartown, 2,823; Dalton, 4,315; Gainesville, 4,382; Toccoa, 2,176; Marietta, 4,446; Elberton, 3,834; Covington, 2,062; Milledgeville, 4,219 (the former capital of the State); Washington, 3,300; Barnesville, 3,036; Tallapoosa, 2,128; Newnan, 3,654; LaGrange, 4,274; Waynesboro, 2,030; Sandersville, 2,023; Dublin, 2,987; Hawkinsville, 2,103; Fort Valley, 2,022; Dawson, 2,926; Cuthbert, 2,641; Cordele, 3,473; Albany, 4,606; Bainbridge, 2,641; Thomasville, 5,322; Moultrie, 2,221; Quitman, 2,281; Madison, 1,992; Eatonton, 1,823.

PART II.

GEORGIA BY SECTIONS

North Georgia.—This section of the State was the home of the Cherokee Indians until 1838, when these original owners of the soil were moved to lands west of the Mississippi river provided for them by the government of the United States. Although in Dade and Walker counties are found the coal mines of Georgia, the lands there are also very productive of wheat, corn, oats, barley, rye, hay, clover, Irish potatoes, and vegetables common to both the North and South. Lookout Valley in Dade, McLemore's Cove, Peavine, Armuchee and Chickamauga valleys in Walker, cannot be excelled in fertility by any lands of Georgia. The vacant lands, woods and mountain slopes afford splendid range for stock, such as sheep, cattle and swine, all of which are raised throughout this section in considerable numbers.

Chickamauga Creek and Chattooga river afford fine water powers, which have been well utilized. Dade, Walker, Catoosa, Whitfield, Murray, Gordon, Chattooga, Floyd, Bartow, Polk, Paulding, Cobb, Cherokee, Pickens, Gilmer and Fannin should all be included in northwest Georgia. This section is rich in minerals such as coal, iron, ochre, manganese, bauxite (aluminum), and gold, and abounds also in the finest marble. The Georgia marble quarried in Pickens, Cherokee, and Gilmer counties, varies from pure white to pink, gray, chocolate brown and dark green, and has been employed in the construction of noted buildings in every part of the Union. No higher tribute to its excellence can be given than the fact that with Vermont so near by, Georgia marble has been employed in the structure of the State capitols of Rhode Island and Maine, St. Luke's Hospital and the New Stock Exchange in New York and the Corcoran Art Gallery in Washington. To the list of buildings which have used Georgia marble in their construction we must add the United States Government Building at Boston, Massachusetts, and the State capitol of Minnesota, and in the interior finish the Georgia capitol and the Piedmont Hotel in Atlanta. From Holly Springs in Cherokee county beautiful serpentine has been procured for the decoration of buildings, as may be seen, in Chicago and in the Prudential Building of Atlanta. Monoliths of Georgia marble suitable for huge columns can be quarried with ease, near Graysville, in Catoosa county. In Taylor's Ridge and neighboring mountains, sandstone has been quarried to a large extent.

Yellow ochre, a kind of iron ore used in the manufacture of paint, abounds in Bartow county and much of it has been shipped to England to be used in the manufacture of linoleum. At Emerson in the same county is a factory for the manufacture of hydraulic cement and near by are quantities of iron ore. Graphite also is mined here.

This beautiful section of the State, in addition to its mineral wealth, has some of the finest lands in Georgia. The bottom and valley lands are very fertile, producing the finest of the wheat, rye and oats, splendid crops of corn, every vegetable grown in the North and South and on some of the lands is grown the best of upland cotton, which from its superior quality commands the highest prices in the market. On the hill slopes are orchards of peaches, apples and the various small fruits. Berries of every variety and of the finest quality are raised for home consumption and for the western markets.

Manufacture, commerce and agriculture all combine to make a busy, prosperous country. Hence growing cities and towns are found on its lines of railway.

HARVESTING RYE.

Rome, in Floyd county, the largest city of Northwest Georgia, has a very picturesque situation on hills and in the valley between the Etowah and Oostenaula at the point where they unite to form the Coosa. It is a great railroad center and at the same time has a good steamboat trade on the Oostenaula and Coosa. It has street cars, electric lights, water works, manufactures of iron, cotton, furniture, etc. It has handsome residences and public buildings, a good system of public schools, is the seat of Shorter College for ladies and is well supplied with churches of the different Christian denominations. Population, including suburbs, 14,000; in the corporate limits, 7,291 of whom 4,457 are white and 2,834 colored.

Floyd is a great agricultural county, yielding bountifully grasses, clover and all the cereals, many of the lands easily yielding 50 bushels of corn and 40 of wheat to the acre, and producing besides the best quality of upland cotton. In fruits and berries, Floyd is unsurpassed. Pecan trees also bear well in Floyd.

Cave Spring, in the beautiful and fertile Vann's Valley, has in its limits a large limestone cave in the side of a well-wooded hill, at the foot of which is a spring of clear, mild limestone water. This town is noted as the seat of the Georgia Academy for the Deaf and Dumb, and also contains Hearn Institute, Hearn Female Seminary and the Wesleyan Institute. Here also is a plant for steel and manganese and an electric plant.

At Lindale the proprietors of the great cotton factory have erected an elegant school building with library and reading room lighted by electricity for the benefit of the operatives. The lands in and around Rome as a center, range from $10 to $75 an acre, according to location and fertility.

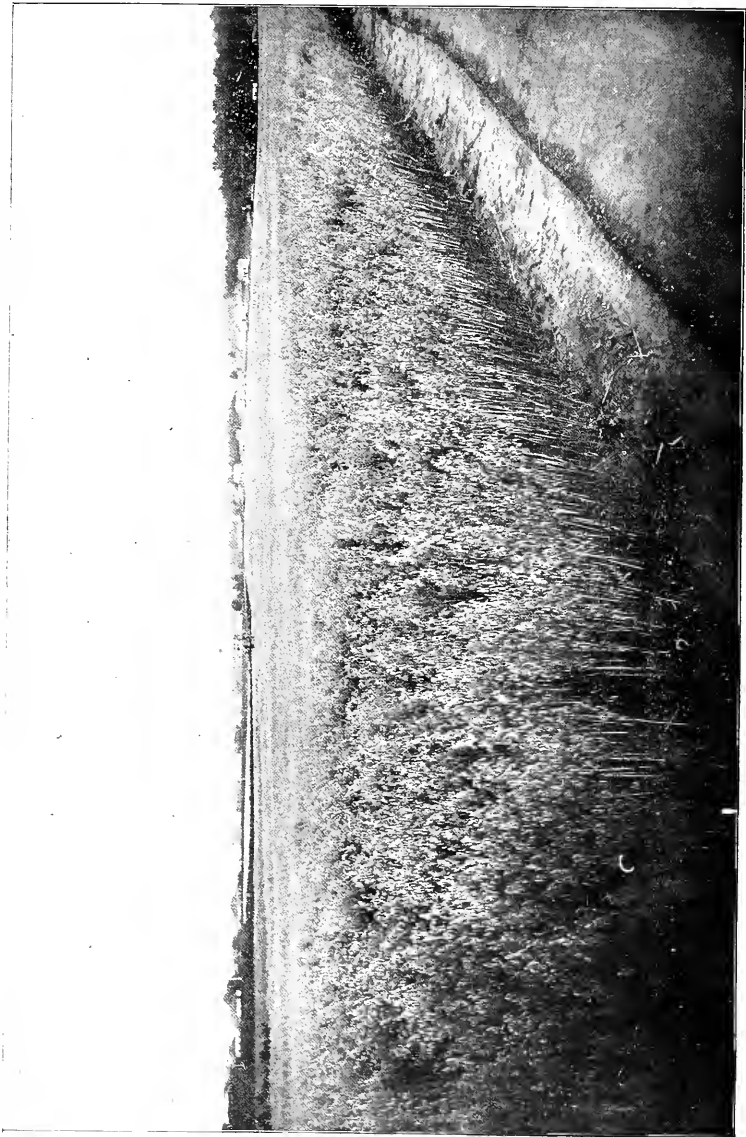

Marietta, in Cobb county, 1,100 feet above sea level, is the next largest town of this section, having a population of 4,446, of which 2,516 are white and 1,930 colored. Not far from the foot of the double-peaked Kennesaw Mountain, it has pure water, a fine climate, good schools, is well supplied with churches, is lighted by electricity, has the largest chair factory and largest paper mill in the State, four marble yards, a large plant for finishing marble, a canning factory, a creamery and other industries. In the beautiful national cemetery are buried 10,000 Federal soldiers. At Kennesaw Mountain was fought one of the great battles of the Atlanta campaign of 1864.

In the northeastern part of Cobb county the splendid water power of the Chattahoochee has built up Roswell, a growing manufacturing town with two large cotton factories and a woolen mill.

At the town of Powder Spring are mineral waters highly impregnated with sulphur and magnesia.

Acworth like Marietta, on the Western and Atlantic railroad, is in the midst of a fine agricultural country and has a large flouring mill, a chair factory and variety works for turning out mantels, wheelbarrows, etc. The surrounding country is also rich in minerals. Cobb county has some lands which readily yield 50 bushels of corn and 40 of wheat to the acre, and also makes good yields of cotton of a superior quality. It is noted also for fine commercial peach orchards and raises in profusion all kinds of fruits, berries and vegetables. The large poultry farm near Smyrna is one of the great enterprises of the county. The price of lands in this country vary from $15. to $60. an acre.

Dalton in Whitfield county comes closest to Marietta in size, having a population of 4,315, of whom 3,356 are white and 959 colored. Like Rome and Marietta, it is well supplied with churches and schools, has gas and waterworks, large cotton and flouring mills, canneries and flourishing commercial houses. There is here also a college for young ladies. Dalton has a pretty situation on the Western and Atlantic and Southern railways in a fertile valley, just east of Rocky Face and Chattooga mountains. Though reaching to the Tennessee line, Whitfield county in addition to fine crops of cereals produces cotton of fine quality and like Floyd, Bartow and Cobb, has good dairy farms well stocked with Jerseys and other good breeds. Fruits and vegetables are raised in abundance.

Between Dalton and Marietta on the Western and Atlantic railroad is Cartersville, in Bartow county, the terminus of the East and West railroad which runs in a south-westerly direction into the State of Alabama. All around this thriving little city are fine cotton, corn and wheat lands and in close proximity are beds of iron ore and manganese. Ochre is extensively mined and Cartersvills ranks first in the county in the manufacture of ochre and second in the shipment of manganese. It has a population of 3,135 of which the whites number 1,680 and the blacks 1,455. Cartersville has the conveniences of larger places, such as gas and electric lights, ice factory and waterworks. It also has manufactories of iron and steel. Bartow county is not only a fine agricultural region, but is full of manufacturing plants of every kind and enterprising towns and villages such as Adairsville, which has one of the largest flouring mills in Georgia, Emerson with its cement and plaster works, Cassville with its tannery, and Allatoona with its gold stamping mill.

All through the county in town and country are schools and churches.

Polk is a good county for all farm stock. Many of the lands have rich soil and those of Cedar Valley through which runs Cedar Creek, are equal to the lands in the blue-grass region of Kentucky. They double in some crops the productiveness of other lands that are rated as good and with other crops more than double them.

Cedartown, the county site, so named from the growth of cedar in its vicinity, on the former Chattanooga, Rome and Southern railway, now a part of the Central of Georgia railway system, at the point where it is crossed by the East and West railway, has manufactories of cotton, cotton-seed oil, knitting mills, an iron furnace, electric power cotton gin, a system of waterworks owned by the city and an electric light plant. Population 2,823—white, 2,067, colored 756. The State quarry near Rockmart seems to have an inexhaustible supply of slate for roofing. At this place is the flourishing Piedmont Institute for boys and girls.

Chattooga is a county of market gardens, orchards, minerals and manufactories on a large scale. Splendid crops are raised of corn, wheat, oats, Irish and sweet potatoes, also some cotton. It is a fine country for hay. No finer peaches or strawberries are raised anywhere than on its hills and ridges.

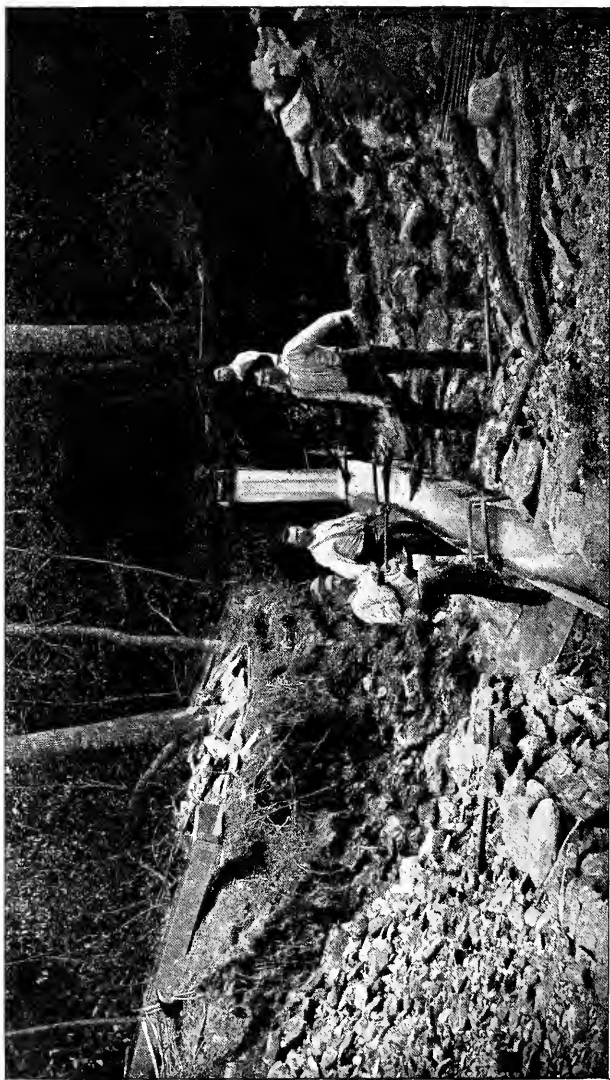

Iron, bauxite, clay, limestone, manganese, coal, slate, talc and sandstone abound. Iron is mined at Dirtseller Mountain, near the town of Lyerly, at Shinbone Ridge near Menlo and Taylor's Ridge near Summerville, and in the town limits of Summerville bauxite is mined. Red iron ore is found in six different veins. Chert is shipped from the neighborhood of Summerville in great quantities. This well built town is surrounded by prosperous farms cultivated after the most approved methods. Near by also are large cotton mills.

Trion with its extensive cotton mills is the largest town in the county (population 1,926).

Flour, grist, saw mills and tanneries are scattered over the county and schools and churches are in every neighborhood.

In this county are the beautiful and fertile valleys of Chattooga, Broomtown and Armuchee.

Catoosa county has fine farming lands with prosperous farms and gardens and rich deposits of building stones of which the sandstones and limestones are of superior quality. In this county is the noted health resort known as Catoosa Springs, famed for the varied mineral waters. The county has flour, grist and lumber mills and is well supplied with schools and churches. Ringgold is its county site beautifully situated on the north and west of Taylor's Ridge. Named for the gallant Marylander who lost his life in the first battle of the Mexican war, this little town was itself the scene of the gallant combat by which General Cleburne in November 1863 saved the artillery and trains of Bragg's defeated army, for which he and his troops received the thanks of the Confederate Congress.

Gordon county, well watered by the Oostenaula, Coosawattee and Connesauga rivers, has soils similar to those of Floyd and Bartow, producing the finest of wheat, oats, rye, corn, potatoes of both kinds, every variety of vegetables and cotton of good quality. It is also a good fruit county. It has deposits of bauxite, limestone, iron and, near the town of Calhoun, black and variegated marbles.

Most of the products of the county are marketed at Calhoun, situated in the rich valley of the Oostenaula on the Western and Atlantic railway. Resaca, named for the second battle of the Mexican war, was itself the scene of fierce fighting in May, 1864, as was also Lay's Ferry.

Flour and grist mills, a large brickyard and many small industries and good commercial houses add to the comforts of the people. Schools and churches are scattered all over the county.

Paulding county has fine bodies of land along the Tallapoosa river, Pumpkinvine, Sweetwater and other creeks, yielding abundantly of the crops already mentioned as produced by other counties of this section.

During the campaign of 1864 for ten days, from May 25th to June 4, there was constant fighting along the line of Pumpkinvine creek from Dallas to Allatoona, marked by the fierce combats of New Hope church, Pickett's Mill and Dallas, the whole series of battles and skirmishes being called by both Johnston and Sherman the battle of New Hope Church and pronounced by Sherman a drawn battle.

There are good water powers on some of the streams and some of them are utilized by grist mills.

With plenty of good freestone water and a healthful climate and schools and churches this is a fine country in which to make a home.

Murray county, though not yet traversed by a railroad, is in easy distance of two great lines and through the Coosawattee which empties into the Oostenaula it has steamboat transportation to Rome, the leading market of Northwest Georgia. The Western and Atlantic railroad runs close to its southwestern line, and Dalton in Whitfield county, where this road crosses the Southern railway, it is the chief market for a large part of Murray county. Well watered by the Connesauga and Coosawattee rivers and their branches, the lands are fertile, producing in abundance the crops already mentioned in the counties of this section and affording also fine pasturage for sheep and cattle. This county is rich in minerals and on the Cohutta Mountains, which cross its eastern section, profitable mining has been done.

Along this beautiful range in sheltered orchards some of the most luscious fruit is grown.

Spring Place, the county site, in the midst of charming scenery, with the Cohutta Mountains in full view, has a handsome Court House, good schools and churches, which are scattered also over every section of the county.

All over the county are mineral springs, of which the Cohutta Springs, ten miles from Spring Place, are the most noted.

Cherokee, Gilmer, Pickens and Fannin are traversed by the Atlanta, Knoxville and Northern Railways, from which at Blue Ridge, the county site of Fannin, there runs off a branch road to the northeast. These counties have already been mentioned as famous for their rich veins of beautiful marble of several varieties. Cherokee is also one of the chief gold mining counties of Georgia and has besides deposits of iron, mica, talc, marble and other minerals. Near Canton, the county site is a spring, strongly impregnated with alum and noted for great curative powers. This town, beautifully situated on an eminence around whose base flows the Etowah river, has a mill for sawing and finishing marble and for monumental work.

HYDRAULIC MINING AT THE SINGLETON GOLD MINE IN LUMPKIN COUNTY.

From the village of Ball Ground runs a short railroad about ten miles long to the quarries.

Pekens is noted for its great abundance of the finest marble, of which vast quantities are blocked out in the quarries and conveyed to Marietta over the Atlanta, Knoxville and Northern railroad. At and near Tate are some of the richest marble quarries of the United States. The crops are those already mentioned as belonging to this section of Georgia and the valley lands are exceedingly fertile.

At Waleska, eight miles from Canton, is the Reinhardt Normal College, a fine school for boys and girls.

The valley lands of Fannin and Gilmer are also very productive. Gold and copper are found in Fannin and gold and iron in Gilmer, in which latter county there is also great abundance of beautiful marble, both the pure white and variegated, limestone, sandstone, mica, slate and granite. Cotton is not raised in Fannin and very little in Gilmer. But there are in the valleys fine crops of wheat, corn, barley and oats. All vegetables do well.

Apples of fine quality are raised in both these counties and can be kept almost from one end of the year to the other.

At Morganton in Fannin is the North Georgia Baptist College, a fine institution.

The railroad has greatly developed both of these counties, as may be seen from the fact that the town of Blue Ridge, the county site of Fannin, had in 1890 only 264 inhabitants and in 1900 contained a population of 1,148, nearly all being white. The negroes in Fannin county number only 296 in a total population of 11,214 and in Gilmer county 77 out of a total of 10,198.

The eastern section of North Georgia embraces the counties of Forsyth, Dawson, Lumpkin, Union, Towns, White, Hall, Rabun, Habersham, Banks, Franklin and Hart.

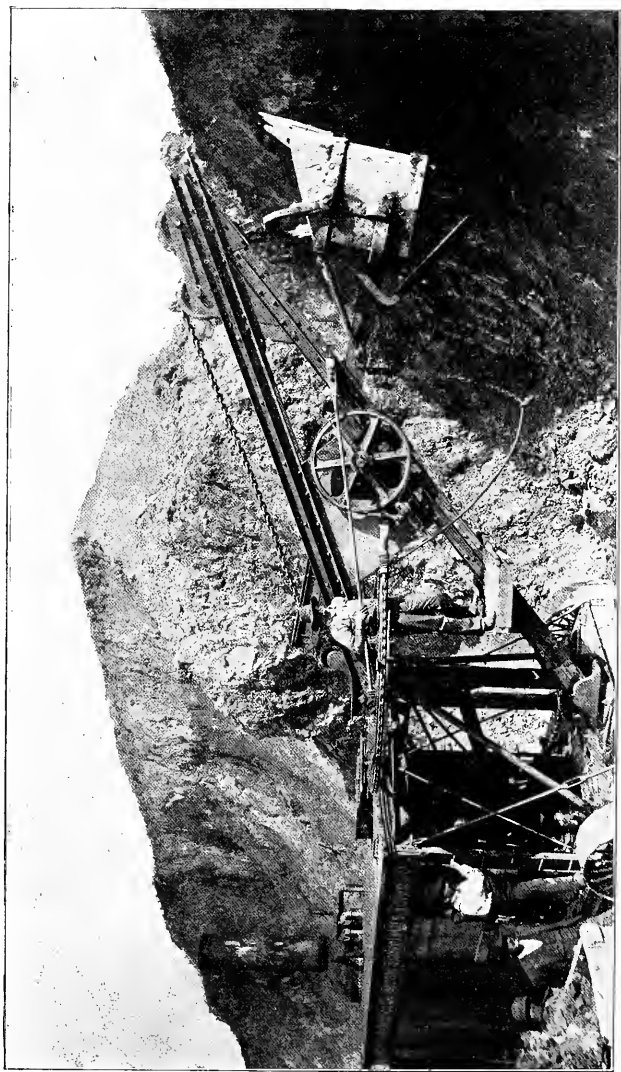

Rabun, Towns and Union form the northern tier of these counties. Close to the northwestern corner of Union county passes the railroad that runs from Blue Ridge in Fannin county to Murphy in North Carolina and a road from Tallulah Falls running northward through Rabun to Franklin in North Carolina is rapidly approaching completion. With these exceptions this part of the mountain section of Georgia is without railroad facilities. The counties of White, Lumpkin, Dawson and Forsyth are also as yet without such advantages. In Towns there is abundance of granite and serpentine quarries for building. Iron, chrome, magnetite, manganese, asbestos, talc, ochre, yellow and red plumbago, buhr, some gems and plenty of corundum are found. At Tate City, there is a large plant for mining corundum. The mountain streams afford fine water powers. At Young Harris is a Methodist college and at Hiwassee is one belonging to the Baptists.

In the western part of Union are found iron ore, alum, sulphate of iron and granite quartz. There are large quarries of millstone of excellent quality. On Ivy Log, Brass Town and Coosa creek gold has been found and also variegated marble.

The mineral products of Rabun are gold, copper, corundum, mica, asbestos and sandstone. Iron, carbonate of iron and alum are found.

The celebrated Tallulah Falls, a succession of beautiful cascades and a grand chasm afford some of the most picturesque views in the United States.

The apples, cabbages and chestnuts produced in this part of the State are very fine. Lumpkin county is in the heart of the gold belt of Georgia. Many millions of dollars have been taken from its mines and for the last half century the vicinity of Dahlonega, its county site, has been the center of the most extensive gold mining operations of Georgia. Just east of Dahlonega is a long line of high ridges and hills extending many miles to the southeast, which form the axis of the gold belt and are covered all over with the prospector's pits, cuts and tunnels. There are twelve gold mines now in operation paying good dividends. In almost every part of the county gold is found and the evidence of its existence every where meets the eye.

MINING IRON ORE BY USE OF THE STEAM SHOVEL, NEAR CEDARTOWN, POLK COUNTY, GA.

Dahlonega, with a population of 1,255, stretches along a high hill commanding a fine view of Walker's Mossy Creek and Yonah mountains.

In White county, which was formed from Lumpkin and Habersham counties, were discovered the first gold mines in Georgia. Gold and asbestos are still mined to a considerable extent. There are several mines of gold and quarries of asbestos and five successful gold mills.

The beautiful Nacoochee Valley, as fertile as it is fair, is in White county.

Dawson county is also in the gold region. On nearly every branch that flows into the Etowah from its north side is a placer gold mine and from the bed of the river itself large quantities of gold have been taken and washed out with an iron pan, rewarding well the labor thus employed. In this county are the falls of Amicalola, from the summit of which the appearance of the range of mountains to the South, and west, can scarcely be surpassed in grandeur.

Forsyth is another gold county. Some of the mines have yielded large amounts of gold. Much of the scenery is beautiful, especially in the neighborhood of Cumming, the county site. Some silver and copper have been found in this county.

In Hall county there are profitable gold mines and iron, lead and silver are found in small quantities. Large quantities of brick and lime are made and there is a large supply of building stones. This county has several valuable waterpowers aggregating 6,000 horse-powers, some of which are utilized by flour and grist mills.

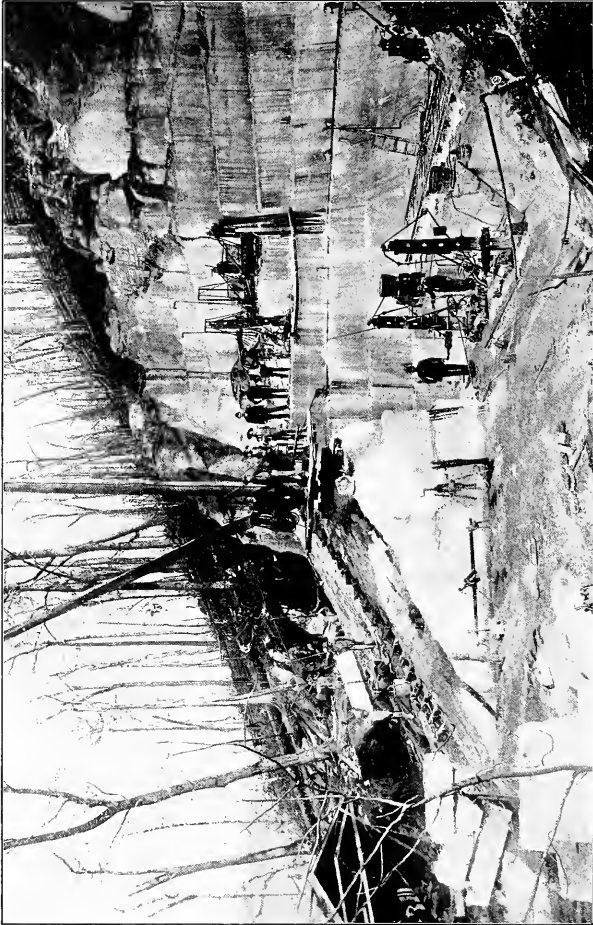

Gainesville, the county site, on the Southern Railway about 53 miles from Atlanta is a growing city in a fine farming county, with manufacturing establishments of many kinds including great cotton mills in and around its corporate limits. The electric light plant and waterworks are owned by the city. The Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern Railway connects Gainesville with Monroe and Social Circle in Walton county and by another branch with Jefferson in Jackson county. Gainesville's total population is 4,382, of which 3,196 are white and 1,186 are colored. In this city are Brenau College and Conservatory of Music for ladies and the Georgia Military Institute for young men. Later estimates place the population of Gainesville at 6,500.

In Habersham county are found iron ore of superior quality, while granite of the very best is found in apparently an inexhaustible supply. There are also large deposits of gold, copper, manganese ochre, marble, slate, graphite, mica, talc and sandstone. Asbestos is being profitably worked. Toccoa is a thriving town of 2,176 inhabitants on the Southern railway at the junction of the Elberton branch with the main trunk line. Within three miles of the town is the beautiful fall of Toccoa. Demorest on the Tallulah Falls Railway has a good trade and commands from all sides a lovely view. Clarkesville on the same railway, from its high ridge near the Soque river, presents to the eye of the tourist a magnificent view of the surrounding country.

Cornelia is a growing place on the Southern Railway with several manufacturing establishments.

Banks, Franklin and Hart complete the list of North Georgia counties. These are fine agricultural counties, but in Franklin and Hart there are also extensive manufacturing, especially in and around Lavonia and Royston in Franklin county and in Hartwell and vicinity in Hart county. Lavonia, the largest town in Franklin county, on a branch of the Southern Railway, has in the town and suburbs, a population of 2,093. At Hartwell is the Hartwell Collegiate institute.

All these Northeast Georgia counties have splendid lands for the production of the staple crops which we have already named in the counties of Northwest Georgia, excellent also for vegetables and fruits. In the upper tier of the mountain counties cotton is not raised. In many localities tobacco is cultivated and some of the farmers make a fair profit from its sale. Splendid apples are raised all over North Georgia and the most luscious peaches are produced in the great orchards that dot the tops and slopes of the hills in all the counties traversed by the various lines of railway on the western side and the Southern railway and its branches on the eastern. Mr. I. C. Wade, a Northern gentleman and ex-Union soldier, at one time land and industrial agent of the Southern railway, now makes his home at Cornelia and considers that region one of the garden spots of the world. Hon. O. B. Stevens, Commissioner of Agriculture, has orchards of apples and peaches at Cornelia and considers them a splendid investment. Strawberries and raspberries of the finest varieties are raised in profusion all over the counties of Northwest Georgia along the lines of the Western and Atlantic, the Southern, the Central of Georgia, the Chattanooga Southern and the Alabama Great Southern, and in Northeast Georgia along the Southern and its branches. Grapes too are abundant and in the vineyards around Cornelia and at other points are found the best varieties. Most of the chestnuts sold in the cities and towns of Georgia in the fall and winter are raised in the northern tier of counties. The most magnificent cabbages, white and crisp, are raised in this same section, as are also turnips of great size and excellent flavor. All the vegetables of the North and of the South are grown in these highly favored localities.

All the grasses and clover are grown to perfection and all kinds of live-stock thrive and give good profits to those who raise them. Poultry, eggs and honey are abundant and the man who knows how to make a good farm in any other part of the United States can find here all that heart can wish.

There are also vast stretches of forest land having all kinds of hardwood, such as oaks of several varieties, pines of two varieties, poplar, ash, beech, elm, chestnut, hickory, maple, walnut, iron wood, sugar berry, sycamore, sweetgum, dogwood, persimmon, sassafras, wild cherry, cedar and buckeye. These woods are being utilized in all the customary ways.

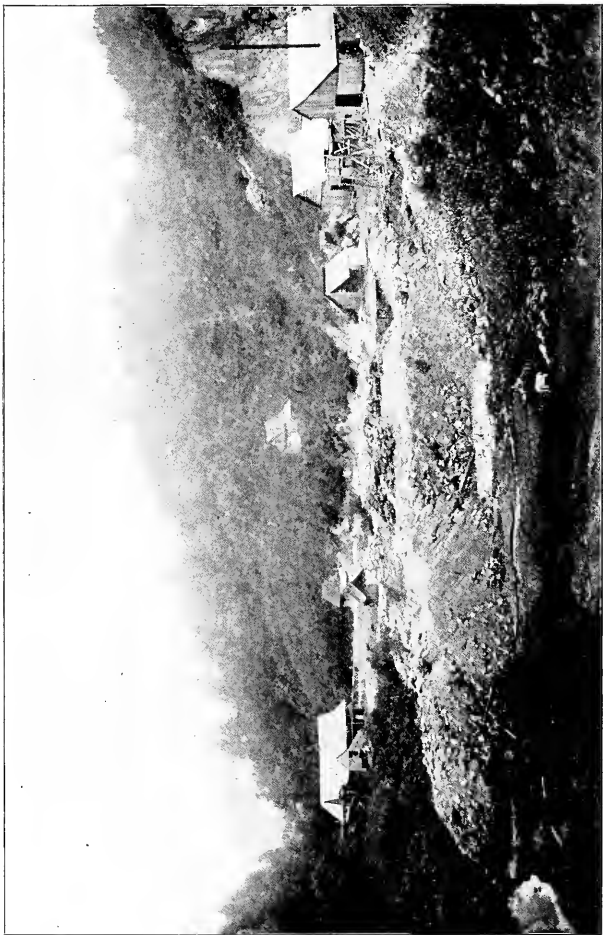

All the cities and towns of any commercial importance have good banking facilities, well equipped stores, good schools and churches. In the thinly settled mountain regions of course church and school advantages are not so good, and yet there is scarcely a corner into which Christian ministers have not borne the light of the gospel or the school teacher carried the torch of knowledge. The climate is bracing and healthful, the water pure and cool, the scenery often charming in its beauty or awe-inspiring in its grandeur.

There are many rough and rugged places and one often meets rude and unlettered people. But show us the country that is devoid of such drawbacks.

The advantages of North Georgia far outweigh the disadvantages, and taking it all in all, one can hardly find a more inviting field for enterprise or for the building of happy homes.

To the tourist, Northwest Georgia possesses many attractions, especially along the Western and Atlantic railroad, the scene of many combats in the Atlanta campaign of 1864. At Chickamauga, the scene of a great battle in September, 1863, is a beautiful national park and here were assembled during the Spanish American wars sons of the men who had so bravely grappled with each other in the sad days of strife.

Middle Georgia.—The Southern tier of the counties that have been described under the head of North Georgia is often included in Middle Georgia. The counties just south of them, viz.: Elbert, Madison, Jackson, Gwinnett, Milton, DeKalb, Fulton, Douglas, Carroll and Haralson, although along the lower edge of the Piedmont region and considerably above the center of the State, are generally regarded as being in the Northern part of what is known as Middle Georgia, while Richmond, Warren, Hancock, Baldwin, Jones, Bibb, Crawford, Upson, Talbot and Muscogee may very properly be considered as on the Southern border of the middle belt. In the balance of this sketch of Georgia, in order to avoid constant repetition, let us say that schools and churches abound in every city, town and village and throughout the rural districts. Again, although through Middle Georgia we have corn, wheat, oats, rye, and other crops like those of North Georgia, let it be remembered that this is the home of cotton, the chief money crop of this section.

After the close of the war of the Revolution, beginning at the eastern counties, the immigrants who poured into Georgia from Virginia and the Carolinas, rapidly extended their settlements westward, encroaching more and more upon the lands of the Indians, until after the removal of the various nations of the Creeks beyond the Mississippi the whole of Middle Georgia became the home of the white man, who, with his negro servants, opened up field after field and built towns and villages. Among the early settlers the Virginians were so numerous that the Indians, as we are told by Governor Gilmer, nearly always spoke of the Georgians as Virginians.

As towns grew up and became centres of trade, railroads from the eastern side of the State were built to reach them. First came the Georgia Railroad, running from Augusta up into the Piedmont section, then the Central from Savannah. These roads, with their numerous branches, soon brought all the important towns of Middle Georgia into communication with each other and they began to grow rapidly in wealth and importance. The Georgia railroad was begun in 1833 and was largely owned by residents of Augusta, while the Central was a great enterprise of the citizens of Savannah and was begun a short while after the Georgia railroad. The chief cities of Middle Georgia in the order of their size are Atlanta, Augusta, Macon, Columbus and Athens. While railroads have been a very important factor in their up-building, they owe their chief importance to the fact that they furnish the most convenient markets for the rich upland agricultural region in which they are located and have abundance of cotton, lumber and other materials necessary for manufacturing. The splendid water powers found all through the Middle Georgia counties began to be utilized way back in the thirties and flour, grist and cotton mills began to spring up on every side. Agriculture, railroads and manufactures conspired to build up all the cities and towns of this section.

Atlanta, the youngest of all these cities, is now the largest city between Washington and New Orleans. In 1837 the Southeastern terminus of the Western and Atlantic railroad was established near where the Union Passenger Depot now stands (1904), and Terminus was the name given to the site thus chosen. Soon afterwards the Georgia railroad was extended to this point. The Macon and Western came next and the new railroad center was in 1843 named Marthasville in compliment to the daughter of ex-Governor Lumpkin, who had been distinguished by his great interest in railroad enterprises in Georgia. On the 29th of December, 1847, the legislature incorporated as the city of Atlanta the new town which was already giving evidence of rapid growth. Its name is derived from Atlantic, because it was considered as the gateway for trade from the west seeking a passage through Georgia to the Atlantic ocean. Hence also the title "Gate City," often applied to it. By the United States census of 1850 the population was 2,572. Until 1853 it was in the limits of DeKalb county of which Decatur was, as it still is, the county site. In that year the county of Fulton was formed and Atlanta made the county site. By the census of 1860 the population of Atlanta was 9,554. During the civil war it was the seat of important industries, the chief object of which was the upholding of the military power of the Confederate States. Hence it became the prize for which desperate battles were fought and at last was captured by the powerful army under General Sherman (September 2nd, 1864). When Sherman started to the sea (November 15th, 1864), he ordered everything burned except the mere dwelling houses and churches and no precautions were taken to prevent the spread of the flames. Only 450 houses, including dwellings and churches, escaped. Stores, workshops, mills, and most of the residences were reduced to ashes. Even before the close of hostilities in the following spring, the people began to return and rebuild the ruined city. Before the approach of the hostile army, the population of Atlanta had reached 14,000. There were very few of these who did not return, and, soon after peace had come to stay, new citizens from all over the South and North began to flock in and by the census of 1870, a little over five years from the time of its destruction, Atlanta numbered in its corporate limits, 21,789 inhabitants.

The city was made the capital of Georgia in 1868, and in 1877 the people of Georgia voted to make it their permanent capital. The handsome capitol building was erected on a lot donated by the city during the administration of Governor McDaniel and cost $1,000,000. It enjoys the distinction of being one of the few public buildings in the United States, whose cost came within the appropriation set apart for its completion.

By the census of 1900, the population of Atlanta was 89,872, and, including the immediate suburbs, 103,000. The white population in the corporate limits was 53,908, and the colored 35,967. On every side are still to be seen the evidences of rapid growth, and judging by the past, one can safely place the population at this time as considerably over 100,000.

Atlanta is one of the best built cities of the United States. Handsome public and private buildings, splendid hotels, handsome churches and elegant school buildings bespeak enterprise and increasing wealth. Its miles of well paved streets extend out from the city into first class McAdamized roads.

Electric cars bring it into close connection with all the suburban villages and towns and electric lights make its main thoroughfares at night almost as bright as day. In the city limits and in its vicinity are great manufactories of various kinds and its commerce is extensive and rapidly growing.

Located in Atlanta are the Technological School for whites, Atlanta University and Clark University for colored, a law college, business colleges, medical colleges and two dental colleges.

Besides Atlanta there are in Fulton county the following towns: East Point (population, 1,315), College Park (population, 517), Hapeville (population, 430), Oakland City (population, 823). At College Park is the Cox College, a well equipped and up-to-date institution; at Hapeville, the Baptist Orphans' Home, and at East Point many important manufacturing plants. Hapeville is on the Central of Georgia railway in close connection with Atlanta. College Park and East Point are on both the steam and electric railway lines. Edgewood with a population of 1,285, a suburb of Atlanta, is in DeKalb county.

Decatur, the county site of DeKalb, six miles from the Union Depot in Atlanta, and connected with that city by the Georgia railway and three electric lines, is the seat of Agnes Scott Institute for young ladies. Near by is the Orphan Home of the North Georgia conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and in the vicinity are cotton mills and fertilizer factories. Population, 1,418.

The town of Stone Mountain on the Georgia Railroad, about ten miles northeast of Decatur, derives its name from a great mountain of granite 1,500 feet above the level of the sea and 900 feet above the surrounding country. From the quarries at and near this mountain are cut immense quantities of the best granite to be found in the United States, and at Lithonia in the southeastern part of DeKalb county, the quarries of gneiss bring handsome profits to their owners.

In Gwinnett county, Lawrenceville, the county site on the Seaboard Air Line railway, and Buford on the Southern, are thriving towns. Buford, the larger, with a population of 1,352, has three large harness factories, one smaller one and four tanneries and at Lawrenceville is a cotton mill.

In this county granite is abundant, iron, quartz and buhrstone are found and there is some gold in the Chattahoochee river and at a few other points.

In Milton county on the upper edge of Fulton there is abundance of timber and stone for building purposes. Though no railroad passes through the county, the Southern Railway runs close by its boundary line.

Douglas, Carroll and Haralson counties are brought into close touch with Atlanta by one of the lines of the Southern Railway. In each of these counties there is abundance of hard wood, and some pine. The water is cool and healthful, the climate bracing. In Douglas county are the lithia springs, a favorite health resort, whose waters are highly prized for their medicinal properties.

In Carroll county gold, copper, iron, pyrites, mica and asbestos are found in workable quantities. The gold is said to be of very fine quality. Near Villa Rica is an extent of country six miles long and one mile wide are several mines yielding large amounts of gold. Quartz and granite are also found.

Gold is mined extensively in Haralson county, also, and the Royal Gold Mine at Tallapoosa has a plant which cost $200,000. This is a great county for vineyards and near Tallapoosa are two wineries, one of which manufactures unfermented wine.

Tallapoosa, the county site, has a population of 2,128 inhabitants.

Among the manufactories of Haralson county may be mentioned a glass factory, a charcoal pig iron furnace, and flour, grist and saw mills.

A cotton mill and cottonseed-oil mills are among the manufactories of Carroll county, the county site of Carroll county.

In Campbell and Coweta counties there are inexhaustible supplies of granite, extensive deposits being in the vicinity of Newnan, while near Grantville gold is obtained in payable quantities. In both these counties and in Troup county are large manufacturing establishments. The fruit industry of Coweta is steadily growing. Nine miles east of Newnan is Vina Vista, one of the most complete wineries in the South. Newnan, the county site of Coweta, a thriving little city of 3,654 inhabitants, has electric lights, ice plant, waterworks, a good fire department and splendidly paying industries.

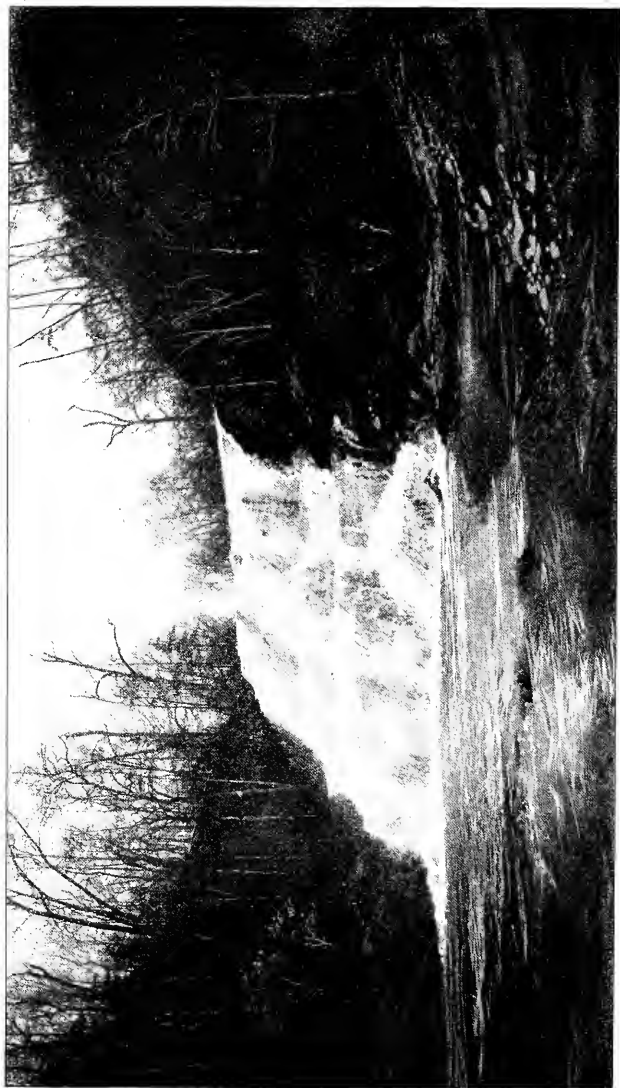

LaGrange, the county site of Troup, with a population of 4,274, has waterworks, electric lights and with its two colleges for ladies is a place of great refinement and culture. It is surrounded by a magnificent farming country, market gardens and orchards and in its vicinity is a noted creamery. Dairy and beef cattle and fine stock of all kinds indicate the thrift of the people.

West Point, another large manufacturing town of Troup county, owns its own electric lights and waterworks. It is on the border of Alabama and Georgia. There are in its corporate limits inside the Georgia line 1,797 inhabitants. Near West Point is a large Pecan Grove. Meriwether county is rich in mineral deposits such as gold, iron, asbestos and granite. The gold mines even with primitive methods have yielded handsomely for forty years. At Chalybeate Spring iron ore of the best quality is found. The asbestos deposits are abundant in yield and easily worked. Meriwether granite is equal to that of Quincy, Massachusetts and susceptible of very fine polish. The church of St. Luke in Columbus, Ga., used this granite exclusively in its elegant columns and the other granite work employed in its construction. This county is famous for its springs, the Chalybeate and Warm Springs, and also has fine farming lands.

Heard county also has abundance of granite and possesses splendid farming lands.

Fayette also has fine farming lands. Coweta, Troup, Meriwether and Fayette all possess magnificent water powers. Clayton and Henry have good water powers and some fine farm lands and are prosperous counties. Asbestos is found in Clayton and Henry county, cotton ranks high in the market.

Rockdale county produces much paving and building material and has several flourishing manufacturing plants. Conyers, the county site on the Georgia railroad, with a population of 1,605, has an active cotton trade. Its paper mill, fertilizer factory and cottonseed-oil mill pay good profits.

CANE CREEK FALLS, NEAR DAHLONEGA, GEORGIA.

Newton is a fine agricultural county with good paying manufacturing industries. Covington, the county site (population, 2,062) on the Georgia railroad and the terminus of a branch of the Central, has large cotton mills in its vicinity and is connected by a street railway with Oxford, the seat of the great Southern Methodist Institution, Emory College. The suburbs of the two towns join at the Georgia Railroad.

Social Circle (population, 1,229), a town of Walton county, on the Georgia railroad, has a cottonseed-oil mill, a fertilizer factory and some smaller industries, and by the Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern branch of the Georgia Railroad, is connected with Monroe, the county site (population, 1,846), which has also a cottonseed-oil mill, besides a cotton mill and prosperous mercantile establishments.

Madison (population, 2,000), also on the Georgia Railroad, one of the most beautiful of the small cities of Georgia, has a cotton-oil mill, fertilizer factory and other industries. It is the county seat of Morgan, a well watered and fertile county noted for large yields of fruits, wheat, corn and cotton. Madison has electric lights and waterworks.

Eatonton (population, 1,823) connected by railroad with Covington, Madison, and Milledgeville, a beautiful town, adorned with many shade trees, is the county site of Putnam. It is in the center of a fine cotton section and has three cotton factories and a shoe factory. In its vicinity are raised peaches, plums, and grapes. Within twelve miles of this town are the Oconee Springs, noted for their mineral properties. There are fine water powers in Putnam county.

Monticello (population, 1,106), the county site of Jasper county, on a branch of the Georgia Railroad, has a harness and collar factory and a bobbin factory. Near it is a pecan grove and orchards of peaches and apples.

Baldwin is a good, substantial old county with fine farms, orchards and gardens and fine water powers at Furman's Shoals, three miles above Milledgeville. This city (population, 4,219), the county site of Baldwin, and for many years the capital of Georgia, is situated at the head of navigation of the Oconee river. It is lighted by electricity, has fine commercial advantages, being on two railroads, the Georgia and the Central, and has a grain mill, oil mill, fertilizer factory, repair shops and other small industries. It is also a famous educational center, being the seat of the Georgia Military and Agricultural college, a branch of the State University, and the Normal and Industrial College for Young Ladies. It has fine public schools. The State Sanitarium for the Insane, the largest institution of its kind under one management in the world, is three miles west of Milledgeville. Nine miles south of Milledgeville is Stevens' Pottery, at one of the finest clay deposits in America.

Athens, the county seat of Clarke county, with a population of 10,245, is connected by rail with Atlanta and Augusta and with the chief towns of the neighboring counties. It is on the Oconee River, which affords splendid water power for its large cotton factories, cottonseed-oil mills and other industries. Beautiful in situation, adorned with handsome homes, at an elevation of 800 feet, which renders its climate delightful, with gas and electric lights, waterworks, ice plants and electric railway, with fine commercial advantages, it is also the seat of the State University, the State Normal School for both sexes, and Lucy Cobb Institute for ladies. It has long borne the name "Classic City."

Commerce (a new name for the much more euphonious one of Harmony Grove), the largest town of Jackson county, on a branch of the Southern Railway, has a cotton mill, cottonseed-oil mill, two potteries and factories for making wagons and buggies, harness and mattresses.

Jackson, of which Jefferson is the county site, is a fine agricultural county. The same is true of Oconee and Madison counties, each of which has splendid water-powers, which at High Shoals on the Appalachee river, in Oconee county, have been utilized by a cotton factory.

WITCH'S HEAD, AT TALLULAH FALLS.

Elbert is one of the finest agricultural counties of Georgia and Elberton, the county site is one of its most progressive towns. Its population is 3,834, of which 2,224 are white and 1,610 colored. At the junction of the Seaboard Air Line and a branch of the Southern system, it has a large cotton trade and important manufacturing, including a cotton mill, cottonseed-oil mill and planing mills. It has electric lights, waterworks and good public schools, and like all the towns and cities of its section, is well supplied with churches. There is a cotton factory at Beverly on Beaver Dam Creek. In the county are three guano factories, two carriage factories, a large flaring mill with patent roller process, and four quarries from which are obtained as fine granite as can be found in the State of Georgia.

The waterpowers of Elbert county are immense and there is room for many large mills without danger of exhausting them. Oglethorpe, which is separated from Elbert by the Broad river, has also fine water powers and contains some of the finest farms in Georgia, on some of which beef cattle of the best breed are raised for the market.

Wilkes is one of the oldest and best counties of Georgia, being up-to-date in agriculture as well as rich in minerals, such as granite and quartz, and having also some gold and iron. Two gold mines are profitably worked. There are fine waterpowers, especially at Anchovy Shoals, amounting there to 75,000 horse-powers.

Washington, the county site, is one of the most beautiful of Georgia towns and one of the oldest, being the first named in honor of the "Father of our Country." It was the home of Robert Toombs and the place where Jefferson Davis held his last cabinet meeting at the close of the Civil War. It has a cotton compress, tannery, lumber and planing mills and a brick factory. It has a public library and good public schools and churches, has a waterworks plant, is progressive and enterprising and contains a population of 3,300.

Columbia, Lincoln and McDuffie are all good agricultural counties. There is one noted gold mine in Lincoln county and in McDuffie are three in successful operation.

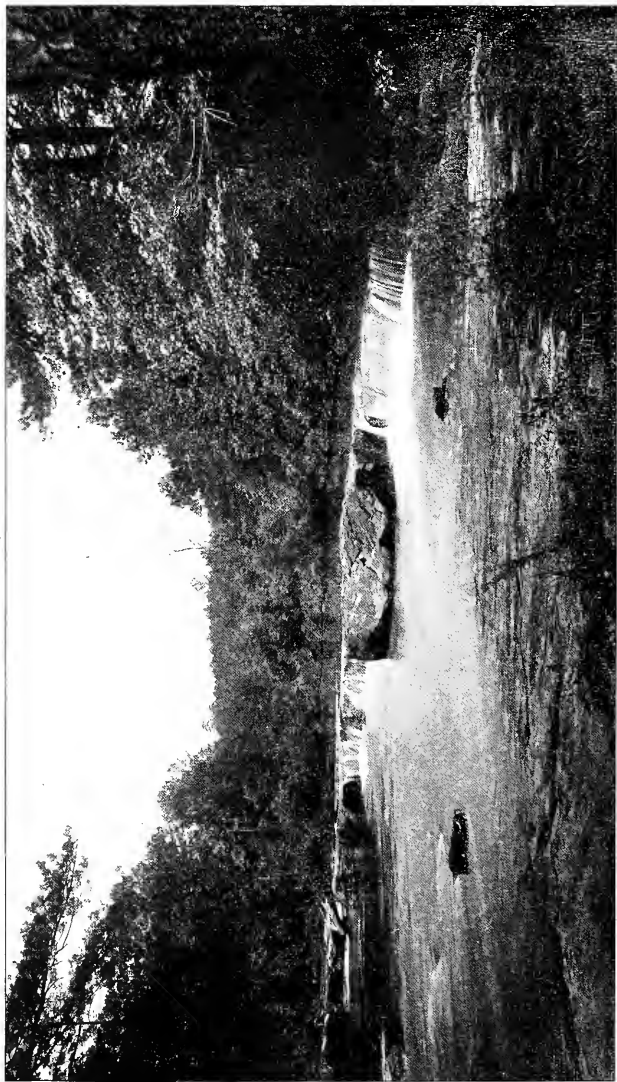

Thomson, the county site of McDuffie (population, 1,154), on the Georgia railroad, has a canning establishment and manufactures cotton goods and fertilizers.

Greene county is the center of the Bermuda Grass Region and dairying and the raising of beef cattle are two of its great industries.

Greensboro, the county site (population, 1,511), has a cotton mill and at Union Point are fertilizer factories and a knitting mill, also an electric light plant. There are other industries, as a knitting mill at Penfield, a wagon factory at White Plains, a box factory at Siloam and several flour and grist mills throughout the county. There are fine water powers, especially on the Oconee river.

Augusta, the county seat of Richmond, is the second oldest city in Georgia and in cotton manufacture the first in Georgia and the South, being for this reason often styled the "Lowell of the South." It is at the head of steamboat navigation, is the third in the State in size and has a population of 39,441 in the corporate limits (20,913 being white and 18,528 colored). From 1735, when it was first laid out, it was a center of trade. Seven miles above the city are the falls of the Savannah river. Here the city built a dam and a canal nine miles long and 150 feet wide, so as to utilize the great water power. Of the 14,000 horse powers already developed at this point, 11,000 are now in use. There are mills belonging to nine different companies and a number of mills across the river in South Carolina are built and owned by Augusta capitalists. There are in Augusta fertilizer and cottonseed-oil factories, foundries, planing mills and manufactories of medicines, clothing and minor articles.

The Georgia Medical College, a department of the State University, is located in Augusta, and here is the Academy of Richmond county which dates back to colonial days. If in the census report of 1900 the suburbs had been included, the population would have numbered 45,000. Summerville, a beautiful suburban town connected with Augusta by electric railway, has a population of 3,245. Here is located the U. S. arsenal. From the point overlooking the city and from the heights of North Augusta on the South Carolina side, the view of the city is very charming, especially at night with its brilliant electric lights. Augusta is one of the largest interior cotton markets in the South.

Commercially, Taliaferro, Glascock, Warren and Hancock, and also of those already named, Columbia, Lincoln and McDuffie are in close touch with Augusta.

Warrenton (population, 1,113), is the county site of Warren county, and is a profitable market for the vegetable, fruits and melons raised in the neighborhood.

Sparta, the county seat of Hancock county, on a branch of the Georgia Railroad, about half way between Augusta and Macon, is a thriving town, to which the products of the county are brought for market and shipment. There is at Sparta a cotton-oil mill, a flourishing creamery and in its vicinity are some large peach orchards. Asbestos, plumbago, kaolin and agate are found in Hancock county. Peaches, apples, pears, pecans, and all the staple crops of Middle Georgia, are found in this county.

Macon, the county seat of Bibb county, and the fourth city in the State in population, is a great commercial, manufacturing and educational center. Here are some of the largest and most substantial wholesale houses in Georgia, five cotton mills spinning yarn, three knitting mills, three iron foundries, a cotton compress, large cotton-oil mills and fertilizer establishments.

Here are Wesleyan Female College, the first institution in the world chartered to give diplomas to ladies, Mercer University, a noted Baptist Institution, St. Stanislaus College, for Catholic priests, Mount de Sales Academy, for young ladies, a normal school for colored students, and the Academy for the Blind, a State institution with two departments, several blocks apart, one for white and the other for colored children.

By the census of 1900, the population of Macon was 23,272, of which the whites numbered 11,711 and the colored, 11,561. But the suburban district of Vineville with 7,787 inhabitants and East Macon with 5,078, are really parts of the city making a total population of 36,137.

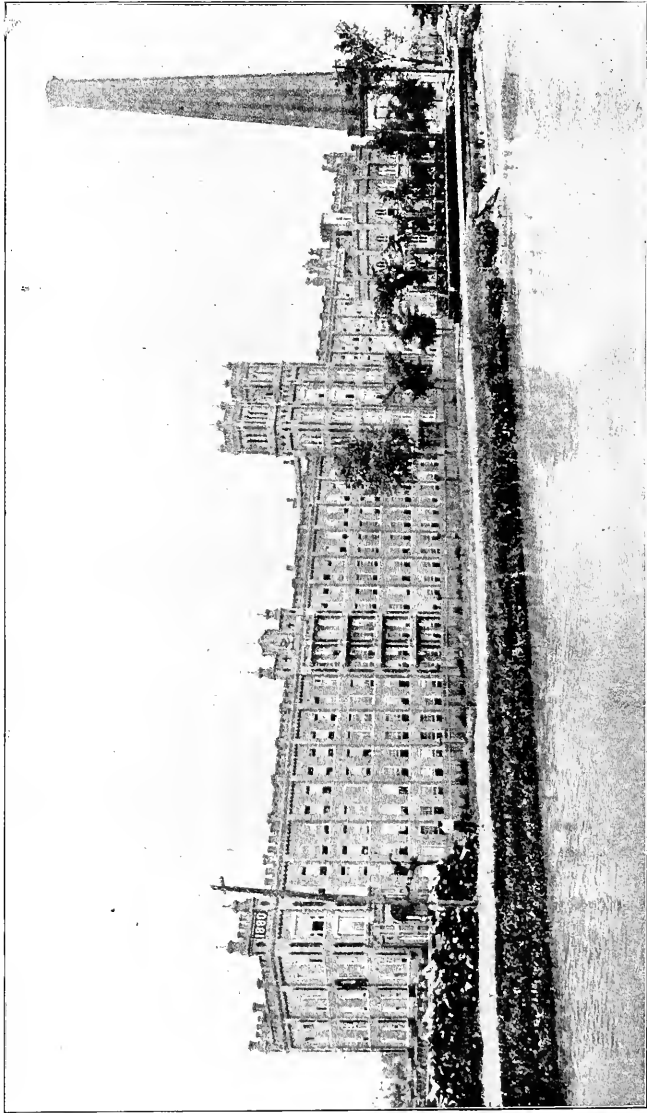

In Jones county there is a fine vein of kaolin which is being utilized. This is a part of the great clay belt, which extends from Augusta southwesterly through Baldwin past Macon in Bibb county to Columbus in Muscogee county. It has veins extending down into Twiggs county to the south. Throughout the whole length and breadth of this belt the clays are very pure, of a beautiful white color and capable of standing a greater degree of heat than any other clays of the United States.

In Butts county is the celebrated Indian Spring, a great health and pleasure resort, celebrated for the healing properties of its sulphur water. This county has flour and cotton mills and fertilizer factories. Jackson and Pepperton are neighboring towns and busy manufacturing centers. Jackson has a population of 1,487 and Pepperton of 500.

In Monroe county is Forsyth (population, 1,172), the seat of Monroe Female College. It is a handsome town with several prosperous industries. Barnesville is a growing city of Pike county, has two of the largest brush factories in the South, and is the seat of one of the best schools of Georgia, the Gordon Institute. Its population is 3,036.

Spalding is a county of good farms and many manufactories. Griffin, the county site, owns its own waterworks and electric-lights, has an ice plant, cottonseed-oil mills, planing mills, chair factory, five large cotton mills and manufactures more Turkish towels than are made anywhere else in America. Near by is the United States Experiment Station for Georgia. The population of Griffin is 6,857, the whites numbering 3,500 and the colored 3,258. In addition to the usual crops, there are orchards of peaches and apples, vineyards and a pecan grove.

Upson county has fine water powers on Big Potato creek. Thomaston, the county seat (population, 1,714) has a cotton mill. The R. E. Lee Institute is in Thomas-ton. On the east of Flint river begins the Pine Mountains, the highest points of which are 800 feet above the river.

Talbotton, the county seat of Talbot (population, 1,131), is in the center of a good farm and trucking country. It has two fine schools, Collinsworth Institute and Le-Vert Female College, four good public schools.

Harris county has good farming lands and fine water powers.

Columbus, the county site of Muscogee, is an important manufacturing city, well known for its splendid cotton mills. In addition to being a great railroad center, it enjoys the advantages of water transportation and has a fine steamboat trade with towns and the country along the Chattahoochee river. Augusta alone in the South excels Columbus in the manufacture of cotton goods, for which the fine waterpowers of the Chattahoochee afford splendid facilities. The population of the city in its corporate limits was 17,614 by the census of 1900. Of these, 10,337 were white and 7,277 colored. The population is now estimated at 20,000.

Agriculture, manufactures, commerce, education and the influence of its churches have combined to make Middle Georgia one of the most desirable sections of the Union.

Over large portions of Middle Georgia wheat is a profitable crop, yielding on very ordinary land eight, and on good lands from 15 to 40 bushels to the acre, and in some instances as high as 60 bushels to the acre. Corn ranges all the way from 10 to 50 bushels to the acre and in some instances has gone beyond 100 bushels. The peavine, often called the clover of the South, affords in its peas not only a nourishing food for stock, especially for milch cows, but also a wholesome diet for the table. The vines make the best of hay and the yield varies according to soil and cultivation from 2,000 to 14,000 pounds to the acre. The peavine is also one of the best of soil renovators. The vetches, sorghum and millet and, in the more northern counties of the section, clover, are cultivated for forage crops. Considerable quantities of sugarcane are raised, but it is in South Georgia that this is one of the leading crops. But Middle Georgia, together with the larger part of South Georgia, is the great cotton region of the State. The yield of this great money crop varies according to soil from 500 to 1,500 pounds of seed cotton to the acre, or from a third to a whole 500 pound bale to the acre. In every pound of seed cotton one-third is lint and two-thirds seed. The lint is manufactured into yarn and cloths of various kinds. Part of the seed is used for replanting, and great quantities of it are sold to the cottonseed-oil mills, which manufacture from them oil and cottonseed-meal and have left the hulls and linters which also bring profitable prices.

During the past season the high prices that have prevailed make the value of Georgia's cotton crop, including lint, oil, meal, hulls and linters, equal to $100,000,000.

The traveler going through Georgia cannot judge the quality of the soil by what he sees from a train moving over a road that runs for the most part along the ridges. If he stops at some station and takes a ride out into the country, he will find rich lands teeming with profitable crops. He will also find farms where exhausted lands have by a careful system of renovation and scientific culture been brought back to the productiveness of the virgin soil. There are farms where skillful farmers have taken so-called worn-out lands and made them yield a bale of cotton to the acre, and at the same time have added each year to the productiveness of the soil.

There is hardly a farmer in Middle Georgia who does not have his orchards of peaches, apples, pears and cherries, quantities of blackberries and patches of luscious strawberries and in his vegetable garden a good variety of healthful diet, for the table. Grapes are abundant and there are large vineyards, especially on the Central Railway, between Macon and Atlanta on the Southern, and on the Atlanta and West Point Railroads.

HIGH FALLS OF THE TOWALIGA, MONROE COUNTY.

Irish potatoes of the best types are raised, and in the sweet potato Georgia in every section possesses an article of food which in the varied dishes that can be prepared from it furnishes not only wholesome, but sometimes luxurious diet. Figs also are among the fruits of Middle Georgia and in many localities pomegranates are found.

South Georgia.—Of the three Georgia sections, this is the most extensive in area and, with the exception of a few localities, showed during the decade from 1890 to 1900 the heaviest gains in population and wealth. This will be surprising to some who are in the habit of looking upon South Georgia as a malarial section, healthy only during the winter. But there is much hill country all over Southwest Georgia which is healthy the year round and in Southeast Georgia and throughout the coastal plain region the many artesian wells supplying pure, good water have wrought such a change that localities once regarded as very unwholesome are now the healthy abode of a rapidly increasing population, while on all the numerous railroad lines that penetrate this whole region are flourishing and rapidly growing towns and cities.

This is not on the whole as good a wheat country as either North or Middle Georgia, and in some parts no wheat is grown at all. But over the greater part of it are made heavy yields of cotton and corn and thousands of acres produce the sugarcane, the richest in saccharine matter of any plant that grows. The Georgia cane syrup is already a favorite in many parts of the United States and its manufacture and sale are steadily and rapidly growing. South Georgia produces the greater part of the crop of sea island cotton, the finest in the markets of the world.

Tobacco, too, is being extensively cultivated and there is in Decatur county one of the largest tobacco farms in the United States. In addition to the millet, crab grass, and crowfoot, sorghum forage and peavines of Middle Georgia are the soja and the velvet bean, both splendid for stock and the best of soil renovators. Cassava also a fine feed for stock, yields bountifully throughout this section and the lower counties of Middle Georgia.

The great peach orchards of Southern Georgia have a national reputation and their fame has even crossed the Atlantic. There are fine vineyards also in many places.

In Southeast Georgia are some of the largest market gardens (truck farms) in the State, especially in the neighborhood of Brunswick and Savannah.

All over the coastal plain from the Atlantic ocean to the Chattahoochee river on the western border of the State are extensive forests of long leaf pine, producing annually millions of feet of lumber and gallons of spirits of turpentine, giving employment to sawmills great and small, to railroads, steamboats, ships and merchants.

As the forest lands are cleared, market gardens and flourishing farms spring up. The marls with the muck from swamps furnish a cheap fertilizer easy to be obtained.

There are vast ranges for cattle and sheep and of the latter there are some very large flocks, yielding a fine profit to their owners. Beef cattle of the best breeds can by recent discoveries be rendered immune as to the cattle tick and its resultant Texas fever, and with need for shelter, but a short time during the winter, can be raised with great profit to the stock men.

Though rice is grown in the upper counties of Georgia, the great rice crop of the State is that of Southeast Georgia.

Southeast Georgia was the first settled portion of the State. Here Oglethorpe's first settlement was made at Savannah and at Frederica on St. Simon's island was his favorite home. Though of Frederica nothing remains but the ruins of the old fort and the memory of the defeat of the Spaniards at the "Bloody Marsh," across St. Simon's Sound on the banks of the Turtle river is the growing city of Brunswick, the second in size of Georgia's seaports.

The chief cities of South Georgia are Savannah, Brunswick, Americus, Waycross, Valdosta, Thomasville, Albany, Cordele, Dublin, Dawson, Cuthbert, Bainbridge, Quitman, Moultrie and Hawkinsville.

Savannah is the oldest city of Georgia, its most important seaport and commercial center, ranking among the cities of the South, next to New Orleans in the value of its commerce, first in the world in the shipment of naval stores and third as a cotton market.

Savannah stands upon a bluff 46 feet above the level of the Savannah and 18 miles from the sea. It is connected by water with every county of the Atlantic coastal plain and by rail with every part of Georgia and the railroads that radiate from it in all directions give it rapid connections with every quarter of the Union. The Savannah, the first steamship that ever crossed the Atlantic, was owned in Savannah and the Ocean Steamship Company of that city has the finest line of steamers to-day that ply between Northern and Southern ports. Among the exports of Savannah are not only the raw cotton, but also cotton goods from the factories of Georgia, rice, lumber and naval stores and fruits, melons and vegetables from the orchards, fields and market gardens of the vicinity and on the lines of the railroads that come into the city. Its import trade also is very extensive and its large wholesale houses are strong and substantial.

Its manufacturing interests are important, embracing various grades of cotton goods, cottonseed-oil mills, fertilizer factories, foundries, machine shops for making agricultural implements and various other industries.

It is one of the most beautiful cities of the Union and has several handsome historic monuments, viz.: the one to General Nathaniel Greene, another to Count Pulaski, another to Sergeant Jasper, all heroes of the American revolution, one to W. W. Gordon, the great promoter of the Central Railroad and one in honor of the Confederate soldiers.

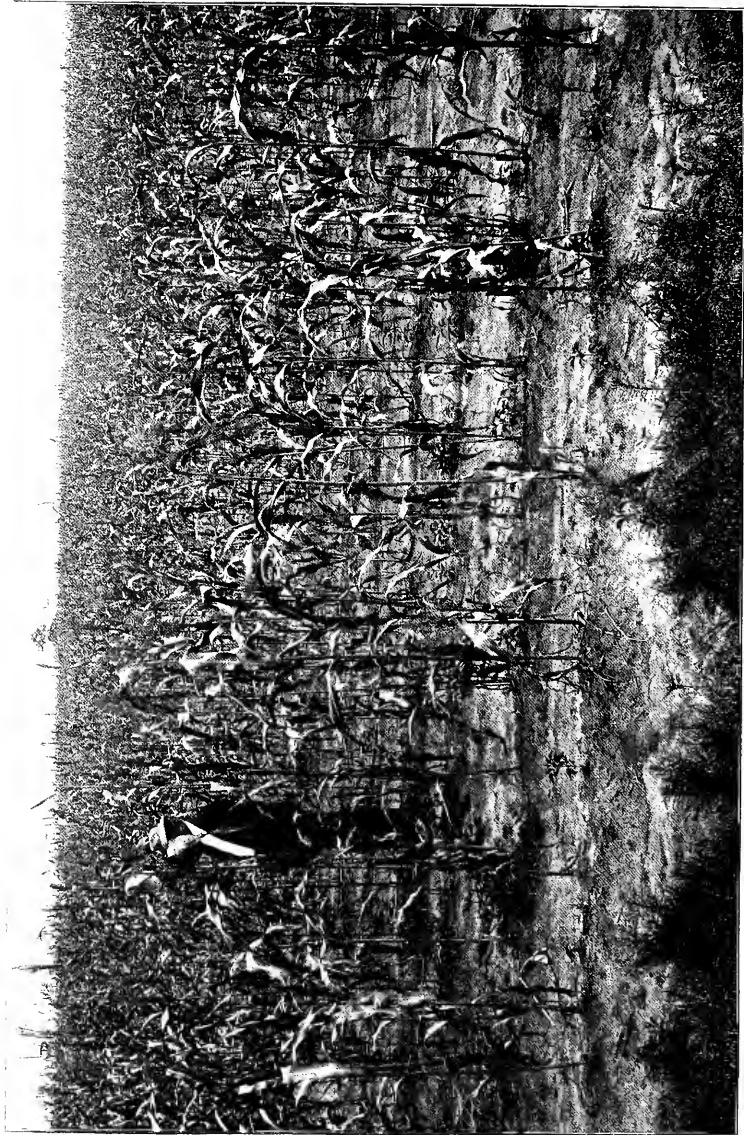

The population of Savannah by the census of 1900 was 54,244 of which the whites numbered 26,109 and the colored 28,135. But a large, thickly settled district has been taken into the corporate limits and with the accustomed ratio of increase the city at this time (1904) contains considerably more than 60,000 inhabitants.

On a branch of the Central Railroad, between Savannah and Augusta, the town of Waynesboro (population, 2,030) in the midst of a cotton and lumber region, has cottonseed-oil mills and fertilizer factories. It is the county seat of Burke which is the greatest cotton county of Georgia. At Shell Bluff is an inexhaustible supply of limestone of the best quality for making lime. Buhrstone is very abundant in this county.

Louisville (population, 1,000) is the county site of Jefferson county. It is an old town of historic interest from the circumstance that for nine years (from 1795 to 1804) it was the capital of Georgia.

Sandersville and Tennille are important towns of Washington county, the former being the county site. Sandersville is on a branch of the Southern Railway and has good commercial facilities, large fertilizer establishments and machine shops. It is situated upon a ridge between the Oconee and Ogeechee rivers, 500 feet above sea level. Population, 2,023. Tennille is smaller, having 1,121 inhabitants, but is quite a manufacturing center, having a cotton factory, cottonseed-oil mill, hard wood factory, mineral works, machine works and novelty factory. It has also an electric light plant. Connected with Tennille by a short railroad is Wrightsville (population, 1,127) the county seat of Johnson county in the midst of an extensive lumber region. From the great forests of pine in this county are manufactured rosin and turpentine.

In Wilkinson county there is a quarry of limestone whence is obtained a material which after hardening in the open air has been found to be excellent for the construction of chimneys. In Twiggs county there is a fine vein of potter's clay. In Laurens county, the large number of saw mills and turpentine distilleries prepare great quantities of lumber, rosin and turpentine for export to Savannah.

A FIELD OF BROOM CORN.

Dublin, the county site, a rapidly growing town of 2,987 inhabitants, has several prosperous mercantile and manufacturing establishments, among the latter being a cotton mill, a cotton-oil mill, ice and furniture factory, a foundry, brick works, variety works, stone factory, a shingle machine, a ham packing establishment and many small industries.

In Bryan and Bulloch counties the larger part of the cotton raised is sea-land. In both these counties, Emanuel and Screven, lumber and turpentine interests are extensive, as they are also in Montgomery, Tattnall, Liberty and McIntosh. Darien, the county site of McIntosh (population, 1,739), has a large trade in lumber, rosin and turpentine. All these are good agricultural counties.

Brunswick (population 9,081), the county seat of Glynn county, the second in size and importance of the seaports of Georgia, has one of the best harbors on the Atlantic coast, is beautifully located on a bluff of white sand and has a heavy trade in lumber and naval stores. The city has waterworks and electric lights. Glynn county has great quantities of pine and cypress timbers and a considerable amount of hard woods besides.

Waycross, the county seat of Ware county, is one of the great railroad centers of Southeast Georgia. It had by the last census a population of 5,919. It has electric lights, waterworks, a street railway and several manufacturing industries. The pine and cypress timbers are very valuable. Rosin, turpentine and lumber are shipped in large quantities. The railroads radiating from this town bring into it the products of many adjoining counties, viz.: Pierce, Coffee, Clinch, Charlton, and parts of Berrien and Appling, while Jesup in Wayne is another growing railroad center, into which are gathered the products of the neighboring pine forests for shipment to Brunswick and Savannah. With both of these Georgia ports Montgomery, Telfair, Dodge and Wilcox counties have easy access by rail. Large flocks of sheep range in all these counties, bringing with their wool good profits to their owners.

McRae (population, 1,020) the county seat of Telfair on the Southern Railway, is the center of a large business in lumber, shingles, turpentine and rosin, has saw and planing mills and an oil and fertilizer factory. Here is located the South Georgia college.

Abbeville (population, 1,152), the county seat of Wilcox, on the west bank of the Ocmulgee river and connected with Savannah by the Seaboard Air Line Railway, has also a large trade in turpentine, rosin and lumber, and so has Seville on the same railroad, in the western part of Wilcox county, a town of 1,277 inhabitants.

Eastman (population, 1,235), the county seat of Dodge, on an elevation of 300 feet, has a considerable trade in cotton, lumber, cane syrup, cattle, chickens and vegetables.

Hawkinsville (population, 2,103), county seat of Pulaski connected by branch roads with two main trunk lines of railway, has also lines of steamers to Darien and Brunswick and has among its industries an oil and fertilizer factory, a cotton mill, turpentine distillery, barrel, carriage and ice factories. About ten miles from Hawkinsville in the same county is Cochran, a busy town of 1,531 inhabitants on the main line of the Southern Railway. It also has several manufacturing industries.

Houston, with its millions of peach trees, is the greatest peach-growing county in the United States, and next to it in Georgia comes Macon county, also counting its peach trees by the million. There are also in these two counties orchards of pear, apple and plum trees.

Fort Valley (population, 2,022), the most important town of Houston county, on one of the lines of the Central Railway, has three large canning factories, crate and basket factories, an ice factory, cotton compresses and knitting mills. The county site of Houston is Perry on a branch of the Central Railway. Houston is also a good wheat county.

LEWISTON WHITE CLAY BED, JONES COUNTY, GEORGIA.

In Macon county there are on the Central Railway three towns, Marshallville, Montezuma and Oglethorpe, the last being the county site. At these points are canning and fruit-packing factories and at Montezuma is a fertilizer factory doing a large business.

Americus, the county seat of Sumter county, with a population of 7,674, is the largest city of Southwest Georgia in the midst of a rich cotton growing region. It is the distributing point for mules and horses to all parts of Southwest Georgia. It has in its corporate limits and in its vicinity factories for horse-collars, shoes, wagons, cotton-seed oil and guano, a foundry and railroad shops. The city has a good system of waterworks and electric lights. During the latter part of the Civil War, Sumter and the neighboring counties produced such a large part of the supplies for the Confederate armies of Virginia and Tennessee that this section of the State was called Egypt. At Andersonville, the site of the noted war prison, is a well-kept Federal cemetery. That part of the coastal plain region which is drained into the Gulf of Mexico now contains many growing towns. The rich lands drained by the Flint and Chattahoochee rivers are among the best in the State for the production of cotton and corn, and in many localities much hay is raised. The eastern part of this plain is also rich in forests of pine and has an extensive trade in lumber and naval stores. This is particularly true of the section drained by the Allapaha river.

Buena Vista, on the Central Railway, the county seat of Marion, named for a famous battle of the Mexican war, (population, 1,161), is a good cotton market.

Richland (population, 1,014), an important town of Stewart county, at the junction of two branches of the Seaboard Air Line system, has a wagon and buggy and guano factory and Lumpkin, the county site on the main line of the same system, with a population of 1,470, is beautifully located on a high ridge.

Dawson (population, 2,926) the county seat of Terrell county, at the junction of two railroads, has waterworks, electric lights, prosperous business houses and is in the center of a fine cotton country, which is true also of Cuthbert the county site of Randolph county, with 2,641 inhabitants. It has waterworks and electric lights, a cotton mill, carriage factory, machine works and ice factory. Here are Andrew Female College and Bethel Male College.

At Fort Gaines, the county seat of Clay county, beautifully located on a high bluff overlooking the Chattahoochee 160 feet above the river, are guano and brick factories and a cottonseed-oil mill. It enjoys both railroad and water transportation and has 1,305 inhabitants. Quitman is a good agricultural county.

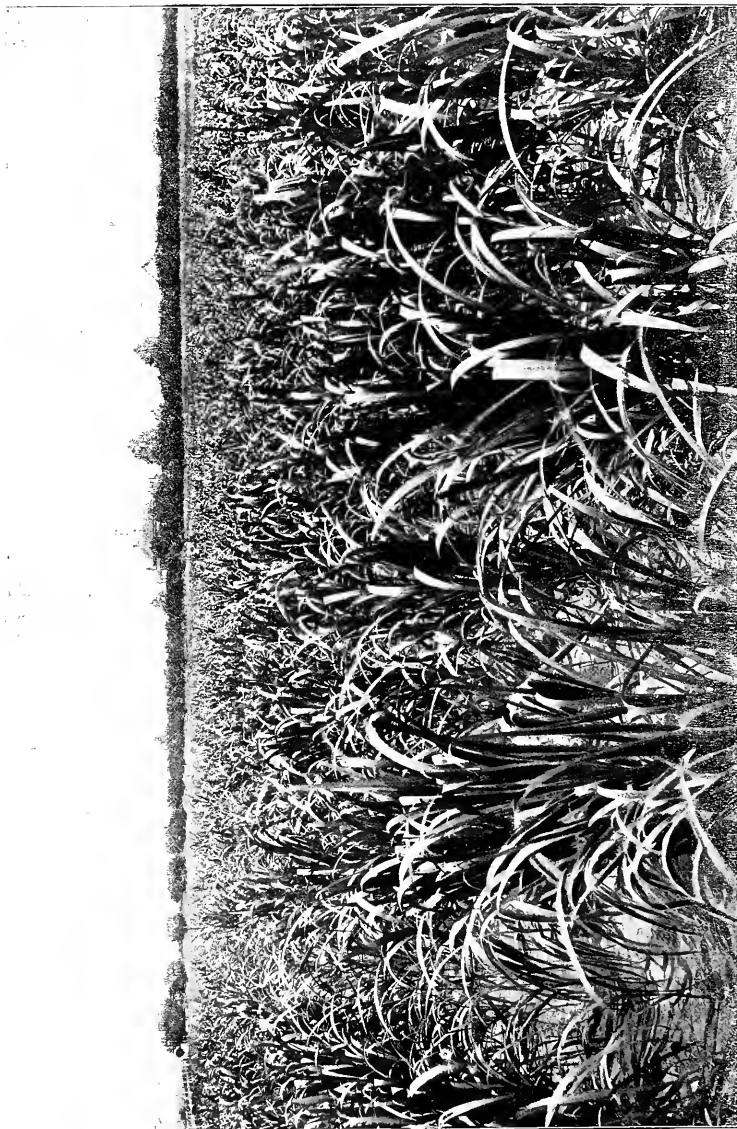

Vienna (population, 1,305) the county seat of Dooly county, does a heavy lumber business and has a cottonseed-oil mill. It is on the Southern and Florida Railroad.

Cordele (population, 3,473), on the same railroad, a new and rapidly growing city, does a heavy lumber business in addition to its trade in cotton, corn and vegetables, and has a cotton factory, ice plant, fertilizer establishment, and a fine system of waterworks.

Fitzgerald, in Irwin county, a new town founded under the auspices of ex-Governor Northen, by veterans of the Union army from the Northwest, is at the junction of two railroads. It has a cotton mill, cottonseed-oil mill, iron foundry, sash and door factory, and extensive lumber business. Its population in 1900 was 1,817, but it now claims about 3,000 inhabitants. The town has waterworks and electric lights.

Tifton, the largest town of Berrien county, with a population of 1,384, at the crossing of four railroads, has saw mills, a canning establishment, machine works and foundry. In its neighborhood are several vineyards producing grapes of fine quality, peach, apple and pear orchards and pecan groves.

Ashburn (population, 1,301), the chief business town of Worth county, on the

SUGAR CANE FIELD.

Georgia Southern and Florida Railroad, is in a district abounding in turpentine distilleries and has large lumber, shingle and planing mills.

Albany (population, 4,606), the county site of Dougherty county, with seven lines of railway radiating from it and a steamboat traffic also with Bainbridge and points along the Flint river, in the center of a rich agricultural region, is an extensive cotton, fruit, melon and hay market, and has brick yards, cotton compresses, cottonseed oil and fertilizer factories and a large canning factory. It has gas and electric lights, a good system of artesian waterworks, and, like all the towns and cities which we have mentioned or shall yet mention, has fine schools and is well supplied with churches of the various Christian denominations. In Dougherty county is a pecan grove of 1,000 trees.

Bainbridge (population, 2,641), in Decatur county, of which it is the county seat, on the Flint River, by which it has a good steamboat trade, and at the junction of two lines of railway, in the midst of a country producing large crops of cotton, corn, sugar cane, tobacco and fruits, and with a heavy business also in lumber, has cottonseed oil mills, iron foundry, cooperage works, railway shops, several lumber mills, ice factory and a boat building plant.

Thomasville (population, 5,322) the county seat of Thomas county with broad and well-kept streets and gardens, in which flowers bloom the year round, is lighted by gas and electricity and has a good system of waterworks, railroad shops, sash and blind factories and an iron foundry. Young Female College and South Georgia College are located here.

Cairo, in Thomas county, is a great point for the manufacture and shipping of Georgia cane syrup.

Camilla (population, 1,051) in Mitchell county, on a branch of the Savannah, Florida and Western Railway, has fertilizer works and is the market for many and varied products such as peaches, grapes, walnuts, lumber, turpentine and rosin. There are several groves of pecans, one of them covering a hundred acres.

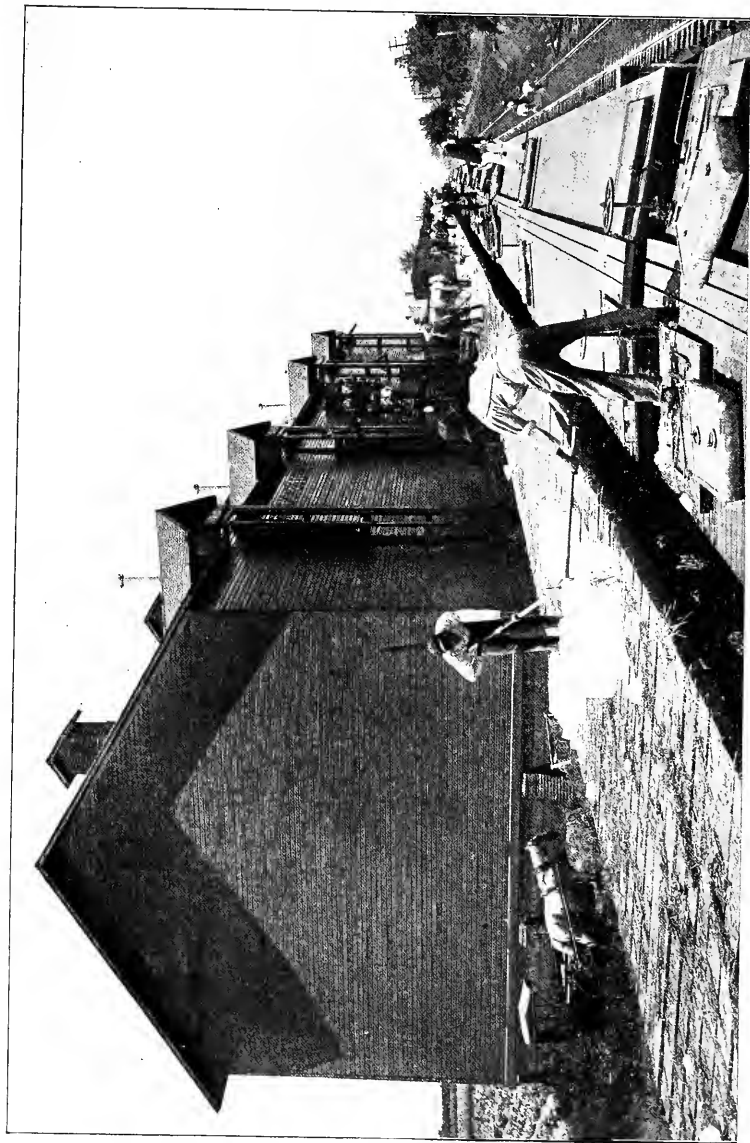

Moultrie (population, 2,221), the county seat of Colquitt county, where three railroads meet, has electric lights, waterworks, a cotton mill, ice factory, railroad shop, wagon and buggy factory, many large turpentine distilleries in its vicinity and is an extensive market for grapes and melons.

Quitman (population, 2,281), the county-seat of Brooks county on the Savannah, Florida and Western railroad, a branch of the great Atlantic Coast Line System, in a rich market garden section, is the shipping point for garden produce and melons. It has a cotton mill, fertilizer and oil factories, ice factory, waterworks and electric plant.

Valdosta (population, 5,613), the county seat of Lowndes county, is a great railroad center in the heart of a great yellow pine region, and is the greatest inland market for sea-island cotton, large crops of which are raised in its neighborhood. The shipment of naval stores to Brunswick and Savannah is one of its great industries and it has an iron foundry, and factories for the manufacture of cotton goods, fertilizers, buggies, builders' material and other woodwork, and an iron foundry. It also has a pork packing establishment. It has waterworks and electric lights.

Blakely, in Early county, is the seat of a large fertilizer and oil mill, lumber and turpentine business. Miller, Baker, Webster, Calhoun, Taylor, and Chattahoochee are all good counties, rich in agricultural products and with good railroad facilities. In Crawford county is a fine vein of pottery clay.

All South Georgia is a great and growing country, increasing rapidly in wealth and population, and with every advantage, educational and religious. In fact, each section of Georgia offers an inviting field to the enterprising immigrant. She is a great, broad-minded State, growing rapidly in population, wealth and influence. To every class of industrious law-abiding people, seeking pleasant homes and with a mind to work, especially to all true Americans from North, West or South, without regard to political affiliations, Georgia stretches forth the right hand of fellowship, and bids them welcome.

The price of lands in Georgia varies from ten to seventy-five dollars an acre, according to fertility of soil or proximity to some large city or rapidly growing town.

FOURTH NATIONAL BANK

ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

We Want to Serve you.

Write or Call.

Don't forget that Mr. Frederick H. Lewis, the greatest living recognized authority on the manufacture of Portland Cement, manufactures OLD DOMINION. See his books. Use Old Dominion for Mosaic Tile work, Hexagon Tile, Stucco, Pebble Dash, and all high grade work.

KEYSTONE LIME is guaranteed as good as the Eastern Rockport Maine Lime,

THE WORLD'S BEST

Killian's No. 1 Machine Made and Killian's Hand Made Fire Brick, Terra Cotta Pipe, Etc.

Use ALABAMA and SOUTHERN CROSS Brands of Portland Cement, (slag) for concrete foundations for Residences, Court Houses, Cotton Oil and Lumber Mills, Asphalt, and Vitrified Brick Roadways.

Use MAGNOLIA SEMI-GRADE PORTLAND CEMENT on work that requires a Cement between PORTLAND and HYDRAULIC.

Acme Cement Hard Wall Plaster and Acme Cement Wood Fibre Plaster are the best grades of their respective kinds

CAROLINA PORTLAND CEMENT CO.

The Model Plant of the World

MANUFACTURES ONLY ONE GRADE—THE HIGHEST.

CAPACITY 1,600 BARRELS PER DAY

SOUTHERN STATES PORTLAND CEMENT

Has been approved by city engineers of all Southern Cities, by chief engineers of all important railroads and by the Supervising Architects of the United States Government, Washington, D. C.

WHAT EXPERTS AND DEALERS SAY.

"We are using your Southern States Portland Cement in building the U. S. Court House and Post Office building at Greenville, Tenn. It was approved for the work by Supervising Architect, Washington, D. C. We consider your cement equal to any brand used in this market."

Atlanta, Ga.

MILES & BRADT,
Architects, Builders and Contractors.

"In December, 1903, I made some test of Southern States Portland Cement with the following results:

Neat Cement one week old, tensile strength per square inch average 580 1-3 lbs.

Neat Cement one month old, 720 lbs.

Mixed with sand, one part cement and three parts sand, one week old, 173 2-3 lbs.—Same mixture one month old 223 2-3 lbs.

"We have been using your Southern States Portland Cement on city work since December, 1903, and are now using about 200 barrels per week and it affords me pleasure to state with entire satisfaction."

Atlanta, Ga.

R. M. CLAYTON, City Engineer

The New Columbia,
(Single Key-board.)

MR. CHAS. SPIRO,

OF NEW YORK CITY,

The New Bar-Lock,
(Double Key-board.)

The Inventor of these machines, originated the idea of VISIBLE WRITING years ago and has clearly demonstrated the rectitude of the new standard.

If you contemplate buying a typewriter now, or in the near future, does not reason dictate that you should apply the same business principles to the transaction that you would to the purchase of a blooded cow or horse? These you would select by "Points." Permit us then to call your favorable attention to our "Points" of excellence not possessed by any other typewriter:

We manufacture both a double and single key-board.

VISIBLE WRITING

All the writing remains in sight continuously.

Descending type-bars enhance manifolding power.

A separate lock for each series of type-bars, insuring the best alignment. Wide, direct acting type-bar bearings, insuring durability.

Bail-bearing Carriage.
Rapid feed from top for postal cards, telegrams, etc.

Illuminating color work done instantly for advertising, etc.

A mimeograph attachment.

A paragraph attachment.

A "Justifying" attachment for use in libraries.

A device for inverting the ribbon, thus doubling its life.

The best written Guaranty given by any Co.

When you remember that our machines do all that others practically accomplish and the above in addition, we think you will not fail to hunt us up before buying elsewhere.

We also do Expert Repair Work and Carry a Fine Line of Supplies.

THIS ABOUT BEER.

Steinerbrau

Is made of the best imported hops and malt the world produces.

This brewery is conducted on the best hygienic principles and the most absolute cleanliness is observed in every department.

Great care is taken to see that beer is in the finest possible condition before delivered to the trade.

Steinerbrau

BEER IS A PRODUCT OF THE CLEANEST, BEST EQUIPPED, MOST MODERN BREWERY IN THE COUNTRY. A DELICIOUS, CREAMY, SPARKLING BEER.

Steinerbrau

When you want beer why don't you say "STEINERBRAU" and drink with the feeling that you have procured the best that your money can buy?

The Atlanta Brewing & Ice Company spend more money to make good beer than any other brewery in the South.

Steinerbrau, is full of strength and fine flavor. Well aged and absolutely pure.

Steinerbrau

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID OF THE QUALITY OF BEER, AND THE RESULT IS THE CAREFUL, DISCRIMINATING MAN ORDERS STEINERBRAU.

STRONG POINTS

FOR
WEAK MEN

- FIRST—We are the only resident specialists for men in Atlanta.
SECOND—We treat all of our patients ourselves never relying upon substitutes to look after them.
THIRD—Our office is not a branch office.
FOURTH—We have had the largest and longest experience in this line of any specialists in Atlanta.
FIFTH—We are the best equipped.
SIXTH—We have cured hundreds of the best citizens of Atlanta, and the surrounding country, whom we can refer to with pride.
SEVENTH—We furnish all medicines necessary in the treatment of our cases without extra charge.
EIGHTH—We are the only specialists in the south prepared to give the world-famous Electro-Chemic Treatment.
NINTH—We treat successfully all diseases peculiar to men, also SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON, SKIN, RECTAL, KIDNEY and BLADDER DISEASES, RUPTURE.

If you cannot call, write a statement of your case as you understand it, and it will receive prompt and personal attention.

A PURE OLD CORN WHISKEY

besides being the best known stimulant, has an unsurpassed therapeutical value. It is an ideal tonic for fortifying the system. BUT IT MUST BE PURE.

Our forefathers used a very primitive method in the distillation of Corn Whiskey for their own family and medicinal purposes, but the product was honest and unadulterated. We adopted this "primitive method" years ago, improving on it as our experiments justified. We discovered that by a double filtration through charcoal the injurious oils could be eliminated from our product and that by ageing it in lightly charred barrels the whiskey acquired a rich amber color and that soft velvety taste so exquisite to the connoisseur, so palatable to the most delicate invalid. R. M. Rose Co. own more old Georgia "primitive method" Corn Whiskey in stock and bond from one to six years old than all other dealers in the United States combined. Rose's celebrated Old Corn Whiskeys are sold to the consumer direct.

Terms are strictly cash with order. Owing to recent court decisions, liquors cannot be shipped C. O. D. to prohibition towns. All mail orders receive the prompt and personal attention of R. M. Rose, Pres., or Randolph Rose, Secretary & Treasurer.

South's Best Farmers.

For 63 Years the Leading Agricultural Paper of the South.

That is a pretty large claim, but we believe it. And what is more, our advertisers and subscribers believe it. That is what makes it true.

But THE SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR was never so prominent and aggressive as under its present editorial and business management. The following extract from editorial in our special issue of March 1, 1904, commemorating our 63rd anniversary and the five years of work under the present management, shows what THE SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR has accomplished under the editorial management of Dr. J. B. Hunnicut:

"Agriculture in the South was then (in 1899) floundering in a sea of uncertainty and gloom. All kinds of forebodings and evil prognostications filled the air. We at once announced that we took no stock in that kind of feeling. We believed that a better way of farming could be found and that a brighter day for the farmer would follow.

"Since that day THE SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR has had a definite aim. It has stood for a better method of farming. We believed that when we used the same business methods on the farm that we used in other lines of business, prosperity would be the result. THE CULTIVATOR is no accident or incident. It is a paper with a purpose. We have steadily preached the doctrine that good work on the farm would pay.

"We believe that if three inches of soil had made something, more soil would make more. We believed that crops grew in proportion to the cubic space of soil from which they fed. Hence 12 inches of soil would make much larger yields than four inches.

"Almost alone and often ridiculed we have fought on this line.

"But now a great change has come. Thousands of farmers and writers have come to believe as we do about this and other forward movements in farming. Great and growing prosperity is spreading all over the South. We find that our lands are as productive as the land of the North or West. We find that a great variety of crops can be grown here profitably. We find that improved implements can be used to advantage in place of tiring and unreliable labor when we have moved the stumps and stones. We find that we can grow cattle and make butter and beef and cheese and all these luxuries. We find that in vegetables and fruits we can surpass any other sections. We find that we are not dependent upon cotton and cotton alone for money. All these and hundreds of more things that we are daily learning have brought about a great change.

"Instead of being the poorest we are getting to be the richest section of the United States. THE CULTIVATOR has led in bringing about this great reformation. And we propose to keep in the front."

THE SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR treats of those subjects which are the very keystone of Southern prosperity, and it treats of them with authority and power. The past is surely an indication of the Future. If you wish to reach the farmers of the South, THE SOUTHERN CULTIVATOR is the medium.

GOPHER OIL

THE NEW ERA REMEDY

Should be in every home for emergencies. It takes out the fire of burns and scalds and heals up the sore. Is specific for Chronic Sores, Ulcers, Eczema, Sprains, Swelling, Rheumatism, Inflammation, Mumps, Chills, Piles and all injuries.

Using GOPHER OIL convinces all that it is no experiment. GOPHER OIL is the ideal "Twentieth Century Remedy," the "New Era Medicine." The world today is confronted with the fact that GOPHER OIL is the most wonderful and powerfully penetrating substance yet produced, and with all this, it does not sting the tender parts to irritation, but soothes to gentle rest and ease, the irritated nerves, the nagging pain, the weeping sore, the eczematous itch, conquering the evil, not effecting in the least healthy tissue.

Full directions go with each 25c. or 50c. bottle. Get it at druggists and country stores.

FOR YOUR LIVER'S SAKE
PODOPHYLETS
TAKE

A MATCHLESS LIVER MEDICINE

That acts gently and easily. They pleasantly unload the Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys of that which clogs the system, and produces disease.

The Liver is the great organ of the body, and if that is kept in good, active condition, disease cannot exist.

PODOPHYLETS are manufactured from a formula, devised by a corps of eminent Physicians and are the best medicine of the kind in the world to-day. They are sold on a positive guarantee to cure Biliousness, Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Dysentery, Impure Blood, Rurred Tongue, Dizziness, Nausea, Sallow Complexion and the many distressing diseases arising from an inactive Liver, Clogged Bowels and diseased Kidneys.

ABOUT YOUR ORDER.—There are a lot of things you have to buy without any trial at all and must then make the best of your purchase, good or bad. The giving of a trial treatment is positive proof of our faith in PODOPHYLETS, and the guarantee we give is evidence of our honorable dealings with customers. The price of any treatment is dear unless it actually cures the disease for which it is taken. PODOPHYLETS positively cure or we refund your money.

Druggists sell PODOPHYLETS for 10c and 25c of 9 and 24 dos.s. 4 large boxes, a complete course with guarantee, for $5.00. If you have received a sample and your Druggist cannot supply you, send $5.00 money order, postal order, stamps or registered letter to PODOPHYLET MED. CO., Box 558, Atlanta, Ga., for complete course with guarantee. If you have neither then write for FREE SAMPLE.

American Queen...

A Beer for Connoisseurs

American Queen Beer represents the very highest attainment of the brewer's art. It is absolutely pure, delicious in flavor, full of "life" and "vim"—a delightful beverage—exhilarating and healthful—an ideal food and tonic.

For home use American Queen has no peer—at the club the most fastidious prefer it to all other brands—wherever introduced it has immediately become a favorite. Ask for it—and insist on the brewery bottling.

American Queen and other Acme Beers are sold by good dealers everywhere.

AMERICUS

Americus is one of the most beautiful cities in Georgia. It is the city farthest south which crowns the plateau lying southward from Macon and the central part of the state, and which gradually recedes from this point into the lower and level land of the southern most part of the state.

It is situated on the main line of the Seaboard Air Line and Central of Georgia Railways; being a dividing point of the Seaboard on their line running between Montgomery, Alabama, and Savannah of this state. The company maintaining here large construction and repairing shops.

Americus has a population of nine thousand with an assessed property of more than two million and six hundred thousand in 1903, which according to the best authority and information available represents about two thirds of its actual or real value.

Upon this is levied a tax of $1.50 which meets every requirement of the city's government, and provides a sufficient sum to pay the interest on outstanding bonds and create a sinking fund for their retirement as fast as they become due. These bonds—in all amount to one hundred and thirty-nine thousand dollars, the proceeds of which have been judiciously expended in water works, sewerage and other public improvements such as schools, streets, etc.

WATER WORKS.—The city owns and operates what is probably the best water works in the Southern States for a town of like importance. Sixteen miles of water main has been laid through its streets, at a cost of nearly one hundred thousand dollars, which receives its supply from fifty-one subterranean springs and three large artesian wells, making filtration wholly unnecessary and a supply of which the capacity has never yet been tested of pure sparkling water.

During the Spanish-American war government reports of the water supply in Southern cities ranked Americus first in purity and character, the highest possible compliment to, and authority concerning this essential feature which is Americus' pride.

SEWERAGE.—Coupled with an excellent water system, Americus enjoys the distinction of having one of the finest sanitary sewerage in the United States, size of city considered. This was constructed, seven miles in all, by Mr. Earle, now Superintendent of water and sewerage Commission of New Orleans, under the supervision of Rudolph L. Herin of New York as consulting engineer, and represents an expenditure of about forty thousand dollars, and is generally regarded by municipal experts to represent the maximum of construction, both as to character and magnitude, at the minimum of any sewerage system in the Southern States.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.—Americus maintains an efficient paid fire department, which is thoroughly equipped with all modern fire apparatus, the result of which is that insurance rates are exceedingly low. During the past two years (1902-3) there has not been a single fire which has gained any headway—and no loss whatever in the fire limit district.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—The public schools of this city are the boast of the town and the pride of the State. The efficiency of their curriculum under the able management of Professor J. E. Mathis, Superintendent, is widely known throughout the State, while the high standing pupils who graduate from the high school readily taken when entering any institution of high education proves the thoroughness of their instruction.

The city owns two large buildings which were erected at a cost of about fifty thousand dollars and leases two others. During the school year of 1903-4 the total enrollment show 1285 children, 673 of which are white. It is also very interesting to note in the report of the superintendent for the ensuing school year, that only 80 white children who did not attend the public schools, none of whom were ten years of age who could neither read nor write.

FINANCIAL.—The city's thrift and commercial activity is readily reflected in its banks of which it has three.

Using these as a business barometer which is the best indication of a city's, section's or county's prosperity known to commerce, it is readily seen that a wide-spread commercial activity and financial ease abounds.

That these conditions are apparent, as well as to show, that the institutions are of such a character as to adequately take care of the financial interests of any manufacturing or industrial corporation which would seek this section as a location, the following table has been arranged, the figures obtained being taken from the best official bank reports.

ATHENS

ATHENS.—The Educational Center.

Within a hand shake reach are located the university of the state of the far famed Lucy Cobb Institute.

Few are the Georgians now coming upon the stage of life who are not conversant with the daily life of the Athenian for it was in Athens the majority of the coming actor in life finished his educational work.

It was there the young man rounded himself for his business or professional career while it was there the young lady was qualified for the duties which will develop for her when she becomes the wife of the young man who was educated but a short distance away. Nature favored Athens for the part it has filled in the history making of the Empire state of the south by giving it an altitude where pure, delightful air was abundant and where health giving waters gushed in plenty from the near by hill and mountain side. Within forty miles of the Blue Ridge mountains down from which breezes are constantly wafting to fill the lungs of the healthy growing Georgian who rarely thinks of illness or disease. Almost a thousand feet above sea level the citizens hardly realize the change from one season to another, twenty degrees above zero being as a rule the lowest temperature known, while in the hottest weather the thermometer rarely reaches as high as ninety-four. Even at the hottest in summer time the nights are cool and bracing. With a population of fifteen thousand Athens' greatest death rate for years has been less than one per cent. It has never had an epidemic of any sort while health and vigor among the people have often been commented upon throughout the state. Within the corporate limits of the city meanders the Oconee river, a stream into which many mountain streams carrying an abundance of pure mountain water empty. It is from the Oconee the city water works are supplied and the system is one of the best and most complete in the state, the filtration being one of the features. Its sewerage system is known the state over as one of the best. The city built upon elevations and depressions give the pipes an easy flow into the Oconee a distance below the water works and above which an immense dam has been constructed to prevent the possibility of contamination by a back up. The water works were constructed in '92 and since that date the plant has been visited by experts or observers from other cities who were on tours of inspection. Without an exception the system and the plan and the work have been endorsed and many are the compliments which have been paid Mayor Rhodes and those associated with him in the conduct of the municipality. The legislative body is made up of the leading and successful business men of the city, men who have shown ability to take care of their own affairs and who are therefore able to care for the city. Athens enjoys the distinction of having one of the finest and best equipped electric street car services in the city every one of the principal streets having tracks and satisfactory schedules. The sewerage system, as has been said is one of the best and most satisfactory in the state and has been copied by municipalities in the south more than once. Not content with being the pioneer in educational work, Athens as far back as 1844 took a hand in manufacturing and that year set up the High Shoals Manufacturing company with J. W. Hinton as president. It carried 10,000 spindles and 187 looms and made plaids and yarns. Three years later, 1847, the Southern Mutual Fire Insurance company was organized in Athens and has been in business ever since. It is wholly unlike any other company. It does no business outside the state. One of the largest industries in Clarke county is the Whitehall Yarn mills established in '94, the product of which goes almost exclusively to Europe. On the ground once occupied by the oldest mill in the south, a mill which was destroyed during the war between the states the Georgia Manufacturing company is now operating a plant which was constructed in 1882. The old mill was constructed in 1829 by A. Clayton and Thomas Johnson and was managed by John White Sr. from '36 to '54. The present plant is managed by John White Jr.

The Athens Electric Light Plant is owned by the Athens Electric Railroad company which furnishes the city with arc lights at $55.76 per light, the price said to be the lowest in the country. It was the Athens Electrical company which is said to have turned the first wheel in the country. It is at Athens the North Georgia Fair Association hold every year its fairs, fairs in which some ten counties participate and which are a feature in that section of the state once a year.

ATLANTA

The Queen City of the state, the Gate City of the South, the youngest of the sisterhood of progressive towns which have made Georgia famous the world over—Atlanta.

It is upon the acme of the Piedmont region Atlanta is located and notwithstanding the fact that she is but half a century in age she has proven herself the premier of all towns not only in the state but throughout the South.

To the casual reader of the daily papers the phenomenal history of Atlanta is well known. It was in the forties that a few hearty, progressive pioneers began building homes and places of business near what is now known as the junction of Decatur, Marietta and Peachtree streets. At that time the Georgia railway was wending its way North and because Decatur objected to being the end of that line the promoters of the railway system pushed along to what was then commonly accepted as the cross roads in Henry County. Here the line rested and because of that rest the old cross roads became known as the terminus.

About the same time, or shortly thereafter, the Western & Atlantic Road, the state's property was projected, and within a short time, a link of rails and cross ties stretching between Chattanooga on the Tennessee border and the terminus was being constructed. With the construction of the new line the life, prosperity and business of the old cross roads began to manifest itself and within a short time the population began to assume proportions. It was then that the dignity of the citizenry called for a name in keeping with its growth than the word Terminus indicated. On the old Norcross corner, where the Fourth National Building is now reaching into the skies, so tradition says there was a meeting of the pioneers to give the then progressive town a name more suitable to its growth and conditions. Just at that time, Miss Martha Lumpkin, daughter of one of Georgia's governors, was the reigning belle of the Empire State of the South. Sitting around the warm stove in the Hon. Jonathan Norcross' counting room discussion as to a name for the new city was rife and at times ran riot. Finally, Marthasville proved itself popular with that aggregation of old time settlers; and, for a number of years, the point at which the Georgia Railway and the State Railway came together was known as Marthasville. Under that name the town continued to prosper and grow. New business houses, new homes and new plantations were being rapidly carved out of that territory, which but a short time before was a wilderness given over to the red man, the deer, the bear and other wild animals of that age and period. Even those, who were first among the first at the cross roads, as well as those who came later, were astonished at the rapid and unprecedented progress of the newborn town. New industries of all kinds began to spring up. Nothing seemed to stand in the way of the new settlement, and day after day were presented additional evidences of the faith of those who had planted themselves here in the future of the thriving town.

It was the same spirit, which today governs and controls Atlanta that then governed and controlled Marthasville.

Not altogether eupheneous was the name the people had selected a change of name was suggested.

For half a century residents of Atlanta have been discussing the manner in which it eventually obtained the name it now bears. Some ascribe the name to one event, some to another. Still so far there has been no settled conclusion as to how the name of Atlanta was finally selected.

But Atlanta—the name has been a talisman, a seasma to this spot of earth and to those who have here made their homes and here conducted their business.

With the declining years of the '50's Atlanta was beginning a rapid race in its competition with other Southern towns, some of which were two, three and even four times as old. It was just reaching its commercial prominence when the war between the states came on. At that time there were here great slaves marts, some of the largest wholesale grocery houses in this section of the South. Runners for these Atlanta concerns were penetrating the territory which for years had been given over without dispute to Macon, Savannah, Charleston and Chattanooga. The incoming of the Atlanta trade solicitor was looked upon by these older towns as an affront. The representative houses of these older cities could not by what right Atlanta had penetrated their territory.

But, backed and equipped with that same nerve, pluck and determination, which has ever since characterized the Gate City of the South, her drummers continue to push their way; and, within a short time, much of the trade which had been going into the quartette of old cities found its way into Atlanta. It was here that the Georgia planter came to buy his slaves. It was here the Georgia planter came to buy his mules. It was here the Georgia planter came to buy his wearing apparel and his food.

And it was in this way that Atlanta aroused an enmity in some sections of the South, which is still in force.

With the opening of the war, Atlanta's geographical situation made her a point of vantage to the Confederate Government. In the early days of that memorable struggle it was into Atlanta troops poured from all sections of the South enroute to the front it was into Atlanta that supplies of all kinds for the fighting forces were sent for storage. It was into Atlanta, during the latter part of the war, that brigades, divisions and corps were rushed to protect the entire South from the invasion by Sherman's forces. It was Atlanta that held the key to the situation. It was Atlanta upon the holding of which the fate of the Confederacy hung. Here the last and most desperate stand was made. As long as Atlanta held out there was hope for the new government. But, with the fall of Atlanta, the death knell of the Confederacy was sounded.

So it was that for a period of two years about the eyes of the entire world was centered upon Atlanta. The student of that great conflict, whether in America or in Europe, it mattered not where he was, realized that the fate of Atlanta was the fate of the Confederate government. In this way, Atlanta gained a prominence which came to no other city of the South, not even Richmond.

No other city of the South, not even Richmond, the capital of the ill-fated Confederacy.

The war over, Atlanta, a mass of ruins, was generally considered by the student of geography as a dead town, a town which nothing could revive and reinstate.

But Phoenix-like, the Gate City quickly arose from its bed of ashes.

That same energy, pluck, work and determination which had changed the Henry County cross-roads into the Terminus, the Terminus into Marthasville, Marthasville into Atlanta, quickly became apparent again and once more it was a city inoculated with thrift, energy and vigor which attracted the attention not only of the residents of the near by towns but of the casual observer, who happened to pass through. Into the city flocked the men who had made good soldiers, some of whom wore the Gray, some the Blue. Within a short time it was demonstrated conclusively that the man who made a good soldier, who is fearless in battle and generous in victory invariably made a good business man.

It was these men, who but a short time before had faced each other in determined death struggles were working side by side in the upbuilding of the new Atlanta. The same life, the same energy they had exhibited when facing each other with musket, was manifested as they vied each with the other in securing trade for Atlanta houses. It was the example these men set which has ever since been followed by the energetic Atlantan who goes out of the city with his sample case.

Within a year after the close of the war Atlanta had a population of something like eight thousand. Two years later that population was practically doubled. In 1880 Atlanta had a citizenry approximating 25,000. It was then that the full growth of Atlanta was asserted by many throughout the South. But again a mistake had been made for Atlanta had not yet attained its knickerbockers. Five years later the town had doubled its population while in '90 it had reached something like 65,000 or 70,000.

And still the story of Atlanta's growth was written within its initial paragraphs. With 1900 came a population of over 100,000 and still the music of the saw and the hammer were being echoed from every hilltop and every vale within the city limits.

Yet Atlanta was to see the period of its most rapid and solid growth. It is within the last three or four years that the most phenomenal expansion of any city of the South has been observed in Atlanta. During that time more buildings of gigantic proportions and positive wealth have been erected than ever before within twice the period of time. A casual observation shows the erection of more valuable buildings than any other town of the same size from the Atlantic to the Pacific can present. And still the mania for handsome office structures and for magnificent palatial homes is every day showing itself.

A resume of Atlanta's commercial growth would be almost among the impossibilities; from a half dozen drummers representing as many houses that particular line has grown until now an army of sample case carriers can be seen leaving the city every morning. With only a few shops the ambition of which was to supply the local trade of the city, the manufacturing industries have grown until today when hundreds of smoke stacks indicating some kind of a factory can be seen scattered all over the city. Trades in all lines have shown themselves and each year each of these branches is multiplied in its output. The rapidity of the growth of Atlanta is illustrated by the fact that since it was blotted from the map the city has spread over more than twelve miles of ground. With no business in 1865, comparatively, it received in 1902 four-tenths of the freight delivered in Georgia, while its post office receipts were four-tenths. Thirty seven years ago there was hardly a dollar to turn a trade. Within the past year the bank clearings aggregate $131,000,000. At the beginning of this period there were only a few stragglers remaining in the wake of Sherman's fire and sword. The business head quarters of 120,000 Atlanta is now the thriving city of the South. From bare ground covered with ashes and ruins in 1865, the city has been built up to a value of $58,000,000 this consisting largely of solid masses of brick and mortar, stone and steel, which go to make up a magnificent array of handsome business houses. In 1866 there were 300 houses in Atlanta. Today there are 25,000.

Atlanta is the result of a combination of advantages, on a commanding geographical location, turned to the best account by a spirit of transcendent energy, which surmounts all obstacles and builds even on disaster the fabric of success.

The growth of this unconquerable spirit has been promoted by a unity of purpose which has prevented the domination of factions. Whatever local interests may clash, the good of Atlanta is always a rallying cry. The Atlanta spirit, which has accomplished so much in the upbuilding of the city itself, is happily contagious, and has much to do with making Georgia the Empire State of the South. The spirit of new life has spread from this to other Southern States which are the most active in the development of their resources, and the spirit of the Southeast is the spirit of Atlanta.

For this moral and material eminence Atlanta is fortunately situated on a ridge which divides the watershed of the Atlantic from that of the Gulf, and at a point where the natural barrier of the Apalachian chain is broken by great gaps in the mountains. This is the natural point of intersection for railway lines from the West with lines from the East.

This geographical vantage ground is accompanied by a topographical eminence, from which the great climatic advantages of Atlanta are derived. More than 1,000 feet above sea-level at its lowest point, and from eleven to twelve hundred at other places, Atlanta enjoys a cool, bracing atmosphere, with breezes that blow over the foothills of the Blue Ridge. The exhilarating air is a kind of natural tonic, so different from that of the coast and Gulf regions that an inhabitant of the low counties, coming to Atlanta during the heated term, feels a stimulus as if he had been drinking great draughts of aerial champagne. The rolling surface of the country, which slopes in almost every direction from the city, affords easy drainage and keeps the surrounding region free from malaria.

Atlanta's public buildings typify the solid character of her institutions. Most conspicuous among them is the State Capitol, which was erected at a cost of $1,000,000. This stately structure, the hotels, office buildings, theatres, churches, the custom-house, the county courthouse, and other public edifices, make up an aggregate of ten millions invested in public buildings.

Outside of the public buildings, the architecture of Atlanta is of a pleasing character, and has steadily improved during the past thirty years. Few cities in any part of the United States can show more attractive residence streets or architectural designs indicating more culture and good taste. Peachtree Street, the principal one for residences, has a number of elegant homes which would be ornaments to any city.

Atlanta is a city of homes, and this is apparent not only in the appearance of the houses, but in the statistics of the United States census, by which Atlanta is credited with a larger percentage of home-owners than any city of its size in the Southern States.

The water-supply for domestic and manufacturing purposes and for sanitary use is hardly equal in any city of Atlanta's size, and the rates per thousand gallons for families or for manufacturing purposes are merely nominal, and probably lower than any on record.

Conditions in Atlanta are highly favorable to manufacturing industries, and this is attested by the great variety of articles made here. There were in 1900 395 establishments, employing over 9,000 operatives at good wages, and pouring into the channels of trade an annual pay-roll of $3,100,000. The value of the raw material consumed was more than $8,000,000 and the product between sixteen and seventeen millions. Since then the product has increased to $20,000,000 and the number of wage earners to 11,000.

The manufactories of Atlanta in their variety have a guaranty of stability not to be found in those of any city where industry is confined to one family, as of iron or cotton, however important that may be, and the extent of this variety is to some degree indicated in the chapter on this subject. Among the articles made are many specialties, for which there is a demand in almost every State in the Union, and concerns making them have enjoyed prosperity through a long series of years.

The trade of Atlanta covers all of the States between the Ohio and Potomac rivers, the Gulf, the Atlantic ocean and the Mississippi river, and in some lines, extends to the far Southwestern States and into Mexico, while in a few it covers the entire country. The tendency of the jobbing trade of the Southeast is to concentrate in Atlanta, and little by little the business of other centers gravitates to this city.

Atlanta's commanding geographical and topographical situation was, at the outset, one of the causes which led to the development of a great railroad center, at which powerful systems from the East, the West and the Southeast regularly compete. As a distributing point Atlanta enjoys facilities hardly equaled elsewhere in the Southeastern States, and as an accessible place of rendezvous for all kinds of organizations and interests, it is a favorite, and has come to be known as the Convention City.

Atlanta's financial institutions are of the most solid character.

Atlanta is the third city in the United States in the amount of insurance written and reported to agencies. It is the Southern headquarters for a number of fire and life insurance companies, and agencies of old-line and every other type of insurance are numerous.

Atlanta early established a system of public schools, and before almost any city in the South, turned its attention to technical education. The Technological School was established by the State upon inducements offered by the city of Atlanta, which bore half of the cost of the original plant, and contributes regularly to the support of the institution. There is ample opportunity here for technical instruction of other kinds. Atlanta has three medical colleges, whose attendance averages 600, to say nothing of the students of the dental colleges. Several large and flourishing business colleges have maintained themselves here for many years.

The religious and social atmosphere of Atlanta is wholesome and invigorating. It is a city of churches and the home of church-going people, and the community is honey-combed with fraternal organizations.

The social intercourse of the people, as well as the facility for doing business, is greatly aided by an ideal system of rapid transit.

With all these advantages, Atlanta has a wholesome and inspiring public spirit which never fails to respond when the interests of the city are at stake. This is perhaps the most distinctive thing about Atlanta.

The city government of Atlanta is administered by a Mayor and General Council and Executive boards. The legislative body is composed of councilmen from the different wards, elected by the whole city, and aldermen who are elected in a like manner. The aldermen and councilmen vote separately on matters involving the expenditure of money, and the concurrence of both bodies is necessary to an appropriation. The Mayor has the usual veto power.

The tax rate is one and a quarter per cent. and the ratio of assessment to real value of property is about sixty per cent. The assessed value of real and personal property is $57,369,612.

The city owns property valued at nine millions, and has a bonded debt of $3,081,500. Deducting the Sinking Fund of $210,695.18, the net debt is $2,870,804.82. There is no floating debt, and the bonded debt is limited by the State Constitution to seven per cent. on the taxable property. The net debt is therefore $1,000,000 under the limit.

The Charter requires the Mayor and General Council to carry over a balance of $175,000 in cash from year to year. This keeps the Treasury in good condition and the city is able to float three and one-half per cent. bonds at par and above.

LIGHT AND POWER.—Atlanta is well supplied with gas at a low figure—$1.00 per thousand cubic feet. It is so economical that gas stoves are very largely used for cooking purposes and not a few for heating.

The Georgia Railway and Electric Company has two large plants for the generation of electric current for light and power. The city is well illuminated by arc lights and electricity is largely used in business offices and residences.

The same company has a steam-heating plant, and pipes have been laid in the principal streets for this service.

GREAT POWER PLANT.—The Atlanta Water and Electric Power Plant Company has been at work since August, 1902, on a massive masonry dam across the Chattahoochee river, at Bull Sluice shoals, fifteen miles from Atlanta. They had expended $300,000 by February, 1903, and by the middle of 1904 the plant will be completed and equipped to deliver 11,000-horse power of electric current in Atlanta. The total investment will be $2,000,000. This power plant will give a tremendous stimulus to manufacturing. Already the assurance of this power has called into existence two mammoth new enterprise, not yet known to the public, which will use a third of the electric current thus made available. Smaller industries in sight increase the demand to half the new power, fifteen months before the current can be turned on. There is hardly a doubt that the whole of the 11,000-horse-power will be taken by the time it is ready for use.

As the steam and electric powers already in existence furnish 45,000-horse power, which is in constant use, the addition of 11,000-horse power within two years will increase the manufacturing industries of Atlanta by twenty-five per cent. This is considered a very moderate estimate; for within the two and a half years following the census of June, 1900 the product of Atlanta factories increased from $16,721,000 to $20,417,000, and the number of wage earners from 9,368 to more than 11,000.

EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES.—Atlanta has an imposing array of educational institutions, extending from the public school system to the great polytechnic institute known as the Georgia Institute of Technology. There is a variety of technical schools, including law, medicine, dentistry, handicrafts, business colleges, industrial schools and divinity schools.

There are sixteen white and six colored Grammar schools, a Girls' High School a Boys' High School, and a night school. The total expenditure for these institutions during the year 1901 was $186,475.50. The cost per pupil was $15.49, and the number of pupils 12,000.

There is a usual organization of Superintendent, Assistant Superintendent, principal and teachers, under a Board of Education.

The teachers meet in normal class once a week, and many of them spend their vacations at summer schools of the great universities. There is a fine esprit de corps, and excellent work is done.

Atlanta's great educational institution is the Georgia Institute of Technology, supported by the State of Georgia, with an additional annual appropriation from the city. It has about 400 students, and the work is the best of its kind in the South. There are machine shops in wood and in the metals, a blacksmith shop, a textile school, and departments of electrical engineering and mechanical engineering. In addition there is excellent work in mathematics, chemistry, and the other scientific schools, with a good education in English.

Graduates of this institution have been distinguished for the thoroughness and the practical value of their education, which has enabled them to go from the shops and recitation-rooms directly into manufacturing and engineering pursuits.

A number of them hold very high and responsible positions in the management of great enterprises, and almost without exception, the graduates hold good positions in productive industry.

There are 600 students attending the medical colleges of Atlanta.

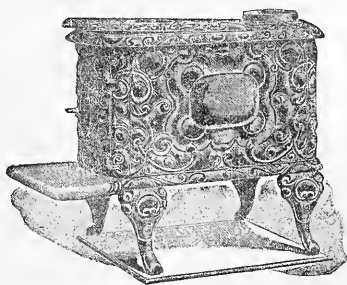

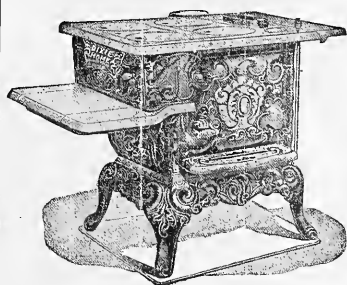

The Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons is one of the best equipped in the country, and its course is very thorough. It has a very large attendance from all parts of the Southern States, and some from beyond that territory.

Eclectic College of Medicine and Surgery is also well attended.

The Dental College holds a position of eminence among the institutions of that kind.

The members of the Medical and Dental professions of the city rank high.

There are several excellent institutions for the education of girls, notably the Agnes Scott Institute, the Southern Female College and the Washington Seminary.

The Southern Military College is an excellent institution for boys, and Hunter's School for Boys has a fine reputation.

THE CARNEGIE LIBRARY.— The Carnegie Library, built of white marble, at a cost of $120,000, and supplied with 20,000 volumes, is one of the best of Atlanta's institutions. It has a circulation of 11,000 and any citizen can secure books without charge.

The library began as the "Young Men's Library," a subscription institution, which acquired most of the books now on the shelves. Several years ago Mr. A. Carnegie gave the city of Atlanta $100,000 to erect a building for the library, provided the city would maintain it with an annual expenditure of not less than $5,000. The conditions of the gift were complied with, and the new building was erected near Peachtree street, and the young Men's Library was merged in the Carnegie Library.

Since then, Mr. Carnegie has added $45,000 to his gift, of which $20,000 was for the building and $25,000 for furnishings.

The State Library has a large collection of law books, and a rare collection of colonial history of this and other Southern States.

Andrews, Superintendent, Manufacturers of Woodworking Machinery, Shafting, Pulleys and Hangers. General Machine and Repair Shop No. 64 South Forsyth Street. This company makes a specialty of machinery for planing mills, furniture factories and wood-working shops, and they have the best facilities for doing all kinds of machine work; besides this, they also build hand and power elevators.

Mr Richards is thoroughly familiar with the details of the business, and no man has wider experience than he in this line. He is also one of the leading members of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

AUGUSTA

The Georgia City which has given to the state some of its most prominent and successful men.

Along the Savannah river that stream which loses itself in the waters of the Atlantic is located, the third city in the state from a population stand point. It was a hundred years ago or more that a few Americans who knew not fear or hardship tented for the night on the banks of that stream which wended its way to the ocean front where to-day stands one of the proudest cities of the state. So abundant was the game in the stream, upon the land alongside and in the air above that the night's sojourn drew itself into a prolonged stay, a stay so drawn out that Augusta by tradition rather than by recorded history may date its birth from that camp.

But be that as it may Augusta now has for its central point geographically a monument upon the identical spot where those strong, brave men rested that night, that marker having been dedicated to the brave sons of Richmond county who gave up their lives in the war between the states. Before the struggle of the early '60's there was little of Augusta about which a picture could be drawn. But during that struggle and for a few years immediately thereafter there was an abundance of material for both the artist and the writer. On the Carolina line, the river separating the two states Augusta found itself in history making almost before the people of the city realized that their town was on the map of Georgia. It is just across the river that Hamburg rests—Hamburg that Carolina town once the peer of Augusta. Claiming nothing because of its population but claiming all because it was the home of a half dozen of the wealthiest planters of the state and as many of its most extensive slave owners. Hamburgers declined to yield to the demands of the negroes, once slaves but then in office and that great historical riot of the early '70's came. It was then that Augusta came to the front historically and from that day to the present Augusta has been indelibly written upon the map of the South.

But one other city of the state can boast of the fact that it was laid out by Oglethorpe. In 1737 that founder and pioneer of the colony set his surveyors to work on right bank of the Savannah river and in 1798, fifty years later Augusta was incorporated. Blessed with an excellent climate, the air being dry, crisp and healthful, the soil fertile and responsive, a clever navigation to Savannah and in close touch with its sister state it did not take the settlement long to demonstrate that profitable homes, free from Indian raids, one of the great dangers of that period, was ready for those who came to that section. During the days preceeding the revolution the planter raised his cotton and gave his time to the importation or the rearing of his negro.

And in all this work he was remarkably successful.

Then as the dark clouds of the revolt from King George began to gather over the political horizon dissensions and divisions commenced to show among those who had lived for years in peace and harmony. In that section were those who espoused the cause of the ruler while next to the royalist lived the man, his life long friend who wanted freedom, even if war were necessary to secure that freedom. By the time the clash came there were two parties, both strong and fearless every member of which was ready to stand by his faith. It was a leading part Augusta played in that memorable struggle. It was there many of the decisive struggles came on. It was there the follower of both Washington and the King showed the material of which they were made. And then after the new government was set up it was from Augusta some of the leading leaders came to war in peace as they had in the days gone by.

It was at Augusta and it was upon the waters of the Savannah, notwithstanding the many vehement declarations to the contrary that the first steamboat was made to cut its way through the waters. Fulton's Hudson river boats are all good and the dates historians give for that event are all satisfactory to even the student of Georgia history. But Fulton's work on the Hudson was antedated by the little steamer which cut the waters of the Savannah at Augusta after it had been turned upon the waves of that stream prior to the Hudson river work.

Up to the '60's Augusta maintained a steady growth, the majority of the residents being extensive planters in Richmond county within a few hours' ride or drive of the city. Cotton, then as now was the leading product in that section and from the wharf on the banks of the Savannah river many was the boat loaded with the fleecy staple for its point of destination across the Atlantic. But during the war between the states Augusta once more came to the front with its quota of men all ready to give limb or life for the cause they espoused. From Augusta came some of the best soldiers shown during that great conflict. It was Augusta which gave many of the best officers who fell while fighting under the stars and bars.

The war over, broken in health and in purse these same good soldiers came home to make as good a citizen as they had made fearless fighters. Then the struggle for life began. The negro in whom dollars upon dollars had been invested was in greater number than was the late master. It was negro supremacy or another bitter struggle. Surrendering nothing of his pride, sacrificing nothing of his manhood the Augustan set to work determined to redeem what he had had before the war began. It was a slow task but the more obstinate it appeared the more determined the Augustan showed himself. The city was in ruins and those who had known it and who still loved it went into the contest. In '70 the population was a few thousand only. Cotton was the natural trade feature of the section and within a few years after the war was over Augusta was handling more cotton than any city in the state with possibly two exceptions. Its magnificent water power caught the attention of some eastern capitalists and within a short time a cotton mill was in operation in that city. It proved a paying investment and within a short time another mill was under way. Before that structure was completed others were discussed, contemplated and conjectured. The expansion of the milling industry gave a head writer on a northern daily the right to dub Augusta the "Lowell of the South", a name which is frequently used to-day in speaking of Augusta. Each mill added to the line in that city seemed an inspiration for other mill builders the result being that to-day Augusta is one of the largest cotton mill towns in the south. In order to bring land desirable for mill plants near the waters of the Savannah a canal nine miles long, that is its run to-day, was constructed. The canal is one hundred and fifty feet wide and is the property of the city. Its capacity is sufficient for all demands upon it to-day but that capacity can be easily increased. Ten different companies now own mills in Augusta, the mills combined having over six thousand looms while the spindles reach almost a quarter of a million. Over seventy thousand bales of cotton are used annually in these mills. On the Carolina side of the river are a number of cotton mills which though within a hand clasp of Augusta are not considered by the Augustans as a part of the industries of that city. In Augusta proper over $3,000,000 are invested in cotton mills in which there are five thousand six hundred and thirty seven looms and one hundred and eighty nine thousand two hundred and thirty eight spindles. From these mills the output is varied and general and in every sense of the word thoroughly satisfactory to the buyer in every market.

Cotton is not Augusta's only out put. Every resident of the city has an abiding faith in its future and is ever ready to invest a dollar in an enterprise giving the slightest promise of success. Cotton seed oil factories, brick yards, probably one of the largest in the south, certainly one of the largest in the state, planing and lumber mills, fertilizer plants, terra cotta works, broom factories, one of which is said to produce the best sweeper in the country, buggy and wagon factories and shirt factories are among the other industries.

By rail Augusta has direct connection with almost every city in the Carolinas and Georgia. The Central system in Georgia and the Georgia system with the South Carolina and Charleston and the Western Railways of Carolinas together with the boat line on the Savannah give the city the greatest advantages desirable as to freight rates. That there is no dearth of trade is shown by that fact that the trade transactions of all kinds amount to $65,000,000 annually. The banking capital is within a shade of two million dollars.

The public buildings of the city are among the most attractive in the state as well as being among the most valuable. The leading thoroughfares are marked with monuments some of which are among the handsomest in the south. One on Broadway, old Broad street, erected to commemorate the valor of the men in grey is said to be beyond compare with any marker known in the entire country. A monument to three Georgians who signed the declaration of independence is a conspicuous work, one that is studied by the stranger long, closely and carefully. Many and varied are the stories of the past brought into life again by the student of history who will pass an hour or two strolling about the streets of that old town the soil of which has echoed the foot steps of Oglethorpe. Few cities of the south have as many and as delightful suburbs as has Augusta.

The educational advantages are unsurpassed, one school or academy dating back to colonial days. Then near at hand is the Augusta Medical college a department of the state university and one of the oldest schools in the state. Its public school system is equal to that of any city in the state while a number of private schools are abundantly and liberally patronized. The average attendance upon public schools alone is over five thousand daily.

Churches are numerous and handsome while the ministers are among the most scholarly and carefully trained in the state. The congregations are always large and as a consequence the morals of the city are up to a good standard. Law abiding and ever ready to lend a helping hand to one needing aid and deserving it there is never a fear of trouble. The police department is well drilled and well trained and is composed of men who as a rule are strong, athletic and of good appearance.

Than the Augusta fire department there are few better forces in any city. Thoroughly equipped with the best machinery turned out and carefully drilled in their work there is no reason to apprehend a disastrous conflagration in that city.

Many and varied are the industries which keep Augustans busy right along and good is the daily wage the workman earns. Iron is worked into any shape or style a consumer can demand. Wood is turned to any design the artisan can be called upon to produce. Factories for the furniture trade are there as are almost any other industry now catalogued in trade.

BAINBRIDGE

Its in the center of the county almost by geographical measurement Bainbridge, the thriving capital of Decatur county is situated. On the eastern bank of the Flint river, a stream at that point navigable for good boats, the growing hustling town nestles while immediately across the stream are located the lumber mill employees, a location which is within itself a goodly sized town. The residents of the lumber mill city do their trading in Bainbridge and for that reason are considered, and rightly so a portion of the city of Bainbridge. In 1900 Bainbridge had a population of twenty-six hundred. To-day, including the lumber mill section there are six thousand people or more who claim Bainbridge as their post office. Industrious and energetic are the people and therefore successful and satisfactory are the undertakings of the projectors. The city government is in the hands of young, progressive men, men who have the good of Bainbridge at heart. Mayor E. J. Willis is ever ready to stand sponsor for any movement intended or calculated to advance the interests of the city while the members of the local legislature are using all efforts to show the same devotion to the city as the mayor manifests. The taxable property reaches almost the two million dollar mark and yet the rate is almost infinitissable. Including free schools and free water it is less than .008. The school system is one of the best and most complete in the state and is under the direction of a board of trustees the members of which are elected by the voters of the county. Few counties of the state have a staff of officers more acceptable to the people at large than Decatur. The lumber industry is one of the features of the county and is one of the most remunerative. The Flint River Lumber Company, one of the most successful of that line was organized in '95 and is located advantageously on the main lines of the A. C. L. and G. F. and A. railroads, every convenience for shipping being offered.

While Bainbridge is the mart of Decatur, the county within itself adds no little to the commercial worth of that section. In fact within the county are potent interests financially and otherwise. The Cohens tobacco farm seventeen miles from the city of which S. A. Einstein is general manager is an industry of importance and is well known throughout the tobacco trade. The company operates nineteen tobacco farms in that section and employs between three and four hundred people. It works one hundred and sixty mules and owns five hundred head of cattle. The work is of the intensive character and last year 1,200,000 pounds of tobacco were turned out. The same company owns and operates a large sugar mill. Brick yards of extensive proportions give employment to an army of men while the cooperage works are among the largest of that kind in the state. In the county are some of the most productive turpentine forests in the state.

FLINT RIVER LUMBER COMPANY.—The Flint River Lumber Company was organized in 1895.

Mr. C. H. Caldwell, President, Mr. J. M. Caldwell, Vice President, and Mr. Chas O. Locke, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Flint River Lumber Company does an extensive business throughout the New England States and ships from seventy-five to one hundred cars of dressed lumber during a single month. The sales of the past year were more than double annually. The firm employs 150 to 175 people, and own over 30,000 acres of wooded land.

THE BAINBRIDGE OIL COMPANY.—One of the largest and most modern plants in the Southern states, was organized in 1902, for the purpose of manufacturing cotton seed products.

The plant is located at the junction of the A. C. L. and the G. F. & A. Railroads, with the best possible track connections with both roads. The mill has a capacity of eight tons per day, and the products find ready market within a radius of seventy-five miles from Bainbridge. The plant covers something over six acres of ground, and the factory and other buildings are of the most substantial kind.

Mr. J. M. Diffie, who has active management of the entire plant is an Oil Mill man with a wide experience and is fully competent to cope with the ever increasing growth of his immediate section.

Mr. Diffie is warm in praise of the advantages this immediate sections holds for manufacturers.

E. SWINDEL AND COMPANY.—In the year of 1886, E. Swindel and Company laid the foundation for a lumber business that has proven to be one of the biggest enterprises in Southwest Georgia, and to-day this firm exports to all parts of Europe thousands of feet of undressed lumber, and throughout the United States and Canada ship dressed lumber for all purposes, numbering among their customers some of the most prominent contractors in the world. This great lumber business is located in West Bainbridge, and the plant covers some thirty or more acres of ground, through-out which they have ample railroad facilities, owning and operating a spur track that covers more than fifteen miles. They employ two hundred and fifty people and turn loose a pay roll of four to five thousand dollars monthly.

CEDARTOWN

One of the most progressive and energetic cities of the new school in the state is Cedartown the Capital of Polk county, a county known the state over as one of the most productive and remunerative in not only the state but throughout the south. It was about the close of the war between the states that a few energetic men laid out a village where that prosperous town now stands. Within a short time a railway line reaching from Griffin to Chattanooga was projected through that section. Then within a short time the town began to grow. Agriculturalists from other sections of the south, from the west and other portions of Georgia quickly discovered the great fertility of the land and it was with rapid strides the country began adding to its population. More like the blue grass region of Kentucky than any other country the farmers were not long in giving their time and attention to stock raising. Soon the fame of that section began permeating the country and when home seekers from other states came to Georgia few of them invested until Polk county had been given an inspection. Naturally the value of the land began rising and it was not long before Polk county homes were inaccessible to any except the man who was well fixed with coin.

With the growth of the county the city kept apace and within a short time Cedartown was a city of over three thousand and was giving promise of continued and rapid growth. The mercantile line advanced and multiplied until some of the houses were doing a wholesale trade. Manufactories of various kinds sprung up and in every way there were indications of prosperity and success. Cotton mills soon gave promise of success and almost before the first one had been completed the second had been begun. Banks were of course necessary and to-day there are few cities of the same size in the city having more banks otric power. Within a few miles of Cedartown. Its electric light plant is commensurate with the light plants of any city in the state, population being taken in consideration. The same power plant that gives the city its day night sun is utilized by the many factories now doing a good business in the city. The electric light plant is owned by the city as is the water works plant and both have proven the wisdom of the members of the city legislature when the ordinances creating both were adopted by the local legislative body. In addition to its cotton mills Cedartown abounds with cotton seed oil mills, knitting mills, an iron furnace, a cotton gin run by electric power. Within a few miles of Cedartown is Rockmart where there is an inexhaustible supply of slate for slate roofing. All over the country this slate has been tested upon the tops of homes and public buildings and never has it fallen short of the representations made by the quarryman.

Here too, at Rockmart is one of the finest schools to be found in the south, the Piedmont Institute for boys and girls. It is a school which had a small inception but which grew rapidly because of the thorough training given each pupil schooled thereat.

The prolific soil of that section can not be better indicated than by the statement that gardens within the city limits produce vegetables enough to supply the family cultivating it with a sufficiency for the winter season.

That Cedartown and the county of Polk are destined to become known wherever the state of Georgia is known none who have been through that section of the state have the slightest doubt.

Judiciously, cautiously and carefully governed by the men who have helped to build the town there is every reason that the city which has followed the town will be better managed and that it will be a more desirable place for those seeking homes whether those home seekers come from Georgia or from the far west or from the other side of the Atlantic.

Apart from the excellent streets within the city there are driveways from the corporate limits of the city in every direction which will carry one to any corner or confine of the county. And these driveways are among the best in the state.

With an excellent line of streets,

With a sewerage system sufficient to support the natural health advantages,

With an excellent school system in both city and county.

With an efficient staff of officers,

With public buildings, city, county, state and national,

There is nothing Cedartown should want at present to induce immigration and to increase its population.

COLUMBUS

For half a century Columbus has been busily engaged with cotton and woolen goods. In population she stands fifth in the state and in the manufacturing of cotton goods second in the south, Augusta alone ranking her. The cotton and woolen mills are unsurpassed for the quality of the goods turned out, the work being done by skilled white labor. It is here the Eagle and Phenix Manufacturing company one of the oldest in the south is located and here that company has three mills each of which is completely equipped with the best and most approved machinery known. The three mills have an aggregate of 1,492 looms with 50,000 spindles. It requires eighteen thousand bales of cotton every year to keep the machinery moving along and the material is always secured, it matters not what the market price may be. The Muscogee mills come next with 450 looms and 16,000 spindles and consumes 7,500 bales of cotton annually. Four hundred looms with 13,000 spindles consuming 5,200 bales yearly is the record of the Swift Mills, The Hamburger Mills have 210 looms with 6,000 spindles and use every year 2,800 bales. The Columbus Manufacturing Company's mills have eight hundred looms and 25,000 spindles and consume every year 6,500 bales of cotton.

It is 3,352 looms, with 110,000 spindles Columbus has all told and in the aggregate forty thousand bales of cotton are consumed every year. In addition to the looms and spindles indicated the Bibb Manufacturing Company of Macon is now completing a magnificent mill which will have six hundred looms and twenty thousand spindles.

The annual cotton receipts are heavier at Columbus than at any point in the south, nearly 200,000 bales being receipted every year, the warehouse receipts alone being something over sixty thousand bales. It might be said with safety that Columbus was the pioneer city of the state, in fact of the south in turning crude cotton into finished goods with which the eastern and northern markets were given an observation of the possibilities of the south as a manufacturing point—and that observation quickly satisfied the moneyed man of the east that Georgia and other southern points possessed great possibilities.

But it was not cotton alone to which Columbus and the business men of that city gave their time and attention. Other possibilities were in sight and into these the energetic, fearless man of business went. Foundry and machine work, at first merely a repair shop for the big cotton factories near by were tried and within a short time the Golden's made it plain to the watching public that no mistake had been made when they opened what is now Golden's Foundry and Machine Works—one of the largest and most successful industries of that kind in the south. Starting with a small capital but with an abundance of will and determination the firm was not long in ascertaining that there was room for their plant and force but that both could be increased with safety. A sugar factory was added to the industries of the city within a short time and this too proved a successful feature to the city on the Ocmulgee. Compresses and cotton seed oil mills, flour and grist mills, lumber and planing mills with foundries and a plow and gin factories, a barrel factory and a factory for sashes, doors and blinds along with a box and furniture factory were quick upon the heels of their predecessors. A show case factory, the first of the kind in the south, an ice maker, wagon, trousers and broom factories, a guano plant, cider and vinegar works from which are shipped the best vinegars made in the country, marble yards and brick yards all proved successful while a canning factory turning out eight thousand cans each day stands a monument to the men who had the nerve and discretion to invest their money in it.

In these industries alone there are employed over three thousand artisans, the great majority of the employers being trained and finished hands while the others are now mastering a work which will put them among the skilled labor of the country. Every Saturday afternoon the pay rolls make an aggregate of nearly twenty thousand dollars.

The water power is universally considered one of the finest not only in the state but one of the best throughout the entire south. Within the limits of the city there are two falls while within the county but outside the incorporate limits are horse-powers enough to supply many more mills. It will require the erection of many more mills and the rapid consumption of the power to use up what Columbus now has stored. And when that shall have taken place there is more power not yet investigated which can be utilized and utilized within a short time-power sufficient to supply any demand that may be made upon it. A happy thought it was which came to the Columbus legislature when it passed an ordinance giving to any corporation of respectable proportions a site free, an ample site well located for steam and with a railroad frontage.

Commercially Columbus stands in the front ranks of Southern cities. Her banks are safely conducted, the officers being among the most conservative and successful business men of the city. The combined capital of the banks along the Muscogee is approximately three-quarters of a million dollars while the surplus and undivided profits are abundantly satisfactory, not only to the stockholders but to those doing business with them.

Electric lights, and gas are abundant and of first grade while the water works and electric street railways are unsurpassed in the south.

In addition to the seven railway lines reaching Columbus, each one being thoroughly equipped with all modern improvements and by which Columbus is brought within quick and easy contact with other sections of the world, Columbus has boat lines from that city down to the southern portion of Florida. Four lines of steamers make the city on the Chattahoochee a competitor in wholesale trade with all other points and it is no unusual picture to see steamers loaded with goods consigned to Florida points.

The public buildings, city, county, state and national are among the best in the south while the churches are known the state over for the beauty of design and for the excellence of execution. In all there are twenty-nine churches, eighteen having been erected for and by white congregations while eleven are used by the colored church attendants. It required nearly a half million dollars to construct these houses of worship.

The public school system, a part of the general system of the state is in Muscogee kept a pace with the educational work in other cities and other counties. All told 2,500 pupils are enrolled, 1,222 being white children, the balance being colored. The public school system is augmented by a number of private schools some of which are among the best educational institutions of the state.

The Eagle and Phenix Mills years ago became practically an educational institution for its two thousand operatives by establishing a free library of over a thousand volumes with a gymnasium over which a competent physical instructor presides at the expense of the mill while lyceum courses are presented in the auditorium which has a seating capacity of 1,000. The police and the fire departments are equal to all demands made upon them. Both departments are thoroughly and completely equipped and both are under command of men abundantly able to render the city the best service that could be exacted. On the police department, though there are forces in the state numerically larger, are men whose appearance have given the Columbus police force a name throughout the south. As a rule the members are young, strong healthy and athletic in appearance. Neat and with an evident pride they walk their beats attracting attention more by an apparent determination to do their duty than by a desire to be seen posing as an ilde figure on the curbstone or in some doorway. Trained to a duty they discharge that duty and it is with pride the mayor of the city points to them individually and collectively.

Not to be outdone by the patrolmen the members of the fire department keep themselves on dress parade constantly unless they are fighting a conflagration or rubbing up the harness or machinery about the houses to which they are attached.

Streets surpassing those of Columbus are rarely seen. There are cities in the state which have more miles of improved streets than Columbus but so far as Columbus has progressed in that line the progress has been with a view to a permanency. It will be years before what has been constructed will call for further attention. All well graded it is a pleasant drive the highwyas of the city offer while the sidewalk work makes a pedestrian's path as easy as that path can be found in any city.

For sewerage Columbus on the banks of the Chattahoochee required but little work. The entire city from its highest point has a natural flow into the river and it is into that river the sewerage finds its way leaving behind nothing that can engenger the health of the residents or that can give sickness and disease the slightest opportunity to take root or to grow.

Immediately across the river is Girard, Ala. a progressive town of several thousand. But for the river, in fact the river would have to be introduced as the dividing line between the two states, the stranger would never know he had passed from one state into another so much alike are the people on both banks, their customs, habits, dress and general deportment. Three bridges, all the best engineering skill could produce connect the Gorgia bank with the Alabama bank at Columbus making it easy to walk from Columbus to Girard or the reverse within a few minutes.

Never at a standstill Columbus has the reputation of having doubled its population every thirty years. If that theory holds good the city on the Chattahoochee should now have some thing like 28,000.

For hotels there are few cities in the south better equipped than Columbus while in every line of manufacturing there are few places in the south that can surpass it.

DAWSON

Dawson with its thirty five hundred people is one of the progressive, energetic counties of the state. Located as it is in the center of Terrell county practically it has a population of ten thousand people or more from which to draw. The city and county are tax free, not an assessment of any kind being made upon the property owners for a penny of revenue. The dispensary money more than pays all expenses of both city and county and if the county commissioners were so minded the handling of that fund could be made to fatten the county treasury and to lay aside a dollar for "the rainy day" as the old saw goes. The city owns the electric light plant and the streets are as bright by night as by day so abundant and complete are the lamps. Mayor Mercer has made an excellent chief executive and under his administration Dawson has enjoyed an era of prosperity. The school system, fashioned after the methods of other cities of the state is one of the best in the south and the schools are liberally and fully attended, the capacity of the houses being taxed so enthused are the residents of the city on the subject of education. No city in the state has finer climatic conditions than has Dawson and for that reason no one ever hears of an epidemic of any kind in Terrell county. Careful and cautious are those in charge of the health department and the sanitary conditions can in no way be surpassed at any point in the south. The trade conditions are excellent and prosperity as a rule prevails in the city and that portion of the county tributary to Dawson. Within the city there are a number of factories each of which has proven satisfactory, profit making and money obtaining. Carriage factory, wagon works and lumber mills have shown a profit for those engaged in those lines of work. As an agricultural section the territory around Dawson has shown itself prolific. No land in the state can produce more cotton to the acre than can the Terrell county land around Dawson. It is rich and prolific and consequently land is not easily obtained, the seller never turning loose his acreage without fixing his own price. The mercantile houses are among the best in the state and are conducted on a safe and economical basis while the banking capital is abundantly able to supply all demands made upon it at any and all times.

ELBERTON

Elberton the county site of Elbert county is one of the best known towns in the State, and has grown rapidly from a small unpretentious burg to one of the best and most substantial little cities in the South. Located on the lines of two of the best railroads that traverse the State, giving ample facilities for transportation of merchandise in and out, with freight rates that will compare with any section of the country. Here are located a number of the foremost manufacturing concerns of the Southern States, including cotton mills, oil mills, roller flour mills, planing mills, granite works, an ice plant and other industries that are continually growing and increasing the out-put of their respective lines. The most progressive and up-to-date merchants are engaged in the different lines of traffic, and it goes without question that this is one of the most substantial commercial centers of the State. Three banks with sufficient moneys to handle the needs and demands of the surrounding territory.

Elberton supports one of the best equipped electric light plants in the south, and a fine system of water-works is being installed. Splendid schools and churches in Elberton and every section of Elbert county.

The population is more than four thousand, while the population of Elbert county is more than twenty thousand, with taxable property amounting to something over $2,247,845. The tax returns for each year show an increase over the previous year.

Savannah river, Broad river, Beaver Dam creek, and Deep and Cold creeks, and other streams surround Elberton, making possible the building of water powers that will give an advantage to manufacturers not obtainable in other sections.

The soil throughout the county is prolific, and some of the most prominent farmers in the state are located here, among whom may be mentioned Mr. Eugene B. Heard, the pioneer peach grower of this section. Mr. Heard numbers his peach trees by the thousands and ships hundreds of cases over the states.

Mr. Heard has demonstrated to his entire satisfaction that peach growing can be profitably pursued.

The Blue Granite Quarries are producing the finest and largest specimens of light and dark blue granite and make a specialty of large size monumental stones.

These quarries are located within a short distance of Elberton and have perfect railroad facilities. The quarries are owned and operated by the Long Blue Granite Company, who ship their product throughout the country.

FORT VALLEY

Fort Valley, a beautiful and prosperous mid-state town of twenty-five hundred inhabitants, is situated in Houston County, twenty-nine miles south of Macon on the Central of Georgia and the Southern Railways.

Lying as it does at an altitude of 676 feet above the sea level, it neither partakes of the sub-tropical conditions found two hundred miles southward in lower altitudes, nor of the vigorous, bracing climatic conditions of the mountains in the extreme northern part of the state, but is rather of a happy medium temperature, especially for a section lying near the 33rd. degree north latitude, accompanied by mild breezes which are the rule rather than the exception, both of which are essential to the success of peach growing and fruit culture, the one thing above all others upon which Fort Valley bids for distinction.

In the year 1903, Fort Valley returned an assessed valuation of five-hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars, an increase of ten per cent over the previous year. Upon this valuation, which upon the best and a multiple of authority is estimated at two-thirds actual value, is levied a tax of 2.15 per cent., which meets the town's every fiscal requirement. With the exception of a bonded indebtedness of twenty-five thousand dollars, the proceeds of which were invested in an excellent system of water works which the city owns, and which is now conservatively estimated to be worth thirty-five thousand dollars, and from which the city has now accumulated in its treasury nearly nine thousand dollars to be used in retirement of bonds, the town is out of debt and is practically a unit in a discussion which is now before it, looking toward installing a new municipal lighting plant, and further bettering their public school system.

The executive department of the town's government is vested in a board of Mayor and Alderman, of which the Hon. J. L. Fincher is Mayor, and B. H. Watson, J. R. Kinney, J. B. Clark and R. H. Hartley Aldermen. These gentlemen have just been seated, April 1904, having been elected upon a campaign waged upon "higher property valuations, an improved school system and municipal electric lighting", and bid fair to carry out the people's expressed wishes, looking toward the substantial betterments and improvements.

The towns commerce is amply provided for financially in the way of two well conducted state banks, one, the Dow Law Bank, which was chartered in 1895, W. H. Harris, President and J. C. McDonald, Cashier, and the Exchange Bank, an institution dating back to 1889, with C. G. Gray, President, and A. D. Skellie, Cashier, which taken together have a collective capital of $80,600 with collective deposits amounting to $129,542.

Fort Valley itself is a beautifully laid out town, situated as it is in the heart of a slightly undulating, though generally level section, having wide streets which are well kept and abundantly shaded. It is the capital of a fertile territory some forty miles square which is prolific in its production of corn, cotton and fruits, principal of which are peaches and plums and for which the section is most widely known.

PEACH INDUSTRY.—The Fort Valley peach territory, or rather the territory covered by the peach industry of which Fort Valley is the capital, covers an area of some ten miles north and south on the Central of Georgia Railway and ten miles to the northwest on the Southern Railway, and includes such well known fruit centers as Perry, Roberta and Zenith. In this one division of Georgia's prolific fruit growing centers alone, are more than two million peach and plum trees, or an acreage of ten thousand acres under the highest degree of cultivation.

This grand division is sub-divided into orchards of various sizes, from the small orchard of fifty acres with its thirteen thousand trees, ranging up to those owned by companies operating upon a gigantic scale at the head of which is the Hale Georgia Orchard Company with its eighteen hundred acres and three hundred and fifty thousand trees.

That the magnitude of such an enterprise may be the better grasped, is only to state, that this company alone has a railway spur running into their property two miles, and that at their packing house which is centrally located, is employed during the picking season between five and six hundred employees, and that from this one company's packing house are shipped from three to as high as fourteen cars of peaches and plums, averaging five hundred crates each, every day during the season, which usually begins about the tenth of June and ends the last week in July.

GEORGIA FRUIT PACKAGE COMPANY.—It is here also, is located quite naturally the largest fruit basket manufactories in the South, the subject of this paragraph.

This company began business about twelve years ago, at the time of the earliest development of this section as a fruit growing center, and have not only kept pace with the local growers wide demands, but have gone out over the fruit growing south, up the Atlantic coast to Connecticut, throughout the middle west, besides exporting into Cuba, Bermuda, Porto Rico and Mexico, until it is a matter of much pride with the management to claim the enviable distinction of being the largest manufacturers of fruit carrier packages in the world.

With a plant well situated on the main line of the Central of Georgia Railway covering ten acres, this company here alone employ two hundred hands at an average pay-roll over one thousand dollars per week, turning out eight thousand crates per day, besides operating a branch factory, of about half the capacity of the parent factory, at Dawson, Georgia. Manufacturing what is widely celebrated and known as the "Six Basket Georgia Carrier", besides a suitable carrier basket or crate for every fruit growers needs, such as cantaloupe crates, strawberry crates, tomato crates, orange boxes and bean and onion crates as well as boxes for canned fruits and vegetables, the company so diversify their output that they are at once enabled to operate their plant at all seasons of the year and seek wider markets than any other manufacturer conducting a similar business.

HARRIS MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—The above mentioned company, which is one of the largest and most influential in Fort Valley, was organized in December 1902, to operate the Valley Rolling Mills, where one hundred and twenty-five barrels of flour, one thousand bushels of meal and seventy-five tons of feed are ground per day.

This product, large as it seems, finds a ready market in south-west Georgia, Alabama and Florida, requiring the constant attention of traveling representatives who regularly covers this territory in the interest of the company.

In connection with this large and increasing mill business is also operated a lumber manufacturing business doing a large commerce in Yellow Pine products, such as flooring, ceiling moulding and all manner of building material. Located seven miles from Fort Valley the Company owns a valuable tract of timber land, covering about fifteen hundred acres, which forms the source of their lumber operations and which in its self is a business of sufficient magnitude to engage more than an ordinary business man's time.

The active management of these enterprises fall upon Messers. W. H. Harris as President and H. L. Harris as Secretary both of whom have shown marked business acumen and sagacity.

Besides these interests, Mr. W. H. Harris is proprietor of the Harris House, Fort Valley's principal hotel, a modern hotel of fifty rooms, thoroughly equipped with conveniences such as sanitary plumbing, electric bells, etc; is the president of the Dow Law Bank which is elsewhere mentioned; is a large fruit grower, as well as owning and operating a telephone system covering the city and connecting it with outlying points such as Perry, Marshallville, Roberta, Zenith, Montezuma as well as all the fruit orchards of any importance within a radius of several miles.

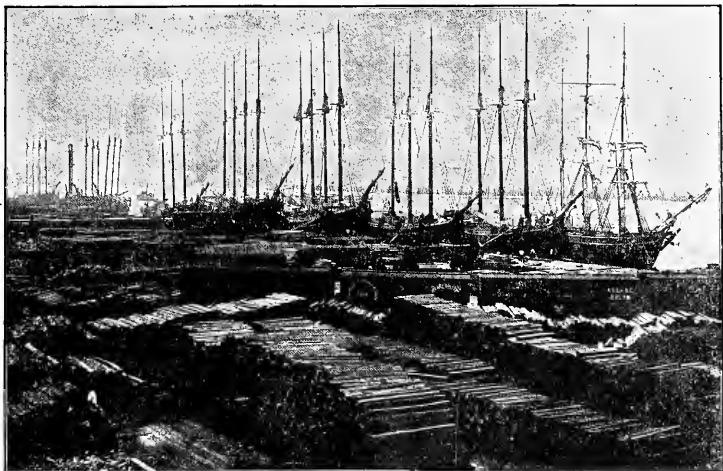

Mr. Harris' large and several interests thoroughly identify him with all of the section's needs, and is first and foremost in all movements and enterprises which has for its purpose the well being and upbuilding of Fort Valley and its outlying section.

GAINESVILLE

Located fifty-three miles from Atlanta, on the main line of the Southern Railway running between Washington and Atlanta, is Gainesville, a town of sixty-five hundred population, the county seat of Hall County. Situated as it is upon the crest of a lesser range of mountains, 1,400 feet above the level of the sea, it becomes the gateway to that portion of the State farther north, and northwest, which in many instances attains the height of 3,000 feet, and is the seat of the most picturesque scenery, delightful climate, health-giving springs and prodigal mineral deposits to be found in the Southern States.

Gainesville's rapid and substantial growth from a small berg with a few cheap, shambling buildings, to a compact and well-built town, is due to its diversity of interests, it being a manufacturing point of note as well as an agricultural mart.

No better evidence of the above need be given than to state that the assessed value of property for the year 1903 was $1,859,305 as against $1,301,245 for 1899, showing an increase of $558,060, or about forty-three per cent. in four years.

Gainesville as a municipality, from the view point of either the investor or municipal economist, presents a most attractive study and a most inviting field. Its executive department is vested in a board of Mayor and Council of which the Hon. Howard Thompson is Mayor, and Messrs. C. A. Dozier, John A. Pierce, M. D. Hudson, W. H. Craig, Jot S. Allen and C. H. Bell, Councilmen. It enjoys the exceedingly low tax rate of 2 per cent. which includes state and county tax, and that upon an assessed valuation of an average not exceeding 75 per cent. of the real values.

Lying one and three quarter miles to the north and connected by the interurban line of the Gainesville and Dahlonega Railway Company, is New Holland, a thriving suburb of twenty-five hundred population, the site of the Pacolet mill. To this, must be added the district immediately outlying the corporate limits occupied in part by the Gainesville Cotton Mill, a city in itself of fifteen hundred people making in all a population of more than ten thousand persons who either live, derive their support or purchase their daily supplies in Gainesville.

In climate, Gainesville and contiguous territory is ideal. Standing as it does at an altitude varying from 1400 to 3000 feet above the sea level, its mean temperature during the summer months is but 71 degrees and is made the cool and restful retreat for innumerable summer tourists.

Careful and reliable investigation into the death rate, gives ample proof of the healthfulness of the city. The mortality list which is here presented has been prepared through the most authoritative sources covering a period of the past five years, and presents, upon comparison, indisputable evidences of a condition in which any city may well boast.

Year.	Death rate per 1000.	Per cent. of death rate.
1899 .....	15.5.....	1.55
1900 .....	14.....	1.4
1901 .....	14.3.....	1.43
1902 .....	15.....	1.5
1903 .....	12.....	1.2

FINANCIAL.—The banking institutions of Gainesville, readily reflect the rapid and substantial development of the city, and in point of stability and magnitude are at once easily fitted to adequately take care of the cities rapidly growing financial needs.

As a trade barometer, which indicates the growth and development of any city, the statements of the banking interests tell a better and more reliable story than can be gained through any other source, it matters not of what credence, and in this regard, Gainesville courts comparison with any city of like importance, as a study of the following interesting tables will show.

	Capital.	Deposits.	Surplus and Un- divided Profits.
First National Bank .....	$ 50,000	$187,515	$ 73,495
State Banking Co. ....	53,000	175,000	68,000
Bank of J. H. Hunt .....	12,000	28,000	30,161
Total .....	$115,000	$390,515	$171,656

Comparing the above table with like items which obtained in 1899, five years previous, the following is shown:

	Capital.	Deposits.	Surplus and Un- divided Profits.
First National Bank .....	$ 50,000	$ 83,538	$ 37,650
State Banking Co. ....	53,000	109,000	30,000
Bank of J. H. Hunt .....	12,000	13,000	14,850
Total .....	$115,000	$205,538	$82,500

Showing an increase in the collective deposits of the city for a period covering about four and one half years, of one hundred and eighty four thousand, nine hundred and seventy-seven dollars, an increase of 90 per cent., as well as showing that after paying dividends the institutions were able to accumulate a collective surplus and undivided profit of eighty-nine thousand, one hundred and fifty-six dollars or an increase during this short period of 110 per cent.

It has a bonded indebtedness of $140,000, $40,000 of which are light and water bonds, $50,000 street, sewer and school buire of the city's rapidly growing financial lding bonds.

Standing out boldly against this limited liability, is a long list of public improvements which the town has promoted, as well as public utilities which she owns, chief of which are a splendid system of public schools, (one new school building just having been completed in the early part of this year, 1904, costing $25,000, street improvements for the same ensuing year aggregating $15,000, coupled with a most efficient system of new sewerage which has been installed at a cost of more than $26,000, and a beautiful and substantial city building, built in 1900 at a cost of over $15,000.

Added to these interesting facts, is thefitting one that the city owns its water works, fed by several springs of cool clear water, as well as its electric lighting plant, both of which are conservatively estimated to be worth $75,000, judged by the earning capacity, derived from a low and equitable charged for water and light, which is quite sufficient to meet all contingent expense and create a sinking fund with which to retire the bonds issued, to meet, the cost of construction.

EDUCATIONAL.—Coupled with an excellent system of public schools already casually mentioned, is Brenau, a private college of unusual high character, for young ladies.

The school was founded in 1878 as a Baptist Denominational school, and was known for a number of years as the Georgia Baptist Seminary for Ladies, taking the name of Georgia Female Seminary and Conservatory of Music at the time of its purchase by Professor Van Hoose in 1886.

Associated with Professor Van Hoose since 1893, is Professor H. J. Pearce who together have served continuously since as joint Presidents, and who have jointly contributed towards making it one of the foremost private colleges and conservatories of music for young ladies in the Southern states, not only adding to the efficiency of its curriculum and prestige of the school generally, but increasing its enrollment from thirty in 1893 to the capacity of the college, two hundred and fifty pupils for the school year of 1903-4.

In addition to the regular course is a recently added feature of a summer term of six weeks, taking the direction of a normal course which is conducted upon the highest and most ethical lines and in which the regular faculty is assisted by the leading artists of the entire South.

GAINESVILLE AND DAHLONEGA RAILWAY COMPANY AND NORTH GEORGIA ELECTRIC COMPANY.—No man, or set of men, have put on foot a movement which means more to industrial Georgia, than that of the promoters and owners of the above named corporations.

Starting in with the idea of piercing the heart of Georgia's mineral belt at Dahlonega, and connecting it at Gainesville with the outer world, this being the nearest point touched by rail, they have within the past three years built and put in operation eight miles of Electric Railway in and around Gainesville, grading fifteen miles of right of way on the direct route to Dahlonega, and have recently completed one of the finest waterpowers in the Southern States if not in the entire country, capable of developing 3000 horse power.

Of the Railway Company and its development it is not within the scope or province of this work to dwell, other than to casually mention the beautiful park and summer resort situated about three miles from Gainesville which is a part of an elaborate plan to beautify and develop this beautiful and healthful section.

But it is the purpose to touch more at length and to the point upon the development of cheap power and light which is Gainesville's pride and hope.

Situated fifteen miles from Gainesville at New Bridge on the Chesatee River is the first of a system of water powers this company built. This is a modern horizontal urban water power, capable of developing twelve hundred and fifty horse power, and is the present source of supply for power to operate their electric lines.

The management are contracting with manufacturers for power at a rate considerably less than the cost of power produced from coal, and for light at less than ten cents per thousand K. W., which to a manufacture is sufficient proof of the character and value of the enterprise.

Correspondence with Superintendent W. A. Carlisle will develop the detail and minor features which cannot here be gone into.

PACOLET MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—Situated at New Holland, a suburb of Gainesville, lying one and three quarter miles to the north, is the Pacolet Mill, one of the very largest and most modern cotton mills in the United States. Advantageously located on the main line of the Southern Railway, the company have here turned a plot of one thousand acres into a model city, the center of which is their giant mill of fifty-three thousand spindles and eighteen hundred looms, giving employment to twelve hundred hands and setting an industrial pace which requires fortune and eminent capabilities to follow.

Here it is that twenty-five thousand to thirty thousand bales of cotton are turned each year into cloths, drills and sheetings which find their principal market in far away Shangi, China

The company was first attracted to the advantages held by this section several years ago, but it was not until three years since, (1901.) that the idea crystalized into being by affecting an organization known as the Pacolet Manufacturing Company with a capital of one million dollars of which V. M. Montgomery is President and Treasurer, B. L. Stallworth Manager, and M. G. Stone Superintendent.

The mill as is already indicated is one of the most modern in the country. The site upon which it is built is fitted by nature as a most desirable place to build a factory which of needs must be surrounded by its artisans.

Centering this property and furnishing the water supply, is an immense spring of pure crystal water flowing about three hundred gallons per minute, a spring even in this section where springs are noted for their volumn and purity, is conspicuous on account of its depth and sparkling clearness. Around this is built a model city of three hundred homes, perfect in its sanitary appointments and lighted throughout with electricity.

GAINESVILLE COTTON MILLS COMPANY.—One of Gainesville's boasts is the Gainesville mill, a corporation organized in 1901, with a capital stock of $850,000, of which V. M. Montgomery is president, L. G. Potter treasurer, and M. G. Stone superintendent. The mill, which is probably one of the best equipped in the entire country, operates thirty-five thousand spindles, and one thousand looms, the looms working exclusively on print cloth. Five hundred hands are employed, using about six thousand bales of cotton per year.

To specialize upon the various features of this twentieth century plant is beyond the province of this article, more than to mention, that the surroundings and environments seem to have had as much consideration as the construction of the mill itself.

Where the most improved sprinkler system is installed throughout the mill, the company has builded a school where one hundred and two pupils, children of their employees are being taught.

Where a mammoth electric plant is installed to furnish light for the mill and mill city surrounding it, a lodge room has been built for the benefit of its employees who are members of secret organizations. Where operatives' homes are usually built without regard to looks or comfort, the plan here seems to have taken artistic shape, and a city of an hundred homes has been builded upon a high ground overlooking the city proper, within five minutes walk of the mill, in keeping with the most refined tastes and approved ideas of home building.

To sum up the character and magnitude of this modern mill in a single sentence will be but to say, that the entire installation cost $750,000, or about $22.00 per spindle.

Mr. L. G. Potter, upon whose shoulders fall the active management is a cotton mill man of fourteen years' experience. With a wide experience in other sections of the South, where mill conditions are not in common with those in Gainesville, he is warm in praise of the advantages this immediate section holds for manufacturers, and especially in cotton and its allied industries with which he is most familiar.

GEORGIA CLAYS

The clays of Georgia have played a most important part in the upbuilding of the commonwealth, in furnishing lucrative employment to her people and in gaining for Georgia the enviable position of the "Empire State of the South." The Bauxite for of Northwest Georgia have been accorded special prominence in another section of this volume but kaoline, potters' clay, fullers' earth and other valuable clays are found in many sections in sufficient quantities and of exceptional commercial purity. Evidencing this fact the Stevens Pottery at Stevens, Ga., is cited as a shining example of what is being accomplished by her enterprising citizens. This extensive plant is located eight miles from Milledgeville and nine miles from Gordon on the Central of Georgia Railroad. Exceeding thirty-five acres of ground is thickly studded with the buildings, kilns and pits of the Stevens Bros. & Co. Pottery, and every character of Fire Brick, Vitrified Brick, Salt-glazed Brick, Sewer Pipe, Fire Clay Chimneys and Slabs, Locomotive Tile, Fire Proofing, etc., is made. This is one of the most prominent and prosperous industries in Georgia and their goods find ready sale not only in this State, but are shipped all over the States of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Florida, Alabama and Louisiana. More than one hundred expert operators are engaged year in and year out at this pottery and constant enlargements and improvements are continually being made necessary by the increasing demand for the Stevens' product. The town of Stevens, while not incorporated, contains a citizenship of 500 people, nearly all of whom are dependent either directly or indirectly upon the Stevens Pottery. The Stevens Bros & Co. corporation is officered as follows: J. H. Stevens, president; W. C. Stevens, vice-president; A. B. Echles, secretary; F. A. Echles, treasurer, and J. S. Bone, general manager. Such men and such enterprises have made Georgia great and more men and more enterprises of this kind is what Georgia seeks.

GREENSBORO

Cattle of the finest hoof and hide, cattle for the butcher's stall, cattle for the stock farm, cattle for the dairy, all handsome fat and smooth may be seen any day roaming around the confines of Greensboro for it is in Green county that the best of Bermuda grass grows and it is upon that grass, the heifer, the cow and the beef thrive and fatten. Located both north and east from the center of the state Green county by nature has every advantage a citizen should desire. The climate is always mild and gentle. Never too cold, never too warm, it suits all who pay that section a visit and if the visitor is in search of a home he rarely goes further in his search. It is in Green he finds the farm he wants if it is a farm for which he is searching. If it is a professional line or mercantile pursuit or a trade Greensboro can as a rule show him such advantages as will stop his search, for there is room in that city for all wanting to earn a good and satisfactory return for his work either manual or professional.

With a population of a little less than three thousand people Greensboro is moving along with a good even stride under the direction of Mayor Shipp. The city has a taxable property of about $600,000 and the rate is extremely low. The water-works plant, and it is one of the best in the state belongs to the city, while an electric light plant is being erected, a plant sufficient for the town for a long time to come. A cotton factory has proven successful and is being run to its limits. Two of the finest dairy farms in the state are located near Greensboro while all the lands are decidedly adaptable to farming purposes. The school system is in excellent form and the schools are largely attended. One of the largest harness factories of the state is located in Greensboro and from it goods are sold into many cities both within and outside the state.

CUTHBERT

Within a gunshot from Alabama rests the city of Cuthbert, Randolph County Georgia. With a population of 2,500 about it has shown itself one of the most progressive of the smaller towns of the state. The county of which Cuthbert is the capital was named for John Randolph of Roanoke. Originally, the county was a part of Lee from which it was taken about 1830; and, about the same time was given papers of incorporation. The county has an area of about 450 square miles with a population of something over 3,000 people. The residents of the county came from the Eastern and older parts of the state, from South Carolina, from North Carolina and from North Georgia, Virginia giving its proportion of inhabitants. It was the pioneers' tasks which confronted them all. This was what the hardy men of that period were seeking, and within a short time there were few who in any way inclined to dispute the progress and movements of those who came to settle this section. A home blessed by nature it was the pioneers' privilege to find. The surface of the land, the climate and those who had preceded him were all in harmony with the new home seekers. Few were the advantages any county could offer over the advantages Randolph presented. The soil was suited to any demand that might be made upon it. The corn, the wheat, the rye, the barley, the oats, the rice, the potatoes—of both brands—the sugarcane, the watermelon, the pumpkin, the peanuts, the peas, the tobacco, all come from the earth with the same spontaneity. To the student there was little reason to think that Randolph did not produce all that was wanted, and to further the investigation the more complete was the satisfaction of those who undertook the study. So it is that Randolph to-day stands among the best counties of the state.

HARTWELL

When Nancy Hart in the days of the revolution shouldered that long smooth bore, flint lock rifle and played her part in securing the independence of the colonies from British rule there were none who for the moment thought her name would be perpetuated by giving it to a county the county site of which should bear practically the same name.

But just that was done.

In northeast Georgia on, the Carolina line a county carved by the Legislature was named Hart county and the capital of that county was christened Hartwell. Like the heroine it proved to be a progressive determined section and since the day the corporate limits were laid out there has never been a moment of idleness or of lost time with those who there live or with those who have been in charge of the affairs of the mountain city. Situated as it is high above the lowlands adjacent it has always been free from sickness, illness or plagues of any kind whatever. The land about the town is rich and productive and fruit is raised without the slightest care or attention. From a mere village in the days of the early '80's it has grown to a thriving city of three thousand nearly and among the citizens are some of the most progressive and successful business men of the state. Its educational system is satisfactory to those of that section and from the Hartwell schools have come some of the best and most successful professional as well as business men of the state. The city has taxable property of over a million and it is a small rate required to maintain the government. Some years ago one of the hardy progressive investigating men of that section read of the growth of pecan tree and of it the generous return from that growth. He determined to try it, believing that the climate and the soil were at hand. He planted his grove and within a few years found a rich harvest. Then it was that others followed the lead set and within a short time pecan groves were numerous in that section of the state. Every pecan grove proved a money maker and to-day there are many of these groves scattered over the hills and through the vales of that section of Georgia.

And without an exception they are paying groves, the meat of the nut being rich, palatable and juicy while the hull is thin and easy to crush. The Hartwell nurseries are known the south over and it is here many farmers essaying to grow fruits go for their start while every one with an eye on the pecan tree is sure to visit that place for his first "setting".

The Candler cotton mills in which are made drills and dress goods are among the most successful in the state while the oil mill and the roller mill cannot be surpassed in the south. The farming lands command a high price thereby showing their value and worth.

Pecans from the Hart county pecan groves are shipped to every section of the country and wherever they go subsequent orders are sure to come again.

The tax rate is very low and the city is without any debt. An electric light plant is now being built.

MACON

A growing, thriving city of 40,000 active, energetic Americans who now enjoy the fruitful soil upon which the Red Man once roamed.

Macon, placed by nature upon the east and west banks of the Ocmulgee, the stream down which Cortez rowed and roamed in search of his "Stream of Life", his Ponce de Leon is now one of the most thriving, most promising towns of the south, a town destined to be in the near future one of the greatest trade marts as it is today one of the wealthiest and most prominent socially.

Three-quarters of a century have winged away since the pale face began the real battle with the Red Man for the possession of the land upon which the Central City of Georgia now stands—it was an appropriate name not only geographically but from an industrial and business standpoint then as it has ever been since.

It was in the early '80's—about 1785, it might have been a few years earlier, it could have been a few years later that a dozen or so of sturdy, hearty, hardy, fearless pioneers, searching for homes found their way into that little valley, a valley watered by the Ocmulgee and shaded by the thickly groved hills upon either bank. Selecting the eastern shore of the stream for their resting place the advance guard laid out its home, a home though then small and insignificant was destined to become one of the essential points in the life and history of what is now the Empire State of the South.

Just at that time Hawkins, a man of American birth but of prominent English connection had won fame as a leader in combats against the Indians in the northeast and in baptising the new home for the white man one of the pioneers with a rifle longer than he was tall, so tradition in Bibb County goes, drew from the box the slip of paper upon which was written the name the new settlement should have.

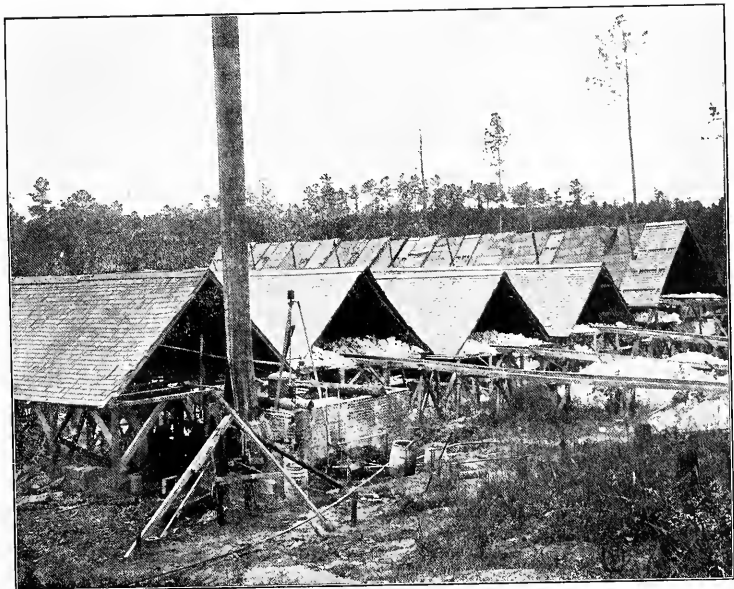

And in that way the new home for the pale face was selected.

It was Fort Hawkins and for years after that date the palisades on the east side of the Ocmulgee was known as Fort Hawkins.

There a strong fortress was built. There the white settlers, with their long rifles, guns were muzzle loaders in those days, and their wives and children gathered from all sections when it was noised about that the Indian had taken once more to his war paint and had broken the pipe of peace.

But as the Indian gave way to the white man the settlement widened. On the west side of the river was the better land and the better location for the home. With hills for observation and for defense no longer in demand the west side, now Macon proper began showing its natural advantages not only to the old Fort Hawkins residents who themselves began moving across the Ocmulgee, but to the new seekers for homes who had been drawn to that portion of the state by the disclosure of its wealth in its varied ways.

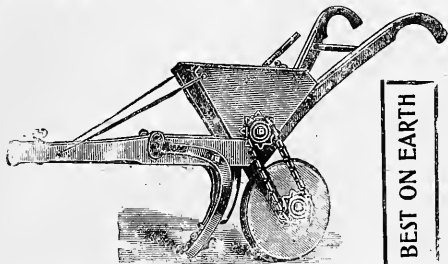

Then within a short time, a few years after all apprehension of Indian uprisings had passed away the influx of settlers was pronounced, more so probably than at any other point in the state. It was to the central portion of the state the better class of home seekers went. Just why that happened there is no explanation. Still it is true. From Virginia, from the Carolinas and from Tennessee they came and before the eighteen hundreds were a quarter of a century old the Central City of Georgia had been incorporated as the city of Macon. It was then a city of a few thousand but within its confines were some of the most distinguished families of the south, families whose names were known on the other side of the Atlantic better probably than on this side. Within the city were men prominent in all walks of life. Lawyers of international reputation, medical men who had attained prominence, men of letters and business men who had builded reputation and fortunes. And as men of medicine, of law and of letters advanced Macon in some ways took kindly to education. Why none can now tell. But that it did there is no better illustration than the existence to-day of Wesleyan and Mercer, two of the recognized educational institutions of the world were founded. Wesleyan came into educational life in the early part of the century and from its class rooms some of the brightest women of the age have gone. Within the walls of that institution have been educated women at whose knees have knelt boys to whom were subsequently given the highest honors brain and Christian training could command. On its roster can be found the names of students from every nation on earth. And as Wesleyan has done for the young women of the world so has Mercer done for young men. From every latitude on the globe young men have come to Mercer and back to the point from which they came they have carried light, knowledge and intelligence. Not content with giving Macon two of the highest grade schools in the world the people have since the formation of the town shown a kindly disposition towards a dissemination of knowledge and the result is one of the best and most complete systems of public schools in the country. High schools for the full school population of the city, grammar schools for all who may seek entrance and common schools sufficient for the entire child census of the city have been provided. In addition to these are Mount de Sales, one of the most excellent female colleges of the country, a Catholic institution and Pio Nono college sustained by the same church.

Few cities in the country can show a better home for the parent seeking the education of a child.

Nature was kind to the Central city in more ways than one. Its altitude brings nothing like excessive heat. Neither is there a want of warmth in the winter days. Some hundred feet above the sea level it affords a pleasant breeze at all times. During the hot summer days there is always a delightful air in the city while the fall months rarely show a pronounced change of any kind. The winter days are short but never severe, few Maconians dropping summer underwear for a suit pronounced in its difference. The transition from season to season is slow and gradual, never quick and marked. Its rains, like those at any point within two hundred miles are usually forecasted by the weather bureau. Sudden and unexpected storms are rare and extremely unusual.

With every advantage nature can offer it required but little work on the part of man to bring the Central city in line with corporations which have expended fortunes. On the banks of the Ocmulgee, with an abundant flow of water it took small labor to give Macon a water supply sufficient for every demand that may be made on the water department for years to come. The plant is managed by a private corporation, the same body having control of the light plant. But both water and lights are commensurate with all demands upon them and the consumer rarely recognizes the fact that he is being served by a private organization.

One of Macon's prides is its fire department and justly proud of that department she may be. Few cities of two times the population of the Central city has a fire department equal to it. Abundant and sufficient is the machinery as well as the men. At the head of the department is one of the most efficient fire fighters in the entire country. For nearly a quarter of a century the Central city has had the same fire chief and never has there been the suggestion of a change. It is the best and most approved machinery known the country over that is used in the department while the members of the force have shown themselves fearless and competent in every sense of the word. What has been said of the fire department can be said of the police department with the same assurance. Handled by a man who has seen service from Manassas to Appomattox there is no reason to doubt the competency of that body, or the efficiency of the chief. Every member strong, healthy and athletic and each one above the average size of man there is no reason to question the efficiency of that department.

As it is with the fire department and with the police department so it is with the sanitary department. From 'Frisco across the Atlantic, from the lakes down to the gulf there is not a cleaner city on the map. It is one of the boasts of the city and that boast can easily be sustained that epidemics can never secure a foot hold in that section and that sickness is too rare for the purse of the doctor.

Never at a standstill since its incorporation Macon is now growing as it never grew before. Private buildings, magnificent homes of a palatial character, well constructed and equipped business houses are going up in great number. The national government will soon raze the post office structure and upon the present site will construct one of the prides of that governmental department. Under the roof will be court rooms for the United states courts, apartments for Judge Speer and for other government officials. This will be next to the largest post office in the state. The Academy of Music, a house given to the public by Joseph Jefferson has just been torn down and upon the site is now being erected one of the most commodious, complete and thorough theatres south of Baltimore. No city in the south has better hotel accommodations or hotel accommodations more extensive than has Macon. The Brown, one of the oldest hostleries of this section, a house constructed before the war but recently modernized and made over, the Hotel Lanier, the house at which Mr. Davis, president of the Confederacy was entertained after he was captured and the Plaza, one of the best European houses in the South are among the leading rest places.

Since the recent annexation of Vineville and Huguenin Heights Macon can boast a population of forty thousand. It has streets paved with belgian block, streets paved with brick, streets paved with asphalt and chert drive ways. It is the unusual width of the streets of the city that has made it known by all who seek the Peninsular state for a winter's rest. Wide, of even grade, a drive way upon either side with a park in the center there is an abundance of roadway for all vehicles while the grass covered, tree lined parks in the center tend to make the highways among the handsomest to be found anywhere. The ground upon which the city had been constructed was level and even and required but little work to bring the streets to an easy grade for both heavy and slow or light and fast traffic. Covered with trees of natural growth, trees old and strong it did not require much time to convert the natural forest into beautiful groves in the very center of which are now located some of the most attractive homes in the entire south.

Educational institutions of the higher grade and houses of worship go hand in hand the world over. So it happens that the Central city is in no way behind other cities of the south in its churches. Within the limits of the city are some of the handsomest church buildings in the country while the occupants of the various pulpits are among the most learned men of the state. There is not a denomination known to the Christian forces that has not erected a fortress from which and in which to wage war against sin in accordance with its own creed. Each line is strong within itself while there is not an isolated denomination. It is democracy there among the church people. There a unison of feeling and of work is apparent to even the casual observer, to even the stranger. The morale of the church going people permeates every walk of life and in the Central city there is a close conformity to all laws, state and municipal. Gaming has been eliminated since Hon. Ben Jones, a member of the board of aldermen, one of the successful young business men of the city began his crusade a year ago while the liquor traffic is unde an absolute control.

Commercially Macon has few rivals in the state while in the entire south she has no superiors. Some of the leading wholesale houses of Dixieland are in Macon. Drummers go from the Central city into New Orleans, into Charleston, Augusta and Savannah, Nashville, Atlanta and Tennessee points find Macon a good market and many is the bill of lading written in Macon depots for points outside the state. As a wholesale grocery market it presents several of the leading houses of the country while its handling of cotton is the largest with an exception or two in the south. It is in Macon that Jaques, Tinsley & Company, Johnson & Winn and the Macon Grocery Company, recognized the country over as leaders of the grocery trade are located. Here the Willinghams with their immense furniture factories, their extensive lumber trade, both crude and finished are located. The Bibb county cotton mills under the management of Major J. F. Hanson one of the most extensive plants in the south carries a pay roll the numerical strength of which runs into the four figures. These mills like others in and around Macon handle the fiber from the field in which it has grown even to the store room where it is measured off with the yard stick. The compress is never idle, the bagging in which the bale is rolled requiring about its capacity. The McCaw Manufacturing Company known the country over because of the Plant so closely identified with it is but one of the many similar industries, while the Acme Brewing Co. has sent to all sections of the country a grade or two of beer which has given Macon beer a national reputation. Nearly five thousand operatives, probably fully that number are required to keep the factories of various kinds located in the Central city going, factories in which something over $5,000,000 has been invested. The annual pay rolls of these places of industry are slightly less than a million dollars. From these concerns an army of traveling men run out of Macon and between their sales and the sales through the mails something like $12,000,000 come back every year.

CLAG PIT.
The Georgia Kaolin Co., Macon, Ga.

Few cities in the south are better equipped financially than Macon. Her banks rank among the best in the south while the financiers at the head of the institutions are recognized the country over as men of caution, prudence and safety as well as men of capacity and ability. It is over two million dollars of surplus and undivided profits the Macon banks have. While constantly acquiring wealth the business men of the city are by no means sordid and selfish as is shown plainly by their charitable works. The city hospital, the gift of the ladies and gentlemen of the city, the Julia Parkham Jones home for indigent ladies, the Roff Home, the Home for the Friendless and the Georgia Industrial Home for orphaned boys and girls, the creation of the late Dr. Mumford are monuments to the generosity of the money makers of the city.

While presenting an array of the handsome costly public buildings Macon can show some of the most delightful attractive, charming palatial residences in the entire country. With magnificent, spacious lawns, grass covered and flower dotted College street will compare favorably with any home avenue or boulevard in the Union Stretching from one end of the city to the other, reaching from the banks of the Ocmulgee to Tattnall square, a distance of five miles the street presents one home after another, vying each with the other. Homes costing a five figure price are there and without an exception they are homes built to please the taste of the most fastidious.

Located as it is, practically within the very center of the state Macon is naturally a point to which trade should drift. As though nature had not done enough itself the projectors and builders of railroads pointed all lines into or out of Macon. Then the management of the lines in constructing schedules made them suit the convenience of all travelers going into or coming out of Macon. So it is that what nature could not do for the advancement of the city the man managing the railroad did. No better system of rails can be found in any section of the country than Macon can present thus affording the trader all advantages. Apart from its rail facilities the Ocmulgee lends the Central city commerce a strong hand. The national government by the expenditure of thousands and thousands has made the stream navigable from Macon down and to-day a second boat, a twin to the one which has been in use a year is being constructed for the same navigation company. It will soon be a water rate freight Macon will be given and then her commercial advantages will be greatly multiplied.

SAVANNAH

Signs and mementoes of the days of Oglethorpe still abound in and about that great maritime port of the South Atlantic coast—Savannah and there for years to come the student of history will find many things calculated to carry the mind into the far distant past.

Few cities of the south compare with Savannah socially, commercially, morally or financially. One of the oldest cities of the south it has always been one of the most progressive, energetic and successful. Made up of people who traced their lineage three, four, five and a dozen generations it is naturally one of the proudest points in the south. And with that pride, energy and intellectual qualities have always gone hand in hand. Within twelve miles of the ocean, situated on a bluff forty feet above low water mark it is by nature one of the healthiest places in the state. Rarely has the city's health been in any way affected. It was years ago yellow fever had its last visitation to that city and then the contest between the disease and the health department was short and decidedly effective. Driven out by the health workers the fever has never been known there—since and to-day Savannah is looked upon as one of the cities of the south immune against that disease.

In trade Savannah is the third cotton port in the Union and is the chief shipping point for naval stores in the world. The commerce for the past year is estimated, in round figures, $2,000,000. The annual receipts of cotton at Savannah for years past have been over a million bales. Three-fourths of the entire sea island cotton crop in the south is handled in Savannah. The naval stores receipts are astounding to one not acquainted intimately with that work. For a period of four years the annual receipts on an average have been about 350,000 casks of spirits of turpentine and a million and a quarter of barrels of rosin. These products are carried from Savannah under every flag known in the world, to every country with which the United States trades. It goes direct to Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia and South America. In addition to this direct foreign trade coastwise steamships and railway lines supply Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Montreal and interior cities of the country. In lumber Savannah has an immense trade, a trade which shows a constant and emphatic growth every year. Over two million feet of lumber are going out of that port every year to foreign ports.

As a banking point Savannah ranks with any city if she does not surpass them. Few are the cities having the same amount of capital. The revival of the sugar-cane industry is now being felt in Savannah and is bringing to it an increase of coin, one to be felt more pronouncedly every year as the growth of cane is augmented. The rice planters find Savannah one of the best markets known and here again a decidedly successful and advantageous trade is being formed and conducted.

In all probability the best truck farms in the south are in close proximity to Savannah. Here the best vegetables, the best berries, the best melons that find their way to the northern markets are raised. All these too are early in coming and many of the first shipments north are sent from Savannah. It is the early part of April, rarely as late as the middle of that month these shipments begin and returns approximating $300,000 have been recorded.

One of the best sanitary systems known in the south obtains in Savannah. The garbage is cremated while the most improved plans for disinfecting purposes in maritime sanitation have been adopted, the quarantine system being thorough and complete. A chain of artesian wells supply the town with an abundance of pure cold healthful water.

Savannah and Chatham county have an excellent public school system the average attendance of pupils being something like seven thousand, the majority of whom are white children. Churches of every Christian denomination are numerous, well attended and well supported. On every hand are numerous evidences of learning, improvement and education. Electric lights, gas, ice factories, electric street railroads, both city and suburban, an excellent system of water-works and a first class paid fire department are among the elements which contribute largely to Savannah's standing as a city, to say nothing of its magnificent police department with its political form, supported as it is by one of the finest militia regiments in the state.

In manufacturing Savannah has every advantage. The raw materials for the manufacture of cotton and woolen goods are at her quick disposal, are right where they can be easily reached simply by stretching out the hand. Just now Savannah has in successful operation a cotton yarn mill, a knitting mill, cotton seed oil mills, an agricultural implement manufactory, ice factories, boiler works, machine shops, a brass foundry, brick yards, sash, door and blind factories, carriage works, flour and grist mills, rice mills, fertilizer works, cigar factories, soap works, and planing mills along with the Southern Rubber Manufacturing company, an organization recently set upon foot and one which is proving quite satisfactory to those interested therein.

Four oyster canning factories have proven successful in every sense of the word— as many as three million cans or more haing been canned within the year.

With its many beautiful parks, its many handsome residences, its great gallery of markers and monuments it has an air of elegance and of refinement which invariably attracts the attention of the stranger who by accident or design may visit the city. On Bull street, a name brought from England with the coming of Oglethorpe, it might be said to Forsyth park, that name speaks for itself, there is a promenade unequaled in the South. Five parks or squares, all works of beauty made so by nature and by skilled workmen, are to be seen from Bay street out. In Johnson square a marble obelisk, to the memory of General Nathaniel Greene, erected in 1829, attracts attention. The story of General Greene is a part of the history of Georgia and the greater part of that story is written in Savannah by markers and monuments. It was General Greene who was second in rank under Washington and as such he commanded the department of the south and rescued the Carolinas and Georgia from the grasp of the Briton who invaded the country. Born in Rhode Island, Gen. Greene after the revolution settled in Georgia, upon land granted by the State to him for his services in the war. The monument which attracts the attention of all in plain and unornamented in its style. It was meant to carry out the design of the Roman sword. Rich in its legends, all supported by monuments few cities of the South can arouse the patriotism of the American more thoroughly than can Savannah. The next monument on Bull street is one erected to the memory of W. W. Gordon, a pioneer in railroad develop-ment in Georgia.

In Madison Square stands the monument of another Revolutionary hero, Sergeant William Jasper. This was unveiled in 1888 in the presence of President Cleveland and party, and the local officials and dignitaries. In Monterey Square stands a monument to Count Palaski, the noble Pole, who gave his life for American freedom on the 9th of October, 1779, when the combine French and American armies met a disastrous repulse in their assault upon the British lines. In the extension of Forsyth Park is yet another handsome monument erected to the memory of the Confederate soldiers who fell in the Civil War. This park is the largest of about thirty, which give comfort and beauty to Georgia's lovely Forest City. In its center stands a fountain modeled after that in the Place de la Concorde at Paris. Some of the parks are ornamented with banana trees, and several of the gardens with orange thees. Among the many lovely flowers the most beautiful is the Camellia Japonica, which here blooms in midwinter in the open air.

Savannah is well supplied with suburban retreats. Tybee is reached by one of the branches of the Central of Georgia Railway, eighteen miles in length. The beach at Tybee is one of the best in the country, and the hotel accommodations are excellent. An electric railway leads to Thunderbolt, a small, picturesque town on Warsaw river, famous for fish and oysters. On the same line of railway is Bonaventure, once a noble estate of the Tattnall family, now a beautiful cemetery. Its avenues of great live oaks, festooned with gray moss, give to the place an air of solemn grandeur well befitting the silent resting place of the dead. The place was first settled by Colonel John Mullryne, an Englishman. By the marriage of his daughter Mary, in 1761, to Josiah Tattnall of Charleston, it came into the possession of the latter family. Tradition says that the marriage was the occasion of planting these magnificent oaks so arranged that the avenues by which they are lined would form the letter "M" and "T," to typify the union of the two families. In 1847 the estate passed into the hands of Captain T. Wiltberger, by whom it was adapted to its present use. The electric cars also run to the Isle of Hope, another summer resort of the people of Savannah. About two miles from Savannah is the Jasper Spring, the scene of a daring exploit of Sergeant Jasper, when he and Sergeant Newton rescued from the British guard an American prisoner who was being carried to Savannah for execution. On the banks of the Ogeechee river are some of the largest rice plantations in Georgia.

TIFTON

Pure, soft water in great abundance, exhaustless forest of immense giant trees which are every day being converted into lumber for markets at home, abroad and across the Atlantic have given Tifton and its twenty-five hundred people a standing in Georgia and a reputation throughout the south.

At the crossing point of the Georgia Southern and Florida and the Plant system on the northern border of Berrien county, a county abounding in wealth, minerals as well as timber Captain H. H. Tift located the city some years ago and there he set up his mill as he began to fell his trees. Within a short time he began adding to his plant and as the large trees were being converted into lumber additions were being made daily to the population. New industries were established and business began diverging and spreading out. Not content with his railroad facilities Capt. Tift alone constructed a line from Tifton to Fitzgerald, some twenty-five miles northeast of him. The line is known as the Tifton and Northeastern and is owned wholly and operated by Captain Tift who finds an abundance of time to care for his railroad as a side issue making that duty more a pleasure than a labor. No city in the state has a more progressive or enterprising population than has Tifton. There are gathered the successful business man of the east alongside of whom is located is to be found the cautious, patient New Englander. Mingling with these are the wide-awake eminently social man of the South, forming a combination hard to match, making a combination that cannot be beaten. Though in the timber belt, a section in which the hard limbed, deep chested woodsman works from dawn to dark there is little, if any of that immorality for which one might naturally look. On the contrary the presence of churches, the ministers being among the finest pulpit orators obtainable, the multitude of public schools all tend to make apparent to the casual observer, to even the stranger that Tifton is a city where life and property are safe and where every resident has long been of a mind to see that the name of the city in which they reside is kept clean and right before the public. While the industries and trade lines are varied and many it is the lumber or saw mill work which predominates. One mill alone, the property of Captain Tift has a capacity of fifty thousand feet a day. Dry kilns and planing mills are numerous and extensive and as a rule the business men of the town generally find the big figures at the end of the year on the side of the ledger they like the best.

*The Tifton and Northeastern railroad connecting with the Georgia and Alabama at Fitzgerald gives the city as good shipping facilities as any place in the state has or may need. The line though a short one has one of the largest passenger services in the state. In fact statistics show that it does five times as much work as any road in the state leading into a town the size of Tifton. One of the most complete and successful hotels in the state, a hotel to which not only the residents of the city but the traveling public generally point with pride is the Hotel Sadie, a house large enough to accommodate a large patronage and yet a house which is never empty.

THOMASVILLE

Thomasville is a flourishing city with a population of 3,522, or, including the district, 9,172. It has three banks with an aggregate capital of $250,000; first-class hotels, a fine system of public schools, two colleges, and churches of the Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Bible Christian and Roman Catholic denominations. It is well lighted by gas and electricity and has water-works and a system of sewerage. The natural drainage is perfect, the water running off in every direction. The streets are broad, well-kept, and in many places shaded with native trees. It is noted for its beautiful flowers which bloom every month in the year. There are 2 florists establishments, each with an annual sale of $1,000 worth of flowers and flowering plants. Two branches of the Plant system cross each other at Thomasville. The Tifton, Thomasville and Gulf Railroad also has its southern terminus here.

The public roads of the county are in good condition, and there are beautiful drives in and around Thomasville.

Thomas and Decatur counties are extensively engaged in the manufacture of syrup from the sugar-cane.

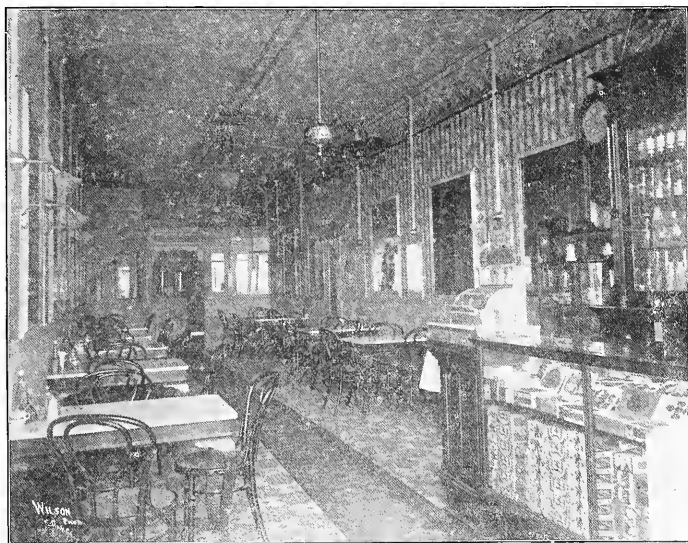

Thomas county was formed from Decatur and Irwin in 1825, and a part of Lowndes was added to it in 1826. It was named in honor of Jett Thomas, who was captain of artillery in the army of General Floyd at the battles of Antossee and Chahibbee. He was born in Virginia in 1777, and died in Milledgeville, Georgia, of cancer in 1815.

Thomas county is bounded on the north by Mitchell and Colquitt, east by Brooks county, south by the State of Florida, and west by Decatur county. The Ocklockonee river, from the northeast to the southwest corner is the principal stream. The county lies on the backbone of an elevated ridge, which extends across the State from northeast to southwest. It slopes eastward and westward and from the watershed thus formed flow numerous creeks and smaller, limpid streams. From the hillsides burst numerous springs, from which flow branches of clear water. In every part of the county wells of good freestone water are easily dug. In many sections the surface is level, in others undulating. Some parts of the county are rather hilly. The soil varies greatly, and some close observers say that no fifty acres are exactly alike. The greater part of it is gray, sandy loam, with a red clay subsoil, while some of it is of a yellow, sandy clay formation. There are lands of black muck, very fertile. The principal crops are cotton, both long and short-staple, sugar-cane, sweet and Irish potatoes, peas of every variety, all the common vegetables, and many kinds of grasses. Crab is almost the only grass cultivated in Thomas county for hay, being cut after other crops, especially after melons. When cultivated for hay exclusively it produces from 4,000 to 8,000 lbs. to the acre.

The native grasses (wire and sedge), burned off in spring and growing up luxuriantly from the principal summer pasturage, which is supplemented by the cane brakes. In winter the preferred food for cattle consists of cotton seed meal and hulls with hay from the native grasses. Some attention is given to the improvements of beef cattle. The improvement in milch-cows is marked, the Jersey predominating. There are 4 dairy farms with a capacity of 200 gallons of milk a day.

The county has wild turkey and quail for those who fancy hunting, and the many streams furnish black bass and perch to reward the labors of the fisherman.

The fruits consist principally of pears, peaches, apples, plums, strawberries, figs, grapes and watermelons.

The vegetables are all the varieties common to this country. The products of the market gardens over and above home consumption amount to somewhere near $3,000 worth. About 200 acres are devoted to grapes cultivated for home use.

A good portion of the county is still covered with original forest growth and consists mainly of yellow pine, various kinds of oak, hickory, magnolia, gum, beech and others. About 35 lumber and sawmills, all run by steam, are employed in sawing the timber and preparing it for manufacturing purposes.

There are in Thomasville railroad shops of the Plant System, 3 shops for repairing vehicles, 2 sash and blind factories, and one foundry. In Thomasville and other towns are 10 to 12 shops where shoes are repaired and made. In the country are 12 turpentine distilleries. There are 3 grist-mills and ginneries run by water-power.

Cairo has become the center of the syrup trade of Georgia, shipping in one year 10,000 barrels, valued at something over $100,000. The leaders in this industry are Mr. J. Byron Wright and his two brothers. While the syrup industry was still in its infancy Mr. Wright, at that time a school-teacher, was forced by ill health to seek employment in the open air. He began to study the best methods of syrup making and was aided in his efforts by his two brothers, who were merchants. The result has been a vast improvement in Georgia syrup, for which there is a rapidly increasing demand. The improvements introduced have led to the intention of establishing first-class sugar refineries, which would bring Georgia to the front as a syrup and sugar-producing State.

Major Purse of Savannah, is one of the most zealous promoters of this great industry. He and Colonel James, with Mr. Wight and others, have made trips to Louisiana for the purpose of obtaining information. The great railway lines, the Central of Georgia, the Southern and the Plant Systems, are taking a lively interest in the promotion of cane-growing.

Many of the best farmers of this section think 600 gallons of good syrup to the acre, under proper care and cultivation, a conservative estimate, while some made as high as 750 gallons to the acre at a time when there was no market for it.

During the winter of 1900-1 there were shipping from this section through New Orleans to Texas, 1,500 barrels of Georgia syrup.

The products of the county are marketed at Thomasville, Boston, Cairo, Ocklocknee, Metcalf and Meigs. Of 15,000 bales of cotton shipped from the county, 2,500 are handled at Thomasville.

According to the census of 1900 there were ginned in Thomas county 10,923 bales of upland and 1,550 of sea-island cotton in the season of 1899-1900.

The whole county is well supplied with churches and schools. Of 110 public school buildings 63 are for white and 47 for colored, and the average attendance is 1,956 white pupils, and 1,980 colored.

The area of Thomas county is 713 square miles, or 456,320 acres. Population in 1900, 31,076, a gain of 4,922 since 1890; school fund, $19,923.92.

WASHINGTON

Full of reminiscences of the early days of colonial Georgia, replete with features of the revolutionary period, always alive to the active events transpiring in its every age, Washington, the capital of Wilkes county, holds an endearing memory in the hearts of all Georgians.

Wilkes county, located as it is in the northeastern section of the State, has always been a factor in the history of the State. Here it was in the days antedating the Revolutionary War that the sturdy sons of Old Virginia and Old Pennsylvania gathered to carve out of that wilderness then the home of the red man a settlement. It was a battle between the Indian and the Pale Face to the finish—a battle to the finish because the territory in question abounded in game and sport for the one, while, to the other, it gave every opportunity for an excellent home making. Located, as the county is, within a tier of that portion of Carolina where the Tory had his home, Wilkes county became a battle field, upon which to the victor went the spoils. In the days of the long smooth bore flint-lock gun every tree was presumed to be the fortress of an armed revolutionary soldier, or the hiding place of a Tory. It was upon the soil of Wilkes county that many a sanguinary feud was brought to its conclusion by the death of one of the two parties therein engaged.

With the close of the Revolution the historic features of that contest were not forgotten; and for years afterwards there rankled in the hearts of its people feelings of animosity, which began with the division of the people, caused by that great revolution.

Replete in its citizenry with people of English blood, old colonial estates and homes were marked out. Upon these were gathered the slaves of the owner and it was upon every plantation within the county a small village was established, the whitewashed walls of the cabins marking the settlements.

Gradually, as the home-builders progressed and as the descendants of the families began intermarrying, the old feeling of animosity died out, and, in its place came a unison of purpose and of action. The closer and nearer the people came to each other until the entire county of Wilkes was apparently a solidity, a unity, with a single purpose the home owners worked, until the people of Wilkes county were looked upon as one family.

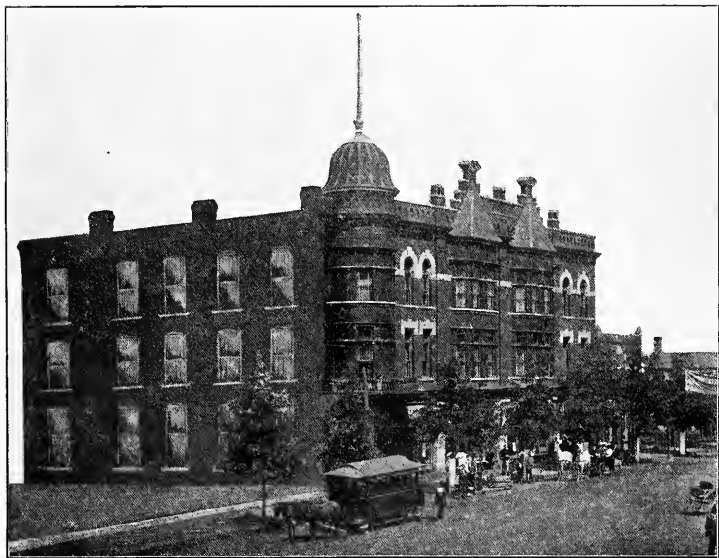

The soil, the most productive and responsive in the State, quickly brought a response to the labors of the owners; and, within a short time, Wilkes county was looked upon as one of the wealthiest in the State. There was not a cereal placed beneath the soil that did not give an abundant harvest; and that, too, with slight work.

Almost within the very heart of the county the settlers preferring town life had gathered; and there where the court house, from which justice was dispensed, was erected a town, which since its inception has been the pride of Georgia. It was at that period the name of Washington was given everything that was good; and it was that name the people of the county selected for their county site.

But little did they think when that name was selected of the important part it should play in the history of this Union.

During the years previous to the war between the States, Washington, Wilkes county, continued to grow and to prosper. So did the county. And when the war of the sixties came on it was from both town and county that men were rushed to the front. But at that time few there were who were inclined to the opinion that the final chapter of that great tragedy in which nations only play a part would find its final paragraphs written within the confines of the town named for the Virginian who had struggled so valiantly to establish the new and growing nation. Prolific with its men and women of letters. Proud of those who had attained distinction, Washington welcomed Mr. Davis, President of the Confederacy, and his cabinet to that city as they were fleeing from the invading army wearing the blue. It was here the last meeting of President Davis' Cabinet was held—if the story that a session was held in LaGrange be set aside. The Old-time Mansion, in which the meeting is said to have been held, is still a part of old Washington; and, during the last four or five years, the Daughters of the Confederacy have been making heroic efforts to save and maintain that old mansion.

THE FITZPATRICK HOTEL.
Washington, Ga. One of the most popular hostleries in the State.

Efforts have been made to obtain the old building bodily so that it may be removed North, where it can be set up as a relic of the Confederate Government. But through the devotion of the Daughters of the Confederacy and the women throughout the South, the oldtime mansion yet remains intact; and there it will continue to rest as long as the women of the South can control the situation.

Washington within itself is a town of importance. Outside of its historical features it has trade capacities unexcelled by towns of the same population of any town in the South. Its taxable property is shown to be $1,250,000. An excellent public school system prevails, while within the corporate limits is located one of the best Catholic schools in the South. The city owns its own electric light plant and its waterworks system. Its sewerage is not surpassed by any town of the same size in the State. It has three banks, each with an abundance of capital, all officered by the safest and most conservative business men of the city. The mercantile men are all energetic and successful, and full of a friendly combat one with the other. There are a number of manufactories, each of which is proving itself successful and growing. Under the administration of Hon. J. R. Dyson, mayor, who is cashier of the Washington Exchange Bank, the affairs of the city are being satisfactorily and admirably conducted. Few are the towns in the South more attractive than is Washington in Wilkes county. It is one of the oldest and best counties in Georgia. It is up-to-date in agriculture and is rich in minerals such as granite and quartz with some gold and iron. Two gold mines are now being profitably worked. Fine waterpowers especially at Anchovy Shoals are to be found, those at these shoals having a force equal to seventy-five horse-power. Washington is distinguished locally by having been the home of Robert Toombs. Among its other possessions are a public library, and abundance of churches. Its population is approximately 4,000.

THE CEDARTOWN COMPANY.

REAL ESTATE.

CAPITAL $500,000.

Cedartown, the County Seat of Polk County, is situated 90 miles South of Chattanooga, 60 miles northwest of Atlanta and 80 miles east of Birmingham.

Population has grown in the last 10 years from 1200 to 5000 and is still steadily increasing.

Railroad facilities are excellent: Central of Georgia running north and south and the Seaboard Air Line running east and west—connecting Atlanta and Birmingham.

Cedartown is the center of a manufacturing and mining region, and of an especially fine body of farming lands. It has no debt and low tax rate. It has all the conveniences of a city: Waterworks, sewerage system, electric lights, good schools, churches of all the various denominations, handsome city hall, efficient Fire Department.

No man has ever yet lost money in Cedartown Real Estate. The tendency of value being constantly upwards.

Cedartown has four Spinning Mills, three Knitting Mills, one Paper Box Factory, one Iron Furnace, one Cotton Seed Oil Mill, Lumber Co., Ice Plant and other small industries.

These industries together with the Railroads and Mining Companies make monthly cash disbursements amounting to $45000, thus insuring the business prosperity and stability of the city.

If you wish to make an investment either large or small that will pay you handsomely purchase Cedartown Real Estate.
